

Al Capone was Fictional

by Miles Mathis

First published June 8, 2022

I recently did John Dillinger, and this paper will follow the form of that one, where everything falls apart in the same way and for the same reasons.

How did I get in? I got in through Capone's associates Hymie Weiss and Bugs Moran. At Wikipedia, they try to sell Hymie Weiss as a Polish Catholic. No really. I guess those geniuses over at Wiki aren't aware that Hymie means Jew. And that Weiss is a common Jewish name. They tell us that is just a coincidence. Same for Bugs Moran, whose full name they give as George Clarence Moran before admitting his real name was Adelard Leonard Cunin. Then why make up the name George Clarence Moran? Why not Bugs Cunin? Well, it's because Cunin comes from the name Cumin, which comes from the French noble name Cumine, which comes from the English noble name Comyn, which comes from the older Commene, which comes from the crypto-Phoenician Emperors of Byzantium. Or, to make a long story much shorter, Cunin=Cohen. Bugs Moran was also Jewish, which is why he changed his name completely. His mother's name was Gobeil, confirming that they were from noble Jewish/French lines, via Canada. Think George Gobel, from the same family, probably a cousin of Bugs. He was born George Goebel, which gets you started. Yes, this also links us to Goebbels, who I have already shown you was Jewish. Also see the Gobelin tapestries, named for the Jewish billionaire dyers who purchased nobility in the 1500s. They were famous for their scarlet dye, like the Phoenicians were famous for their purple ones. In the 1600s the huge tapestry maker in Faubourg Saint Marcel, Paris, was run by Flemish cousins of the Gobelins. . . the Comans. See how that works? Meaning, Bugs Moran's parents didn't marry by accident. The Gobelins and Comans/Cunins had been marrying for centuries. That is how it works with these people. They move a few letters around, but it is always the same families. Centuries later, the Gobelins House is now a huge museum in Paris, and they even named a Metro stop after it.

I bet you weren't expecting that in the first paragraph of a paper about Al Capone, eh?

Before we go any further, I will answer a question newbies will have: why fake any of this? I have already answered that in many previous papers, including the one on Dillinger: to create work for the FBI and other agencies. We saw it more recently when I outed Whitey Bulger in my paper on the Gardner Museum in Boston, showing they are still up to the same old tricks. And we saw it yesterday in my paper on the fake murder of the judge in Wisconsin: he turned out to be a Lt. Colonel and the event was tied to the fake assassination attempt on Gov. Gretchen Whitmer, which, yes, was used to create work for the FBI. The mainstream has now all but admitted that. These are big agencies with huge budgets and they need something to do to justify all their billing to the treasury and taxation of you. So they create these bogeymen and mobsters and terrorists and so on. Outside the military, it is the biggest racket going and has been for a long long time. The CIA expanded it far beyond anything the FBI ever dreamed of, then DHS came along, and NSA and NRO and ICE and ATF and dozens of others you have never even heard of. Your great-grandparents' made the initial mistake by letting FBI soak them with these fake stories decades ago, and the fakes have expanded and accelerated ever since, taking over larger and larger parts of the budget. That is why it has gotten so absurd: the various agencies have to fake a big event every other day, in competition with one another for larger funding. You are funding this snowballing gaslighting of yourself, and I suggest you quit doing that. Step one is quit believing it. Step two is defunding all these agencies. You don't need to be paying people to lie to you: you can get that for free.

Anyway, we find the same problem with Al Capone, who wasn't Albert or Alfred. He was Alphonse Gabriele Capone, an upperclass name. They have just fudged his early bio to fool you, as usual. They tell us he was the son of poor Italian immigrants who came to Brooklyn, the parents becoming a barber and a seamstress. Not a chance that is true, and there is zero evidence of it, beyond the words. His mother was a Raiola and they were from Salerno, but no city is given. But they do give us a clue, since they tell us when the family emigrated to the US, they went through Rijecka, Croatia. Which is ridiculous, since that isn't on the way to the US. It is backwards from Salerno, since Salerno is on the west coast of Italy, while Rijecka is on the east coast of the Adriatic, up across from Venice. Rijecka has been a huge Phoenician port for thousands of years, becoming a Free City of the Habsburgs in 1465. By Free City, I mean a city like City of London, which is mainly autonomous. Only the top Phoenician ports have that status. Rijecka also has a very large Jewish population and always has, due to its mercantile status. In the 1770s the city was known as Fiume and it became a huge importer of sugar via the East India Company. After that Rijecka bought itself even more autonomy, going under the direct protection of the King of Hungary. It was still under that protection in the late 19th century when the Capones were there. Rijecka was also a big Navy port for Hungary at that time. So Rijecka is a huge clue concerning the Capones, as you see. It tells me what I already suspected: they were wealthy Jews going backwards to Rijecka to catch the private ship of one of their East India Company cousins. That would allow them to sail to America in much greater comfort, and to avoid any red tape upon arrival. These people don't move around by public transport: they don't now and they didn't then.

But let's return to his mother's maiden name Raiola. That is also Jewish/Italian, and they are related to the Lombardis of the Genovese crime family. They admit this, see the Wiki page for Angela Raiola, the actress famous for Mob Wives and Celebrity Wife Swap. I have hit the Lombardis already in my paper on Mussolini, where I showed you that the name comes from Jewish pawnbrokers who took over the field centuries ago, like they did with banking and shipping. You may also want to study Angela Raiola's page closely, where we find she was indicted on six felony counts of drug trafficking. She pled guilty to the top charge and was convicted, but still walked, being given probation. Figures. So anyway, we may assume she was a cousin of Al Capone. No one ever tells you that.

Also see Mino Raiola, Italian soccer superagent who recently died. He was from the same area as Capone, and later bought Capone's old house in Miami! How's that for proof? Which tells us he probably didn't buy it: he inherited it.

Speaking of fake sports, like Castro, Capone played semi-pro baseball. Small world, eh? Capone looks about as athletic as Danny Devito. Capone is listed as 5'10", yet another bad joke. They add five inches to all these famous people, just to snow you. They did the same with Castro, who was nowhere near 6'3".

That's Castro with Spielberg, who is listed as 5'8", and that's probably with lifts. Even if we shrink Castro due to age, we still can't get him to ever being 7" taller than that. Unless Spielberg is sitting in Castro's lap there.

Capone was known as Scarface, of course. But did he really have any scars?

They seem to come and go. The scars are supposed to be on the left side of his face, and that is the left side. In a mugshot, they say, “turn to your right”, which exposes the left side of your face.

Same problem there, which they have tried to cover by reversing the photo. But mugshots are standard, with the full-face shot coming first and the turn to your right. They do not turn to the left in Miami, due to being in the southern hemisphere or something. Miami is not south of the equator. So anytime you see a mugshot in that form, you should know you are being yanked.

You will tell me those were taken before he got slashed. No, the standard history is that he got slashed while working the door at a bar in Coney Island in 1918, making him 19. He is much older than 19 in both those photos. That last photo is dated 1930 at Wikipedia.

Same problem at Alcatraz in 1934, which they have tried to hide in the same way, by reversing the first image. Google also hides this generally by giving you almost nothing on “turn to your right mugshot”. But even if you don't work in law enforcement or courts, you should know this. It is said in a thousand movies. They never say “turn to your left”.

In short, the whole scarface thing was a fake, to make him seem like a tough or a gangster when he was really just another Jewish actor with manicured nails. Sort of like Jon Lovitz, but not so tall.

Another way we can tell the last mugshot is fake is the tag. US Penitentiary Alcatraz 85. There is nothing else on Alcatraz but a penitentiary, so it seems kinda redundant, doesn't it? And there is no date. 85 is his prisoner number. It should have a date. Compare to these:

Those are the Anglin brothers, so those are fake as well, but my point is there is no continuity.

How do I know those last ones are fake? Because they don't take mugshots with eyes closed. If your eyes are closed, they retake it. They need the eyes for the identity.

That just proves it again, since his eyes are still closed for the side view, and he is facing to his left. But I will do that one more fully another time.

Alphonse Capone

Look at Alphonse Capone's curly-girly little signature. If there had been an “i” in his name he would have dotted it with a heart.

Speaking of, what about the St. Valentine's Day Massacre? That was real, right? Uh, no. Let's look at the names of the victims: Albert Kachellek, Adam Heyer, Albert Weinshank, Frank and Peter Gusenberg, Reinhardt Schwimmer, and John May. Sort of strange names for “Irish members” of the Northside Gang, eh? All Jewish. Gusenberg is just a slur of Gutenberg, so we have extremely obvious Jewish names, no question. Think actors Steve Gutenberg and David Schwimmer, admitted to be Jewish. But we have photos of the bodies, you will say. No, we have photos of bodies, but we do not know if they are dead or if they are these guys. All we see is some guys lying on the ground and some fake blood: that proves nothing. Even if they are dead, they could be bodies purchased from the morgue. In fact, the photo published by the New York Times looks fake. Hard to tell from the lower resolution image posted at Wiki, but there is a link to the NYT if you want to study the original. Looks like a paste with the blood streams added later.

Here is what it says at Wiki:

They were lined up against a wall and shot by four unknown assailants, two dressed as police officers.

They were shot in a garage and the four assailants had Tommy guns. So here's a question for you: If they were lined up against that wall and shot by four guys with machine guns, why is there no blood on the wall? And does that look like a garage? Not to me.

That's our next clue, the only known photo of Chicago mob boss Vincent Drucci while alive, real name Ludovico D'Ambrosio. Not sure how you get Vincent Drucci from that. But look closely: it's another fake. Look at the straight lines on the sides of his neck and the fake curve of his double chin. It is taken from this fake mugshot:

I've never seen a coat hang like that in the first pic. What was he, a hunchback? And again, he is facing the wrong direction. Here he is after being killed, supposedly:

One problem: he looks alive. Just another Hollywood Jew from actor's equity. In fact, this guy D'Ambrosio was known to be an actor, and would have had an IMDB page if they were around back then. He appeared in at least one porn film. He also liked to dress as a priest and walk the streets of Chicago, again indicating an actor.

Drucci had fake run-ins with southside boss Johnny Torrio, which of course links us to today's headlines. I remind you of my January 6 paper, where we saw Proud Boys leader Henry Tarrio. Same name and family. Tarrio=Torrio. Nothing ever changes, except a letter in their names occasionally.

Really, that's supposed to be a photo? Was it taken from the Moon?

I remind you again all this was happening in the late 1920s, exactly when J. Edgar Hoover was expanding the Bureau of Investigation. Hoover had been promoted to director in 1924, and it had 650 employees at the time. He expanded it steadily and rapidly and by 1943 it had 13,000 employees. That's an increase of 20x in less than 20 years. Did the US increase in population by 20x in that time? No, it increased by 20%, not by 2000%. So was crime in the US growing 100 times faster than the population? No. It probably wasn't growing at all. It was probably decreasing due to ever more police on the street, which was a big problem for the ambitious Hoover. With larger local police forces and more firepower between the wars, there was almost nothing left for Hoover's G-men to do.

Not to be deterred by reality, Hoover did the only thing he could do to increase his budget, fame, and prestige: he phoned up his buds in Hollywood. With their help he created a steady stream of fake events using people like Capone and Dillinger to make work for the FBI and increase its budgets, which rose even faster than its work force.

FBI now has around 35,000 employees, which may look like a leveling off after the fantastic rise before the war, but that is only because CIA stole much of its thunder after 1970. As I showed you, that is what Watergate was about: getting rid of Hoover and transferring all the sexiest domestic work from FBI to CIA. CIA saw the sort of astronomical growth from 1970 to 1990 that FBI had seen in the 1930s, except that their growth was mostly kept hidden. Wikipedia now says the CIA has 22,575 employees and a budget of $15 billion, but that is the joke of the century, the real numbers being 200-300 times higher. In 2013 I used published numbers to estimate total domestic Intel at over 6,000,000 people. That was based on security clearances, not CIA hires, so not all 6,000,000 are CIA. That would include military intelligence, ONI, DHS, DIA, NSA, etc. Even so, CIA proper must be 20-30 times larger than Wikipedia states. I think you begin to understand why the news is little more than an evergrowing pile of fake murders, stabbings, and other manufactured mayhem. All that mayhem is budgeted, so it can't not happen.

But back to the St. Valentine's Massacre. They love to give us clues, since they think we are too stupid to see them. On the Wiki page for the event, they admit police suspected the Jewish Purple Gang from Detroit, as well as Al Capone. You have to laugh. The Purple Gang. I guess they were famous for wearing purple Phoenician-dyed silks? Did this Detroit gang also have Viking ships on their flags and rampant lions?

But it gets better. If we take the link to the Wiki page on the Purple Gang, we find they used a "Little Jewish Navy" to carry alcohol over the Detroit River from Canada. The Phoenician Navy. And you thought I had made up the name. We are told the FBI thought the Purple Gang was involved in the Lindbergh baby kidnapping. Except that was also fake, and the FBI knew it. And then there is this:

They also defrauded insurance companies by staging fake accidents.

They mean the Purple Gang, not the FBI. But as you see it goes both ways. Everyone was faking something back then, and they still are. It just gets bigger and more fantastic each decade.

Another fake the Purple Gang were involved in was the murder of radio commentator Jerry Buckley.

He supposedly died at age 39. So why does he look about 55 there? He looks ill to me, so he may have died of natural causes and they made up this story about his murder. He has a Findagrave page but no relatives there. Probably to hide his mother, whose maiden name is also not given at Wikipedia. Also scrubbed at Geni.com. It may be O'Leary. Which would make a recent murder a copy of this older one. Just last year, Detroit DJ John O'Leary was allegedly stabbed to death in his home. This was suspicious because he was allegedly living in Highland Park. His much younger male roommate was arrested the very next day and charged two days later, which seems lightning fast for Detroit police. If this was a lover who robbed him, as they seem to be spinning the story, why wouldn't he leave town or otherwise hide? Murderers don't generally turn up the very next day, except in fake murders.

Anyway, I suspect Jerry Buckley has been scrubbed to prevent us from linking him to the Buckleys of Chicago, two of whom were in the US House in 1930. Buckley's killers were never discovered, although he was allegedly shot in the LaSalle Hotel Lobby. His death was used to vastly increase police and FBI budgets, and his own brother George just happened to be working for the DA, whose budget also increased significantly.

But the biggest clue with Buckley is what he was doing before radio. He was working as a private investigator for Henry Ford, then for the government. He also worked for the DA's office, "assisting" his brother. Wikipedia gives us no details on this period of his life, of course, but it indicates he was with Intelligence from the beginning.

OK, let's return to Capone. The surname Capone is a variation of the French noble name Capon, meaning a castrated rooster. The capon is used on many noble crests. The French Capons are in the British peerage related to Bruces and Kennedys. See Janet Capon who married John Lincoln Butterick, whose mother was Winifred May Bruce, who comes from Kennedys and McKenzies. They are also related to the Bennetts, linking us to the Queen. This link is scrubbed by Darryl Lundy at the peerage, but not very well. He lists an "unknown Capon", but this Capon is surrounded by Bennetts on the page, making the link easy. The Italian Capones are the same family, all of them having Phoenician/Jewish roots. At the time of Alphonse Capone's parents, they were from Naples, famous for its Jewish population. Capone's grandfather was a Calabrese, supposedly a pasta maker, but this is just another joke. The Calabreses are more famous Chicago "mobsters", see Frank Calabrese, possibly a nephew or cousin of Capone. But again, these people weren't Italian mobsters, they were either cloaked bankers or actors, with the least talented people in the family tapped to play these media parts, as with George Bush. They put their worst people forward for the cameras, to make you think they are incompetent. You never see the people in the families who make the decisions. These days they have an even lower category for people who can't even act: Modern artists. Those jobs are reserved for the family kids even more retarded than George Bush. George should have gone into that field, since he can't even read from a teleprompter. And, you know, he does try to sell himself as a portrait painter. Do a search on that if you need a laugh.

Also see Italian police officer and lawyer Luigi Calabresi, from the same family, who was assigned to investigate fake anarchist groups right out of law school in 1965. He was involved in the Piazza Fontana bombing, being accused of ordering the killing of Giuseppe Pinelli. He didn't, because Pinelli's death was faked with the rest of it. It is now admitted through the Gladio releases that the whole thing was staged by the government via the international Intel agencies. Calabresi's death was also faked in 1972, as a continuation of the Chaos project.

He was allegedly murdered by Adriano Sofri, a journalist and head of Lotta Continua—another pretend Intel organization and CIA front. He supposedly spent 15 years in jail, but nonetheless continued to publish the whole time for many newspapers, including Il Foglio, La Repubblica, and Panorama. You have to laugh. Panorama has always been owned by TIME magazine. La Repubblica was founded in 1976 by Eugenio Scalfari, whose father was the artistic director of the Sanremo Casino. Sanremo is an ancient Phoenician port from before Roman times and Alfred Nobel lived there. The kings and princes of Europe vacation there. Scalfari's wife was a Benedetti, same as the Bennetts we have already seen. Scalfari had also been the head of L'Espresso since 1955. He was a fascist and atheist who later pretended to be a liberal. Il Foglio is another Intel front paper, this one run by red-haired slob Giuliano Ferrara, from a family of Communist senators. While being an atheist he nonetheless buddied up to Pope Ratzinger, selling him like chocolate. What does this tell us about Sofri? It tells us he was never in jail for a minute.

Capone was also a Scognamiglio, a Petrosino, and an Alfano. Indicating Joe Petrosino, famous “organized crime fighter” from New York who preceeded Capone by a generation, was another cousin or uncle. Like Capone, Petrosino came from Salerno and also made mysterious connections to top Irish, which otherwise makes no sense. The Italians and Irish are supposed to be bitter enemies in the big cities like New York and Chicago, but Capone married an Irish Coughlin, and Petrosino was living with rich Irish the moment he touched shore. Petrosino married into the Burke family and soon became friends with Teddy Roosevelt, as you do.* And also like a lot of these people including Capone, Petrosino was very short, being 5'3” in shoes. He had to get a waiver to get into the police department. Petrosino was involved in the extortion case against famous tenor Enrico Caruso, telling us that was another fake. Petrosino also warned the secret service about the assassination plans on McKinley, but was ignored. We already know that was a fake.

As for the name Alfano, they have been running Salerno and Capua for 1000 years or more. See Alfanus I, archbishop of Salerno, who was a Lombard, confirming my previous comments. The Lombards were Phoenician nobles who came down to Italy from Germany in about 500AD, being Vikings before that. This is where Capone's name Alphonse comes from, too, of course. The Alfani still run Italy, see Angelino Alfano, Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs until 2018, born on Halloween.

The Scognamiglio's are still running Italy as well, see Carlo Scognamiglio, President of the Senate and head of Defense until 2000. He came out of the London School of Economics. He now works for the Aspen Institute.

Also see fake Neapolitan mobster Enrico Alfano, who takes us full circle. He was accused of ordering from Naples the murder of New York police lieutenant Petrosino, who we just saw. What are the odds? Alfano ordering the murder of his cousin Peterosino? We even get a fake photo of Enrico:

Also remember that I was able to link both Scott Peterson and his judge Aldo Girolami to Capone's in my recent paper on the Laci Peterson fake. As usual, all these fake events are linked, even when they are decades apart. It's because it is the same families running all these cons.

Capone allegedly became boss of the biggest mob in Chicago at age 26. Who believes this crap? The former boss Torrio brought him to Chicago from New York six years earlier, and he soon became Torrio's second in his early 20s. Why? He had done nothing exceptional in New York and his bio is mostly a blank. Are we really supposed to believe there were no older people in Chicago more qualified to be Torrio's second? And we have another problem, since the real bio of Capone is known in these years, and he wasn't doing what we have since been told. He was a boxing promoter, not the number two man of the city's biggest mob. The number two man of a major mob doesn't get his name in the papers as a boxing promoter. And when he became boss, the story became even more unbelievable: he was a rich guy seen at all the swankiest places spending lots of dough and again getting his name in the papers as "a national celebrity". Real mob bosses don't want that kind of publicity, since it just draws attention. Reread all the stories with what I have told you in mind: they are all flabby and unsubstantiated and read like poor fiction. Just a lot of jawing by the usual bad writers in Intel. They know you will believe anything, so there is no continuity and nothing makes any sense. Also full of the usual numerology, as when Hymie Weiss was killed: October 11, aces and eights. Here's how misty the reporting is at Wikipedia:

A 1929 report by The New York Times connected Capone to the 1926 murder of Assistant State Attorney William H. McSwiggin, the 1928 murders of chief investigator Ben Newmark and former mentor Frankie

Yale.

Really? A report by whom? Did it write itself? If the newspaper could connect Capone to all those murders, why couldn't the FBI?

In 1929 three of Capone's men allegedly hatched a plot to overthrow him, but Capone found out and had them shot. The murders comprise a scene in the Untouchables. But we have no proof or even evidence this ever happened. They tell us John Scalise, the leader, was sent back to Italy for burial. That's convenient, since we have now gravesite to check. But how do we know if he went back to Italy alive or dead? We don't. We don't have any evidence for any of this stuff. It is all just a story the FBI writers made up. They all but admit that at Wiki, where they tell us us mainstream historians don't believe it either. The story was first told in a 1931 book by Walter Noble Burns, who also wrote the fictional book The Saga of Billy the Kid. The only eyewitness testimony is provided by Capone's own man George Meyer, and so is worthless.

As soon as President Hoover entered office in 1929, he—at the behest of J. Edgar Hoover and Laird Bell—began a huge federal taskforce with Capone as its target. Strangely, Wiki leaves J. Edgar's name off this list. Eliot Ness was hired as their point man, of course. Ness is another big phony, like Clarence Darrow, Vincent Bugliosi, Marcia Clark, Judy Clarke, and many others we have outed. His mother was a King and his father was a baker. The usual joke. Add an “n” to get banker. Ness joined Treasury right out of university at age 22, in 1926. His career is a blank until 1929, when he returned to the University of Chicago to take a graduate course in criminology. Better late than never, I guess. At age 26 Ness was tapped to take on the 27-year-old Capone. Again, those ages should surprise you. You wouldn't expect an inexperienced nobody in his mid-20s to be leading this important taskforce.

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Eliot Ness". The signature is written in a cursive, slightly slanted style with a long, sweeping tail on the final letter.

Ness also had a curl-girly signature, like Capone. Indicating they, along with J. Edgar, were all probably meeting after-hours to wear dresses and trade pie recipes. Remember, this later become known of J. Edgar, so it is far more than a joke. Regarding Hoover it is a known fact. Also remember Capone only had one girl his entire life, not something you would expect from a high roller and “ladies man.” Even that relationship was arranged by his mother. They had one child, born before they were married at age 19, so the child may not have even been Capone's. This is confirmed by a great-niece of Capone, who reported he was known to be sterile due to a birth defect. Wiki passes right over that. They don't point out that this is probably why the syphilis story was invented to explain his sterility. When she died, Mae Capone was not buried with Al.

Ness was so incredibly successful and penetrating, Capone was eventually convicted of 3 counts of . . . tax evasion. Wow. He allegedly began his 11-year sentence in 1932. For this major coup, how was Ness rewarded. He was sent to Cleveland where he became the city's Safety Director. Quite a promotion, eh? Cleveland. In 1944, he became Chairman of Diebold, telling us who he always was. Just to remind you, Diebold is the company that runs the majority of voting machines, being notorious for shady dealings and stolen elections. But in the time of Ness, they were mainly a military company, supplying armor plating to the Army.

We know Capone's conviction was fake since it also makes no sense. He made a plea deal for a 2.5

year prison sentence, but we are told the government reneged on the deal, with Capone changing his plea to not-guilty. It doesn't work like that. If it did, the government could just trick people into pleading guilty, then tell the jury they had pled guilty previously. Also, we are told all this happened just hours before the trial, leaving Capone's lawyer's with no plan of defense. Again, absurd, since the legal system doesn't work like that. Any trial of that sort would be overturned on appeal in about five minutes. Plus, Wiki then tells us he was convicted of five charges. After also telling it was three charges. So they can't get it straight on the same pages.

Capone allegedly arrived at Atlanta penitentiary at age 33. Of course he did. But why Atlanta? None of his crimes happened in Atlanta. All the jails in the north were full? Then he was sent to Alcatraz, even further away. Why? Because almost no one could later testify they never saw him there. It was the perfect place to hide his ghost. Remember, Capone's prisoner number there was 85, so the place was almost (or completely?) empty. This is the standard operating procedure in these fakes: move the high profile prisoners to someplace no one can report not seeing them. Like in distant states, small rural jails (as with Eugene Debs), or islands (as with Napoleon or Capone). They can't get his prisoner number right, either, since in another photo it is listed as 83 instead of 85.

After they had completed their work this prisoner became very insolent and wanted a pass to the Deputy Warden saying that he did not wash windows for anyone. This man created a lot of confusion amongst the detail when he started yelling out "did you see me wash that window". This is the second time he has become insolent to me in front of the rest of the detail. USPAC FORM 175 1-21-37-200

Man, does that transfer form look fake! Would you be grinning wildly if you had been transferred to Alcatraz? Maybe he doesn't realize there won't be any fishing or surfing.

And they again get the term wrong. It says 10 years on the form, but the history books and Wiki say 11. The prisoner number is given as both 85 and 83 on the same form!

The criminal history section is also a joke. They would not list arrests and indictments that did not lead to convictions. But of course they have to pad this thing out, since this is Capone at Alcatraz. His fellow prisoners were mass murderers. If they just listed his one little fake conviction for tax evasion you might get suspicious.

Capone was paroled in 1939, after fake-serving just seven years. He supposedly died of syphilis a few years later.

*We saw in my paper on Grace Kelly that these Burkes were actually Balls through previous marriage, making them descendants of . . . George Washington. And, since all Presidents are closely related, this explains Petrosino's link to Teddy Roosevelt. Who thought I would link Capone to George Washington?
