

Hidden Signs of the Revolution

now in progress

In this old paper from 2015, I exhibited some naive hope that Taylor would realize what a bunch of phoenies she was surrounded by and bow out of her “career”, finding a real life somewhere. As we all know, that hasn't happened. From the picture above, we can see she is turning herself into the same witch as all her cousins, including Katy Perry, Lady Gaga, Miley Cyrus, Billie Eilish, and older ones like Madonna, Barbra Streisand and Bette Midler.

She has been in the news recently for two reasons: one, she is allegedly dating Chiefs player Travis Kelce, which just means he is gay and they are bearding eachother. She has become the most notorious gay beard of all time in her short life, and I am far from the only one claiming it. Her list of past boyfriends is a who's who of closeted gays. When they told Kelce they were setting him up with Swift, he should have said, “No thanks! Too obvious. You might as well set me up with Dylan Mulvaney. I want people to not think I am gay, remember?”

But today she was in the news for something more substantial: her label Universal is slashing hundreds of jobs due to poor sales. That article tries to pass it off as something to do with Biden's economy, but that is obviously misdirection. I see it rather as proof of the revolution in progress, as well as of the promoted fraud that is her popularity. Like everything else, it is mostly manufactured.

Yes, Taylor is popular with some segment of teenaged girls, but as I have been saying for years, her numbers are massaged by huge margins, including her numbers at Youtube and her sales numbers. If her sales numbers were anything like what we are being told, Universal would be swimming in money.

They should be hiring hand over fist and building new buildings and expanding furiously. But they aren't, indicating the whole Swift thing is a mirage.

I believe the Swift thing is a mirage in one way: she isn't really writing or singing those songs. On stage, it is all lip-synching, which is apparently no longer frowned upon. The days of Milli Vanilli getting mobbed for it are in the distant past. And on the albums it is all autotuning, if not worse. The voice we hear is so machined we can't tell who is actually singing it, or if anyone is. It could be Siri or Alexa singing it for all we know. It can't be Taylor, since she has been caught off a corrected mic and she is tone deaf. If she had to sing anything live without correction it would be a bloodbath. But that is true of all these famous people.

I accidentally heard a song of hers on the radio the other day and was appalled by how fake it sounded. This is basically AI music, folks. Built by machines from the ground up, with Taylor just being the pretty face fronting it. Same with the songwriting, which is so impersonal, cliché, and robotic, it could have been written by anyone, or no one. My guess is no one. There isn't even a committee writing this crap. It is just spit out by computers toying with recombinations.

Same for TV, Hollywood, “fine” art, poetry, novels, and theoretical science. Human creativity has flatlined and they are just begging the computers for new product.

But back to the revolution. It isn't just Universal that is tanking, it is the entire economy, and it isn't Biden's fault. Yes, DEI is bad for business, but that isn't the fundamental driving force of this collapse. You are supposed to believe that people aren't buying because they don't have any disposable income, but that isn't it. They aren't buying because they are boycotting the entire system, just as I have been suggesting they do for years. Millions of people are going off the grid for good, and by that I don't just mean they are homeschooling or gardening. I mean they are disconnecting in every way they can from the Phoenician predatory economy of disease, waste, and death, also giving up on hospitals, doctors, junk food, TV, Hollywood, gigantic cars and trucks, banks, and the entire interconnected system of spoilage.

In that Taylor Swift article, they admit that all sectors of the economy are quickly shrinking, including Silicon Valley, Wall Street, the big banks, Disney, and even Amazon. And in other articles over the past months, we have seen that the States and Feds are also having to downsize, due to shrinking revenues. Why are revenues down double digits at all levels? Again, they tell you it is due to the economy, but that is only a part of it. The drops are so precipitous it can only be a sign of a silent tax revolt. People have had it and are simply refusing to support the regime anymore. Those whose income taxes aren't automatically taken and whose wages are difficult to garnish are just disconnecting from the feeding trough in any way they can. Many are quitting their jobs, hiding assets, and moving out of the country. Not to mention those who have been killed by the vaccines: they aren't paying any taxes now.

That is the real reason the IRS is being expanded. They have to up the levels of fear and coercion, to try to stop the revolution in its tracks at this most fundamental level. Like everything else it won't work, since it will just piss off the citizenry all the more. People are very angry right now, but rather than look at the very good reasons for that anger, and trying to mitigate it, the Phoenicians are instead pushing forward with their Mordor plans. As we know, these people have no ability to admit to a mistake and to immediately reverse course, although that is their only hope.

And in other news, we are hearing a lot about Houthis these days. What are Houthis? They are allegedly a militant revolutionary group of Shia Muslims in Yemen who arose in the 1990s, pushing back against US involvement in the area. They are named for their leader Hussein Badr al-Houthi, allegedly killed in action in 2004.

In other words, another fake group manufactured by the CIA, like Hezbollah, PLO, ISIS, and Hamas. We can tell just from Houthi's name and photo. That photo is computer generated, so if this guy was real at all he was probably a cousin of Barack Hussein Obama and Ruth Bader Ginsberg. They admit he was closely tied to Ali Hosseini Khamenei of Iran, another CIA stooge Jew-in-a-Turban.

Funny, isn't it, that Yemen is fronted by the Phoenix, just like the US?

There are revolutionary forces in Yemen, since the local people don't like being run by the Phoenicians and never have. But you don't hear about these real groups, you only hear about the controlled opposition groups the CIA sets up to act as fake revolutionaries, so that they can be in full control of the blackwash. Same as here, with our fake Antifa flibbers, Proud Boys, BLM goons, and neo-Nazi actors.

But these revolutionaries in Yemen don't have the tech to be attacking big ships in the Red Sea or to be taking on the Saudi, Israeli, or US military. They have been marginalized and driven underground by decades of local tyranny, not to speak of all the fake wars going on over there. Just as we are kept off the streets by our fake riots and such, they are kept in check by all the war theater.

Obviously, these Houthi attacks are being staged (or simply reported without even bothering to stage them) in order to appear to interfere with shipping in the area, so that prices can be driven up. The same thing we have been seeing for years in various staged incidents all over the world, including all the Evergreen theater, with container ships sideways in the Panama Canal, manufactured backups in So. Cal and other ports, fake livestock deaths, and so on.

I will be told the Houthis are funded and supplied from Iran, but that is all the usual feint. We have always owned Iran, they and their leaders being our propped-up opposition in the area. We are supposed to believe that Yemen, like Iran, had an anti-West revolution in the recent past, but that is all a fantasy. As usual, it was done for the locals, to make them think the bad old Phoenicians had packed up and gone home to England or the US or wherever, when they never had. We just installed new puppets in better local costumes and everything went on as before.

You will say, "If that is true, why don't we just promote peace in the Middle East? Wouldn't that be the best way to calm down the Natives?" It would, but it doesn't happen to fit our portfolio in the region, which is written by defense contractors. Without manufactured wars all over the world, how would these guys maintain their obscene profits? With a trillion-dollar a year "defense" budget, we have a war economy, which requires constant war: if the wars don't materialize on their own, they can be faked, and are being faked. Have been for a long long time. Taxpayers only agree to those levels of defense spending if they see some results: big televised wars like the Gulf Wars, where they can watch missile strikes and cheer as thousands of innocent children are (allegedly) murdered in their beds. Shock and awe, you know.

Now that we know the missile strikes were on abandoned and condemned buildings and that no one was killed, are you relieved or disappointed? Be honest. As with the serial killers, I find that many, perhaps most, are not relieved to find it all fake. They seem to be offended. Some appear to want their money back. . . which is why I guess some of them are withholding taxes. Taxes for real wars, with lakes of blood and rivers of fire, was understandable; but taxes for fake wars? That's going too far!

And in still other fake news, we see today this article from Jim Hoft at the Gateway Pundit, where the FAA is recruiting the blind, deaf, epileptic, psychotic, and mentally retarded. I am not saying Hoft faked this piece, I am saying the FAA did. Or, they didn't fake it, but they released or leaked this ridiculous DEI initiative on purpose, in order to scare you away from flying. The fact that it comes right on the heels of the Alaska Airlines theater, where the door allegedly blew off in mid-flight, confirms that is what is going on here. A reader wrote in to tell me the Alaska Airlines event was probably an insider investment strategy, with top execs faking the event to temporarily tank prices while they bought low. I told him that was a good guess, but this news today tends to indicate I was right initially. Yes, they may be piggybacking some insider trading on this news, but I think the main point of it is to kill air travel for the Gentiles. We know they were already planning that, since they have said so in their Bilderberger manifestoes and such. And they also tacked that on to their Covid response, as part of their keeping you off the streets and as far as possible away from “moving freely about the country”. Remember that old tag from Southwest Airlines? Seems like ancient history now. You are now free to move about your tiny house . . . but you would be best hiding under the bed when not otherwise engaged. You know, in case of nuclear war or inclement weather.
