

Marvin Gaye Faked his Death

by Miles Mathis

First published March 15, 2025

Why do I think that?

- 1) He died on April 1. April Fool, you bought it!
- 2) He was supposedly shot by his father multiple times in a family squabble. Despite shooting more than once, the father was charged only with manslaughter and received a suspended sentence, servng no time. We are told this was due to an undiagnosed brain tumor, which sounds like a made-up CIA story. He lived another 14 years. What caused them to check for brain tumors? Do they check all murderers for brain tumors? I think we are going to need to see those scans. We are told the tumor was found during a check-up after the murder. Do I have to remind you they don't scan for brain tumors during a check-up?
- 3) He was pronounced dead at 1:01. Why do we need to know that? Half of aces and eights, I guess. The shots were fired at 12:38pm. So there are your aces and eights, in full. How did they know the exact time, to within the minute? Everyone stopped and checked their watches as Gaye was bleeding to death on the ground?
- 4) "He was given a burial plot at Forest Lawn Cemetery, but was later cremated; his ashes were spread around the Pacific Ocean." Both facts point to a fake.
- 5) His father Marvin Gay, Sr., had moved from Kentucky to DC as a young man to become a preacher. Marvin Jr. grew up there. Both the place and the job suggest something else may have been going on. You don't need to move to DC to become a preacher, and it is actually easier to become a preacher just about anywhere else, since there is less competition. DC also doesn't normally draw the religious, as you know, and it didn't in the 1930s.
- 6) Although Marvin was rich and world famous, we are supposed to believe he was living with his parents in Arlington Heights in LA, on S. Gramercy Place right on the very noisy I10, in order to care for his mother. That seems highly unlikely, especially since his father was not dead or incapacitated and he had many siblings more able to care for her than he was. Remember, part of the story is that Marvin Jr. was suicidal, strung out on drugs, wearing three coats and putting his shoes on the wrong feet. So how is he going to care for his mother in that state? The story contradicts itself over and over, as you are seeing. The usual.

- 7) You are going to love this one. Although the men had been at each other's throats for years, and the elder Gay had threatened to kill him, "On Christmas Day 1983, Gaye gave his father a Smith & Wesson .38 Special pistol so that he could protect himself from intruders." Sounds like a good idea, right? Believable, right? So in a huge case of irony, Marvin gave his father as a Christmas gift the pistol he would shoot him with.
- 8) Gaye's death certificate has the wrong name on it. It lists him as Marvin Gaye. He was born Marvin Gay and never legally changed it to Gaye. Gaye was just a stage name he used to break the "gay" homosexual link. This is a common trick in these fakes, since we have seen it many times. Think Jack London, for instance, who also had the wrong name on his fake death cert. They put the wrong name on the death certificate, making it immediately void. It also lacks a physician's certification, making void a second time:

Also lacks the state registrar line, with just X's, making it void a third time. Also notice that although they tell us he was later cremated, they seem to have known four days later, April 5, that he was already cremated. More proof this was fake, since you are not allowed to cremate a body that is the subject of a murder investigation. They admit there was an autopsy, and you can't even get an autopsy done that fast, especially in LA. No way the body was cremated by April 5, as it claims there. In fact, Gaye's funeral was April 5 and it was open casket.

- 9) Gaye's siblings said some very strange things afterwards, claiming that Marvin's death was "premeditated suicide". What? How is your father shooting you through the heart suicide? Marvin Sr. claimed he thought the gun was loaded with BBs or blanks. What? You can't load a 38special with BBs, and there is no reason the gun would be loaded with blanks, unless this was staged.
- 10) "Gaye left behind no will.^[34] As a result, his son Marvin III, aged 17 at the time, became co-administrator of his estate." Impossible, since Marvin III was a minor and minors cannot be administrators of estates in California, DC, or any other location in the world, and they could not in 1984.
- 11) Marvin Gay, Sr., has his own Wiki page, which seems odd since he is famous for nothing but this. Marvin's mother also has her own page, though there is nothing interesting on it. But we notice his strange dates: Marvin Pentz Gay Sr. (October 1, 1914 – October 10, 1998). Since October means eighth month, both his dates are aces and eights. We are told he was a Pentecostal minister and healer, but also that he believed the Sabbath was Saturday. But Pentecostals aren't Seventh-day Adventists, so he seems very confused. Or someone is very confused. We are told Marvin Sr. was a crossdresser, implying he was a closet homosexual, but also that he was a womanizer, having children in extramarital affairs. So again, no continuity. Crossdressing gays don't have extramarital children. He is very gay [in this youtube clip.]
- 12) Wiki tells lots of stories about Marvin Sr. being a minister and even a bishop, but his daughter Jeanne tells a different story: he never held any job for more than three years, working for the post office and then Western Union. As I say, these people can't keep their stories straight.
- 13) "As a teenager, Marvin Jr. attempted to leave home for good following one big fight by enlisting in the US Air Force; a move which the younger Gay later admitted was a bad idea, as he found himself under superiors who had similar authoritarian leanings as his father." Then this follow-up: "He feigned mental illness and was given a general discharge, with an outgoing performance review from his sergeant remarking 'Airman Gay cannot adjust to regimentation nor authority.'" Right. It doesn't work like that. You don't have to have been in the Air Force to know that, you just have to have watched a few episodes of MASH. Klinger, remember? Besides, you don't normally enlist in the Air Force on a lark like that. Maybe the Army, but not the Air Force. Air Force normally runs in families or is recruited, suggesting his father was Air Force. Air Force would be very unlikely to take a black 17-year-old highschool drop-out, especially in 1956. He was allegedly in and out of the Air Force in less than a year.
- 14) By age 18 Gaye was working with Bo Diddley, which again makes no sense unless Gaye had some huge hidden connections. Diddley immediately introduced Gaye's group the Marquees to Columbia Records. Within a few months Gaye's group was taken over by Harvey Fuqua, who moved them to Chicago. By age 20, Gaye was singing lead vocal for the Moonglows. The next year he was with already with Barry Gordy at Tamla/Motown. So this poor kid from the DC ghettos with a deadbeat dad sure moved up fast!

We also get some very strange results on a people search for the two Marvins:

Their middle name was Pentz, so we have three possible matches there. The first one is the right age to be the father, who allegedly died at 84, but he has the wrong location, indicating the story we are told about the house in LA is not true. The third listing must be the son, since it has his wife Anna on it. But notice there is no location of DC. Also notice the computer thinks he died at age 59 in 1999, not at age 44 in 1984. Then the last one also has Culver City on it, so it may be the same guy as the first one. Confirming that is the names Jeanne and Zeola, which are his daughters' names. But who are these other people?

Also worth mentioning: Gramercy Place is not in Culver City, so we have a lot of locations here not listed in his mainstream bio, including Beverly Hills and Venice. That's a far cry from a dump just off I10 in Arlington Heights.

Did you know Marvin had a brother Frankie who looked just like him? I didn't, until just now.

From Findagrave: In 1973, while on tour with his brother Marvin, he was sent on stage alone, and in confusion, the audience thought Frankie was Marvin as Frankie not only looked like his famous brother, but sounded like him too.

So if Marvin gets spotted, he can say he is Frankie, I guess. That's convenient for this story, ain't it? Frankie was also both cremated and buried at Forest Lawn. Even stranger is that Frankie was married to a woman named. . . Irene. Check listings above, where we find an Irene in the last listing, for the guy who died at 110. So where does that number 110 come from? If Frankie were still alive, he would be 83. If Marvin Jr were still alive he would be 85. If Marvin Sr were still alive, he would be . . . 110. I am not saying he lived to 110, but the number match again confirms this is Marvin Sr. Seems odd that Marvin Sr would have his daughter-in-law first on his list, but not his wife or son.

According to Findagrave, the middle name wasn't Pentz, it was Pintz.

REGISTRATION CARD U. S. G. FORM 1
Marvin Pintz Gay

He filled out and signed the card himself, so I would say that is pretty clear. Block letters. Why change it? Because Pintz is a Jewish name, see Janos Pintz, known for his work on the Goldbach Conjecture.

On the Findagrave page of his sister Mabel Jeanne, we find she was a 25-year member of the Eastern Star, a masonic organization. This also runs in families, indicating Marvin Sr was also Eastern Star. A Pentecostal minister would not be Eastern Star.

Note the upside-down pentagram, which is satanic. Also note the word FATAL.

They admit Jeanne was married, but they hide her husband in all places and she didn't take his last name.

Marvin's second wife was Jan Hunter, but her birth name was Janis Gaillard. She too was connected, since her father was Slim Gaillard, of the famous jazz duo Slim and Slam. Slam was Slam Stewart, or Leroy Elliott Stewart who studied violin and bass at the Boston Conservatory. He later taught at Yale.

Slim Gaillard was also not your normal black musician in the 1930s. He spoke five languages, including Armenian, Arabic, and Greek. Hello, are you awake? He was Army Air Force, so we have that again.

Marvin's first wife was Anna Gordy, sister of Berry Gordy. The strange thing is that she was 17 years older than Marvin, he being 24 and she being 41. You may have thought she was Berry's daughter, but no, she was his sister. They were married 14 years but had only one adopted child, indicating she was too old to conceive, Marvin was gay, or both.

The Gordys come from the white Peter Gordy of Maryland who moved to Georgia in about 1800. His grandson James Gordy had a child with a slave Esther in about 1854, and their son was Berry Gordy I. He married a Lucy Hellum, who they do not bother to list as black or white, but they admit here she is related to many Irish notables including C. S. Lewis and Pierce Brosnan, so probably not black. Their son married Bertha Fuller, who Findagrave lists as black, with two photos. That is still not definitive, as we saw with Kamala Harris, but there it is. The current Berry Gordy looks black, so we will assume these ladies were black. But very connected blacks, as they admit. Berry Gordy I's brother James was the grandfather of President Jimmy Carter. Which makes Berry Gordy and Jimmy Carter second cousins. Which makes Marvin Gaye also closely related to Jimmy Carter by marriage.

So we have to ask how Berry Gordy is related to all those famous Irish people. Wikitree stops the genealogy in Maryland, but FamilySearch is more forthcoming. The Gordys were really Gordons, which explains everything. They come from Arthur Gordon of Straloch, Scotland, whose wife was a Menzies, telling us these are the peerage Gordons, Dukes of Gordon. We also link immediately to the Forbes and Keiths, proving that again. These Gordons of Pitlurg link us the Stewarts, Earls of Atholl, in about 1500. They come from the 4th High Steward of Scotland. We also link to the Douglasses, Grahams, Beauforts, Sinclairs, Sutherlands, and Ogilvies. Moving forward, we hit the Cumings, who you will remember as the Comnenes and Cohens. Through the daughters, these Gordons become Arbuthnots and Carnegies in the 1600s, these Carnegies becoming the Earls of Southesk in the 1800s and marrying the Murrays, Earls of Dunmore. At that time we also link to the Noels and Herberts.

But let's return to the name Pintz. It is the Hungarian equivalent of Pinto, linking us to noble houses in Portugal and Spain, closely related to the Bourbons. It also links us to the Castros, so Gaye may be cousin of Fidel Castro, whom I have already outed as a Marrano from noble lines.

In searching on that, I tripped across something even better and more solid. We just saw that Berry Gordy's grandmother Lucy Hellum was related to a bunch of Irish celebrities. Well, guess what, we find nearly the same list for one of Gay's relatives. That is the Wikitree page of Margaret Anderson, where it says this at the bottom.

Featured connections to Irish notables: Margaret is 25 degrees from C. S. Lewis, 37 degrees from George Best, 32 degrees from Pierce Brosnan, 25 degrees from Catherine Coleman, 30 degrees from Charles Duffy, 32 degrees from Georgie Frost, 26 degrees from Anne, Duchess of Westminster Grosvenor, 28 degrees from Mícheál Ó Coileáin, 26 degrees from Mary Peirce-Evans, 26 degrees from George Bernard Shaw, 28 degrees from Robert Wilson and 31 degrees from William Yeats

Margaret is the mother of Strother Gay, who is the grandfather of Marvin Sr. But wait, let's go back to the Wikitree page for Lucy Hellum:

Featured connections to Irish notables: Lucy is 19 degrees from C. S. Lewis, 31 degrees from George Best, 26 degrees from Pierce Brosnan, 19 degrees from Catherine Coleman, 24 degrees from Charles Duffy, 26 degrees from Georgie Frost, 20 degrees from Anne, Duchess of Westminster Grosvenor, 22 degrees from Mícheál Ó Coileáin, 20 degrees from Mary Peirce-Evans, 20 degrees from George Bernard Shaw, 23 degrees from Robert Wilson and 25 degrees from William Yeats Same list, minus six degrees, proving Marvin Gaye is closely related to Berry Gordy. You will say that is through Marvin's marriage to Berry's sister, but it isn't. They were related before they married. The link between Margaret and Lucy has to be backwards, not forward through Marvin. This was cousins marrying, as usual, helping us explain the 17-year age difference.

Plus, Lucy Hellum's last name is a fudge and they admit that. They admit it may be Helen, Helin, or Hellum. Or? Maybe. . . Heller? Maybe. . . Hiller?

So now you know.
