

Note on my email

I am getting a lot of readers complaining that I am not answering their emails, when the problem is something different entirely. Many of my replies are getting bounced by the mailer daemon, or an entity calling itself mail.extrasecurity.com. [That may be my own server or whatever, I can't remember.] Michael Gordon, this applies to you today. My replies to you are being blocked for some reason. Abbie, this also applies to you. Steadiroy, it also applies to you. It may apply to Forrest Cannon, since I haven't heard from you in a while.

It is possible Intel is interfering with my email, or there may be a more natural explanation. Comments welcome from readers who know more about this than I do.
