

Justine Bateman DOES Look Rad

No really. This is a serious defense of Justine Bateman on this one issue. She is 57 and I am a 59-year-old man, so I may be the perfect one to defend her. I am also a painter and lover of women, so I have a proven eye for these things. To me, she looks far far better and far far SEXIER than the hoards of middle-age women destroying their faces with surgery and makeup. Now she just needs to get rid of the eyeliner and she will be her perfect self. The eyeliner is hiding those gorgeous gray eyes. She has really nice hair for her age, long and thick and healthy. She still has skinny arms. And her wrinkles are not excessive for 57. Compare her to new pics of Johnny Depp, for instance.

Now, I don't know her. I have never met her. Never even heard an interview. I think I remember she went through a rough spot, but I don't remember what it was. I don't keep up. I never had a crush on her and don't now. I don't really like movie stars, as you know. She may have horrible opinions about any number of things. She may even support vaccines. I don't know. But on this issue she is right. I would run from most women her age, but just based on her looks, I wouldn't run from her. She looks fine to me. I wish more women would age naturally. I wish more women would ditch the make-up. I wish more women would find a way to stay thin. I wish more women would not color their hair. Justine isn't gray, but gray is fine at age 57. Gray is far better than scraggly and fried.

And I am not the only guy who thinks that. My guess is it isn't men who are attacking her for her looks. It is probably women. I know a lot of guys agree with me. They are sick of the make-up and perfumes and nail polishes and stinky shampoos. They are sick of the fried hair. They are sick of the fake teeth. They are sick of the phones and jewelry and ugly purses and skin-tight clothes and too much cleavage all the time. They are sick of the quacking voices and constant drone of advice on how to be a man in the new world. So just stop already. Just don't do it.
