

Fake Black Cambridge Professor Propels Race Wars

by Miles Mathis

August 20, 2026

Just my opinion as usual

What a freak show! And I say that not because he is black. It would be just as freak if he were white or any other ethnicity. It is freak because he is an actor, and his stage direction was to play up the freaky at all points. The whole vaudeville was written to get your attention, in which goal it certainly succeeded. It gets sillier everyday, finally becoming such a goose egg I couldn't ignore it any longer.

Many readers, especially those in England, have been asking me what I thought about this event, and I am here to tell you. To start with, almost nothing in worldwide news is true anymore, including the big wars. It is all astroturfed by the major scriptwriters to keep you off reality and prevent revolution. I could go through thousands of fake events everyday, pointing out how they make no sense or contradict themselves, but what's the point? Given my research of the past 20 years, you should know this by now. I have shown you the method. It is all about steering your eyes into these manufactured events and controlling your emotional response. Operation Chaos. All to maximize your confusion and minimize your ability to resist.

The UK needed a big George Floyd event to round out the summer of hate and fear, and this is what MI5 came up with: Jason Arday, a black Phys Ed PhD (no really) at Cambridge accused of plagiarism, who was then suspended in disgrace and killed himself a few days later. Now those who pointed out the plagiarism and false stories are being suspended for racism. Huge crowds have been astroturfed in Cambridge and London of Arday supporters, also screaming racism. It already sounds like a big joke, doesn't it?

But let's back up. A PhD in Phys Ed at Cambridge? You cannot be serious. They give PhDs in Phys Ed? It reminds me of the old Woody Allen joke: "Those who can, do; those who can't, teach; those who can't teach, teach gym.” But even if they do have PhDs in gym at Cambridge, it is difficult to believe a person like that would become a “star”, as we are told this “Dr” Jason Arday was. If you want to build up blacks, you don't do it by promoting a gym teacher. That just plays into the old stereotype, doesn't it? Which is why I say this looks like an MI5 joke from the first word. If you want to promote blacks at Cambridge, you promote a black physicist or chemist or historian or something, not another athlete. It is not like the world is short of star black athletes, right?

Plus, we can tell this is fake by comparing it to the Lindsay Clancy* event that is being promoted in the States simultaneously. We are seeing a bunch of noisy “leftist” women parading in the streets in support of this lady who killed her children. Why would anyone show up to support that? Well, they wouldn't. This is astroturfed to make liberal white women look bad. Same for the Karmelo Anthony fake event, where blacks in Dallas are allegedly parading in support of this kid who stabbed to death a white competitor in a track event. Why would anyone show up to support that? They wouldn't, it is again astroturfed to propel race wars. Same here, where thousands of blacks in England are allegedly parading in support of this guy who got caught faking his entire resumé. Why would they mass to support that? Well, they wouldn't. Which is how we know it is fake. They are there to make blacks look bad, propelling race wars again. Arday made black academics look like frauds, and now his supporters are making blacks look like lawless hooligans who believe blacks should be able to lie and cheat just because they are black. None of it an accident. All scripted for maximum chaos. All to keep your eyes off other things and on your neighbors.

Am I saying everyone marching on either side is an agent? Of course not. I am just saying the events are run by Intel. Many on the streets are no doubt well meaning people who aren't aware of the larger story here. I know because I used to be one of those people. I was an activist in my 20s and 30s, since that was the level of my revolution at that time. I have told you about writing in Chomsky for President in 1988 and working on the Nader campaign in 2000. Well, I remember marching in some protest in Amherst around that time, though I don't remember what it was about. What I remember is that the police—instead of arresting us—kindly blocked traffic while we sat in the middle of the busiest intersection in town. That seemed very suspicious to me at the time, and I now understand the whole thing was astroturfed and that I was just a dupe. Real revolutionaries aren't assisted by the police, it goes without saying, so if the police are on your side you are generally on the wrong side, as far as these protests go.

Does that mean that all protests are manufactured? No. But if your protest is being protected by the police and promoted by the city paper, you may want to rethink it. You are probably being used. Plus, by manufacturing all these protests, the governors can also dilute the power of real protests, since they hope no one will be able to tell the difference. They don't want you active, but if you are active they want you active in their fake protests which are guaranteed to go nowhere. And they want normal people to see these fake protests and get mad at all protestors. That's what all the weirdos blocking traffic is about now. Real protestors don't do that stuff, since that just ruins their profile with the public. Real protestors are trying to make alliances with the public and educate them, not piss them off.

Arday is an obvious agent, and I would say there is no chance he is dead. They just retired him since his project was over. This way they can give him a new wig and a new look and a new name and re-use him. His fake death is just a fitting end to his fake life, which you can read about at Wikipedia. It is also a never-ending joke, of the MI5 type. I will not repeat his claims or any of the other storylines, since they don't bear repeating. I am here to tell you what no one else will.

You will tell me he wasn't just a gym teacher, he had advanced degrees in education and sociology. Did he? We now don't know what to believe, since most of his bio has gone up in flames. Those degrees look made up like the rest of it, his entire curriculum vitae faked to get him into Cambridge where he could keep the race wars hot. Why would someone whose first interest and first degree was sports and phys ed start writing all this race war garbage? And an even better question is, why would these ridiculous papers be published by prominent journals and then Arday promoted to the skies by mainstream outlets like the Guardian, The Atlantic, and the BBC? The only thing I could confirm about his bio was the incredible mainstream promotion of the past three years, where he was indeed called a superstar, etc. For absolutely nothing.

Well, the clue is those outlets, which are all MI5 or CIA fronts. Clearly Arday was another project, which is why this is far bigger than plagiarism, tall tales, or even racism. None of this was a natural outcome or process, and I believe Arday probably just further embellished a bio already completely manufactured for him by Intelligence. So this story says nothing about the abilities of blacks, it is just one more sign of the Matrix.

We see that again with the story that came out today, which is what got me writing, after previously passing this one over. Postdoc Dr Nathan Cofnas, fired from Cambridge for racist comments, has now been suspended from his new position in Ghent for the same thing. He said that in a meritocracy no blacks would be in university positions at all. So he is playing the other side here. My guess is he is also an agent or at least a temporary hire of MI5, used to promote these race wars. No one smart enough to be hired at Cambridge would ever say such a thing, even if he believed it. It would be career suicide in the current political climate, so Cofnas must have had a back-up plan. Either this story is fake as well, just part of the larger script, or Cofnas will transfer over to an Intel job in the next few months, if he hasn't already.

Just so you know, I don't agree with Cofnas. I have had some very smart black friends, and there are many qualified blacks in all fields. Everybody knows that, which is why I know this isn't really about race, it is about manufactured race wars. I have been telling you that for years, all the way back to the beginning of the Black Lives Matter project. That was created by Intel, and it wasn't created to promote blacks. It was created to promote race wars. The problem was, after Obama race relations were actually very good and getting better, but the governors couldn't have that. It didn't fit the scripts of Operation Chaos, which were calling for more and more factionalism to cover up greater and greater government crimes. In other words, the revolution was building, and the CIA needed more and more cover. They didn't want you joining the revolution, so they had to manufacture greater and greater division. They pointed us at each other so that we didn't come after them. The Covid genocide just made that ten times worse, requiring even more manufactured instability, which is why the news is now just a 24/7 mindfuck. They are literally beating on your skull with false information all day long and half the night, to make sure you can't tell up from down, or even remember how to say no.

And they are even now testing ways to increase it. If you think the news is bad now, check out Youtube, where they are trial-running the next level of fake news: AI just making up stories from scratch. The one I saw yesterday was that Brittney Griner had been permanently suspended for negative comments about Caitlyn Clark. One problem: she hasn't. Youtube is littered with fake stories like this. You will say they are just individuals posting them for a laugh, and the Youtube police can't keep up. No, Youtube has rules against such things and enforces them very fast when they want to. Like Wikipedia. If you post a comment at either place that mentions me, for instance, it will be taken down within minutes, if not seconds. AI is actually used to police things like this and can flag these new videos in seconds. So these videos aren't coming from private posters. They are coming from government entities stirring your brain as part of Operation Chaos. No doubt they are monitoring this to see how successful it is, before they move it to mainstream TV. The mainstream news is already 99% fake, it just isn't as obviously fake as stories like this, which you can disprove in about 15 seconds. But if people are not checking, it doesn't matter if it is easy to disprove or hard. If most people aren't checking, there is no reason not to take this from Youtube to CBS and Fox. Most people won't know the difference, and if it is later reported the news is fake, that report will get lost in the scramble like everything else. Operation Chaos is bumped up a notch.

But back to Arday. The big clue there is that his parents are hidden in his bio at Wiki. All we are told is that they are from Ghana. But that is already too much information for someone like me, since that, combined with his middle name Atta, is enough to peg him. All I did is go to Findagrave and search on the name Atta in Ghana, and bimbamboom, they took me to John Atta Mills, President of the Fourth Republic of Ghana 2009-2012. Born 1944 he is of the right age to be Arday's father or other close relative of that generation.

There he is speaking at the UN. Like several others we will see below, he came out of the London School of Economics. And of course the name Mills is not an African name, so we can probably link him to the Mills of the peerage, think John Stuart Mills.

The Mills were the Barons Hillingdon, related to the Hoare-Wards. This links us across the pond to Jennifer Aniston, who is a Hoare. Also links us to the Barings and Harbords. The 1st Baronet Sir Francis Baring was the Director of the East India Company, just so you know.

The Mills also link us to the Lascelles, Earls of Harewood, and the Thynnes, Marquesses of Bath. Which takes us to the Cavendish-Bentincks, Dukes of Portland. So we will look out for those names as well. The Mills hit the big time in 1786 when they married the Digbys, who were also Noels. They were the Earls of Gainsborough, linking us to the Stanleys, Earls of Derby.

But let's move on.

After receiving a PhD degree from Liverpool John Moores University in 2015, Arday taught physical education at Leeds Beckett and Roehampton before teaching teaching studies at Warwick and sociology at Durham and Glasgow, where he became a professor in 2022. From 2018, he produced academic publications, some focusing on race and racism in the British education sector, and others offering autoethnographic reflections about his life as a neurodivergent black academic.

That's from his Wiki page. Doesn't make any sense, does it? He had no PhD in Sociology, so how could he be teaching it at the university level? And that says he was teaching it before he became a professor. And his PhD was in education, so what qualifications did he have for producing papers on racism? Education is education, not race studies.

Arday wrote that, despite having no training or qualifications in sociology, he had "expertise born of lived experience", and that while working in sport, he trained himself to be a sociologist by night.^[3] Arday served as a trustee for the Runnymede Trust, a race equality campaign group based in London, from 2013 to 2024.^{[24][25]}

Again, nonsense. Self-taught sociologists are not hired to teach at the university level, and their papers on race are not immediately published in sociology journals (unless those journals are MI5 fronts), for obvious reasons. And that last thing about the Runnymede Trust is an immediate giveaway, since Arday allegedly became a trustee in 2013, when he was only 27. Why? On what qualifications? He hadn't done anything by 2013, his PhD coming in 2015 and his first published paper in 2018.

Let's click on Runnymede Trust, shall we?

The Runnymede Trust is a British race equality and civil rights think tank. It was founded by Jim Rose and Anthony Lester^[1] as an independent source for generating intelligence for a multi-ethnic Britain through research, network building, leading debate and policy engagement.^[2]

So let's click on Jim Rose.

Eliot Joseph Benn "Jim" Rose (7 June 1909 – 21 May 1999) was a British intelligence officer, journalist and campaigner. Born into an "elite" Jewish family, Rose was educated at Rugby School and New College, Oxford.^[1] During World War II, he served with the Royal Air Force as an intelligence officer with 609 Squadron. In 1941, he moved to the Government Code and Cypher School at Bletchley Park where he worked initially in Hut 3 and assessed decrypted messages sent by the German Luftwaffe. From 1948 to 1951, Rose was literary editor of The Observer.^[1] In 1951, the family moved to Zürich, Switzerland, where he had become director of the newly formed International Press Institute.

Any questions? He wasn't even black. What about Anthony Lester? Not black either.

Lester was born Anthony Paul Raab to a Jewish family in London in 1936.^[3] ^[4]Anthony Paul Lester, Baron Lester of Herne Hill, QC (né Raab; 3 July 1936 – 8 August 2020) was a British barrister and member of the House of Lords.^[1] Lester was also a prominent figure in promoting birth control and abortion through the Family Planning Association, particularly in Northern Ireland.

So Runnymede was founded by very rich Jews. Raab's mother was Kate Cooper-Smith, and they are also in the peerage, related to John Jenkins, 1st Baron Glantawe, a tin plate manufacturer and one of the wealthiest men in Wales. So that's who we are dealing with, as usual. This is who Arday was working for. Still don't believe me? When Arday was there, Runnymede was run by Halima Begum, again not black.

Halima Begum is a Bangladeshi-British charity executive, who was chief executive of Oxfam UK until December 2025.^{[1][2]} She previously worked for the Department for International Development, the British Council, ActionAid and the Runnymede Trust.

All fronts. She comes out of the London School of Economics. Oxfam is famous for being a front for British Intelligence, as are those other places. In 2020 Boris Johnson merged the Department for International Development with the Foreign Office. He might as well have merged it with MI6, since it was all the same.

In 2018, Arday gained a senior lectureship at the University of Roehampton.^[26] That year, his first academic article was published.^[26] Also in 2018, Palgrave Macmillan published an edited volume co-edited by Arday with Heidi Safia Mirza, Dismantling Race in Higher Education: Racism, Whiteness and Decolonising the Academy. It was reviewed by Izram Chaudry in the Multicultural Education Review, in which they called it "a protest against the treatment of Black, Asian and Minority Ethnic (BAME) staff and students in British academia", one that assembled contributions from "the most eminent anti-racist academics".^[27]

How old was Arday in 2018? 33, of course, coming into his full promotion. He was less than three years out of his PhD in education, so it is hard to understand how a guy with one publication would be tapped as co-editor of a Macmillan publication with Heidi Safia Mirza, 60 at the time and at the top of her fake field. She is sold as the first black woman professor in Britain, but they admit her mother is Austrian. But give no names for either parent. Hmmm. I'm thinking her mother may be a Hiller or Hildesheim, how about you?

So the first black woman professor in Britain isn't even black? Figures. Prabook says her mother is Hilda Hosier, so we were close. And that may be a fudge. I am smelling chocolate. Heidi's father is given as Ralph Ali and her husband as Stewart John Phillips. That's almost as good as Hiller, isn't it? But if her father is Ralph Ali, where did she get the names Safia and Mirza? So many mysteries. But Ali is a Muslim name, of course, and Safia is also an Arab name, more commonly Safiya. One of the wives of Mohammed was Safiyya. Mirza is a Persian name, indicating nobility, so this lady is not looking African at all.

I found an article about her mother Hilda at the Trinidad Guardian, and it tends to confirm that Hosier may be a stage name, since she is some kind of holistic health guru in San Fernando. A hosier is someone who makes stockings, of course. She is probably dead by now, so we may never know, but we can look up Phillips. He is well scrubbed on the internet, which is suspicious. AI knows nothing about him, though he co-authored several of Mirza's books and papers. All we know is that they met at East Anglia University and that he later went to the London School of Economics. We aren't even told if he is black or white, but I suspect white. Curious there are no pictures of this power couple on the internet, though she is famous and they have allegedly long worked together. But I shouldn't have to remind you that the Phillips are closely related to the Windsors, and that the Stewarts are Stewarts.

Then I found this from one of her interviews on Youtube:

What's that ring she is wearing? A phoenix. She sure doesn't look black there. Not even half African. The dark half is something else.

But back to Arday. Also telling and hilarious is that his autobiography was co-written by Eve Claxton. Why would a guy with multiple advanced degrees need someone else to write his autobiography? I am laughing out loud. Just a continuation of the MI5 joke here. And who is Eve Claxton. They won't tell us. Eveclaxton.com is down. She had a LinkedIn page but it is gone. Another website that includes her, Unfurl Productions, is now private. This is her entire bio on the web:

Eve Claxton was born in London and lives in Brooklyn, New York. She has written for a variety of publications on both sides of the Atlantic including Vogue, The Tatler and the Guardian. She also works as a production consultant at NPR's StoryCorps, the National Oral History Project.

So she could be a CIA writing committee for all we know. A spook regardless, which is why she is now in hiding.

Arday's autobio, Great and Unfortunate Things, was released just nine days ago, August 11, 2026, aces and eights of course. Three days before his fake death, so the title is more than a little predictive. And why would they wait until nine days after he resigned from Cambridge to release his book? That makes no sense. This whole scandal has been in the news for weeks, with the piece in the Daily Telegraph coming out in late July and the Guardian following on August 1. Seeing the Guardian involved in this should look strange to you, since they had been Arday's biggest promoter up until then. You would expect them to go all out protecting him, but instead they fed him to the wolves. Again proving this was a project and that it was all scripted.

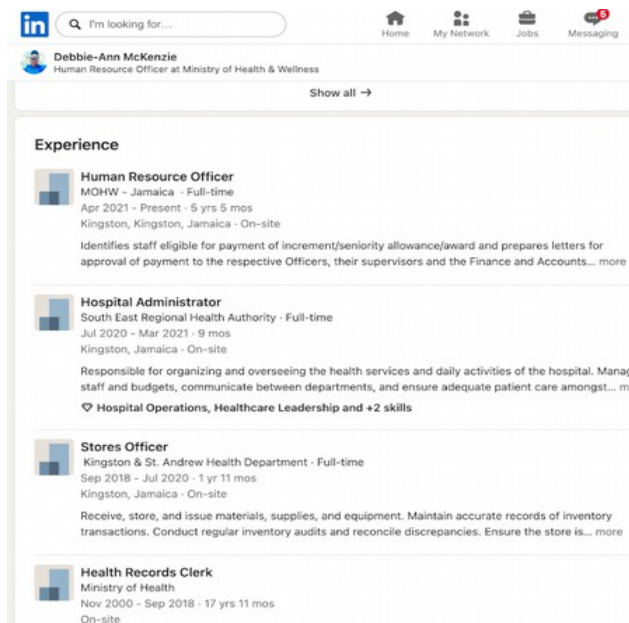

Routledge confirmed that it still intended to publish Arday's book, Considering Racialised Contexts in Education, in 2030.^[91]

What? That's four years in the future. Publishers don't work that far in the future—what would be the point? If the book exists, then you publish it now or within a year. If it doesn't exist, then why would it exist by 2030? Too much changes in four years, and publishers can't predict markets that far in the future. As this event would prove, if it were real: the author may be dead in four years . . . or four days.

Arday's wife is given as Debbie-Ann McKenzie, but unfortunately that story explodes like the rest of it, since we find her at LinkedIn living not in Cambridge or even London, but in Jamaica.

We know it is her because it says she got her Masters at Liverpool John Moores. But she has been living in Kingston for the past 27 years.

Also of interest is that the Master of Jesus College Cambridge, Sonita Alleyne, OBE, part black, supported Arday. But a little digging shows she is a member of the BBC Trust, again indicating she is some kind of agent. She is also the former CEO of Somethin' Else, a media production company now owned by Sony that is the BBC's biggest media supplier. Again, indicating it is an Intelligence front. All media is run by government spooks. Alleyne started that in 1991, when she was just 23, though we aren't told how that was possible. She allegedly matriculated at Cambridge when she was 16 or 17, so she must be extremely privileged and connected, though her parents are hidden on her Wiki page. This is because the Alleynes of Barbados are listed in the British peerage, being the Baronets of Four Hills, who have links to Jesus College, Cambridge back to the 1940s. Sonita's great-uncle Sir John Olpherts Campbell Alleyne the 5th Baronet got his masters there and later was Chaplain at Clare College, Cambridge. So you see how it works. His mother was a Campbell. These Alleynes are also Fitzherberts and Beresfords, linking us back to the Baron Alleyne Fitzherbert, Privy Counsellor and Chief Secretary of Ireland. William Fitzherbert of this family was Lord of Trade and Plantations in the 1750s, which puts this family in Barbados on the ground floor. The biggest question this all begs is what qualifications running a music business for the BBC gave Sonita Alleyne for running a College at Cambridge. I don't see the connection. Shouldn't Masters at Cambridge have some academic qualifications?

But it goes even deeper with this family from Barbados, as we see from Sir George Allanmore Ogarren Alleyne, UN Special Envoy for AIDS and then WHO Commissioner from 2018-2019. Right before Covid, in other words. He was knighted in 1990, though we aren't told for what, since his bio at Wiki doesn't include anything major before that date.

So the deeper we dig, the worse it gets, as usual. As I said from the start, this isn't about racism, it is an Intel project written to make blacks think all whites are racist and to make all whites think blacks are frauds and race baiters. The corrupt governors in all countries need you hating on your neighbors to take heat off themselves. I really wish you would quit falling for it. And maybe you aren't. Time to march in the streets with THAT message. Blacks and whites, hand in hand, telling the governors we aren't buying it. We know who the real enemy is.
