

HOW KATHERINE MAHER

destroys the credibility of everything she touches

by Miles Mathis

First published November 25, 2024

Katherine Maher is the current head of NPR, being the previous head of Wikipedia and various other government fronts. You may know her as the lady who said “the truth is a distraction from getting things done” and “the First Amendment is the number one challenge” in the way of battling disinformation and “a little bit tricky” getting around in the process of censorship. Yeah, she likes to say things like that at TED or the Atlantic Council or Tyranny Inc. I guess you can't really blame her, since she is always reading from an earpiece when she says stuff like that, indicating it is all scripted by the CIA, but still.

She has been getting roasted this year from the right, and has been dodging Congress now for many months, but her comeuppance is upcoming. We can be sure the fall won't be far (in the short term), but they need to get her out of the limelight for the rest of her life, so they will move her to the Aspen Institute or something and keep her off the stage from now on. She has lost her looks so most of her use to the Phoenicians is gone anyway.

But that isn't why I am here. I only chime in when I have something to say that no one else is. The critiques of her I have seen are somewhat cutting, but as usual they miss the main lines. So I will show you some of the subfloors of this rabbithole. We have to start with her bio for that, which doesn't hide it very well—all the more reason to find it strange no one else has discovered it. Her parents Gordon Roberts Maher and Catherine Cecilia Queeney are also bigwigs, though not as big as Katherine. Gordon was a big finance guy in New York City, though Wikipedia scrubs him beyond that. We find elsewhere that his father James Joseph Maher, Sr., was an international IBM exec and post-war spy in France. Mother was Marcia (Mickey) Roberts. Gordon's brother married a Greiss and his sister married a Steinhardt. Gordon himself was with Goldman Sachs and later UBS (Bank of Switzerland, of course), where he specialized in tankers (very large ships, you know, linking us again to Phoenician Navy). He died of alcoholism. Ceci Queeney (also a Kirby through her mother) came out of Columbia University to work at Lord&Taylor, but was later on the board of Sandy Hook Promise, pegging her as CIA or similar.

Steve Sailer at UNZ tries to convince us that although Bill Maher is Jewish, the name Maher is Irish and Katherine Maher is Irish. But it isn't and she isn't. She is Jewish. She would have never been allowed the career she had if she weren't Jewish/Phoenician. Don't let her blonde hair fool you, it is peroxide. Remember, Bill Maher's father's middle name is Aloysius. That definitely isn't Irish, as I have proved before. The Irish name Maher was originally Meagher, but the Jewish name Maher is a fudge of Mahler or Mayer, to make it look Irish. See the composer Gustav Mahler, admitted to be Jewish. But if you don't believe that, we can hit it from Katherine's mother's side, since the Jewish line is determined in that direction anyway. Ceci Queeney's sister married a McKeown. McKeown=McKohen. This sister married a cousin, since Queeney and McKeown come from the same name. The Queeney's come from Isle of Skye, and the name is a variation of McQueen, McQueon and McKeown. You may think that makes them Scottish, but it doesn't, or not ultimately. Like Isle of Man, Isle of Skye was conquered by Vikings, ie Phoenician Navy. The Queeney's are closely related to the MacDonalds, who are closely related to the Stanleys of Isle of Man. Also remember that the founder of Monsanto was a Queeney, so these are not nice people. Ceci's Queeney's come from Boston, where they were related to the Robinsons, who were Fishers (see Rhoda Fisher there). This also links us to the Eastmans and Hubbards we have hit many times before.

Ceci Maher's father was John Hart Queeney. Her mother was Rosalie Kirby. This is just more proof these families are crypto-Jews, since they probably come from the Kirbys of the peerage, who are closely related to the Maitlands and Stuarts. To get the kind of promotion Katherine Maher has gotten, we would expect her to be a Stuart. These Kirbys were originally Goldsmiths.

That guy married Beatrice Schneider, whose stepmother was Augusta Smith of the Smith bankers of Isle of Man and Nottingham. His son married a Maitland whose mother was a MacDonald, whose father was 20th Chief of Keppoch. We just saw the MacDonalds, didn't we? So we just completed another circle.

Also strange is that Katherine's mother is Catherine and her aunt or great-aunt is Cathryn Maher. That indicates someone has changed a spelling. Why would Catherine name her daughter Katherine? She went by Ceci, so she obviously didn't like the name, so why would she give it to her daughter by any spelling? It makes no sense.

But let's move on. After highschool, Katherine Maher entered a two-year program at the American University of Cairo, allegedly to learn Arabic. She also attended the French Institute of the Near East in Syria. She then finished her undergraduate degree at New York University in Islamic Studies. All those places are CIA fronts. Strange, since she never did anything with that degree or with her Arabic language. But it already looks like she was recruited right out of highschool by the CIA, possibly for her looks. She had a pretty face and thick hair that accepted well the peroxide. They immediately placed her at UNICEF, another known CIA-front (but what isn't these days?). After three years there, they moved her up to NDI, another known spook front, back-funded by Soros and other billionaire Jews. I am not blowing any cover there, since they admit it at Wikipedia. By age 28, Maher was already at the World Bank, supposedly working as an ICT specialist, but again probably just a talking head chosen for her looks. At age 30 they placed her at Access Now in DC, where she was supposed to be fighting internet censorship. You have to laugh. That's what my title means, you know. At Access Now she was ostensibly lobbying for the people and against Big Tech and the Machine, but in most other places she worked she was doing the opposite. Which tells us Access Now is not what they tell you it is. It was founded by the Jewish Brett Solomon to pretend to lobby for a free internet while doing the precise opposite. Note that Access Now has supported the use of encryption to guarantee privacy and prevent spying, since we are about to hit that again.

Just a year later, at age 31, Maher was hired as CCO and then CEO of Wikimedia. What qualifications did this young woman have for that, you may ask? Same qualifications she had for the rest of this: she looked good reading from an earpiece. But since Wikimedia was created to control access to information on the internet, that should have conflicted mightily with her previous job description at Access Now. Nobody noticed.

Maher left Wikimedia in 2021 to join the State Department, which soon moved her to Chair the Signal Foundation, another CIA front like Access Now. Signal claims to promote secure and open global communication, mainly through advanced encryption. It was founded by the ridiculous Moxie Marlinspike, real name Matthew Rosenfeld, Jewish of course. What sort of person renames himself Moxie Marlinspike?

A former head of the security team at Twitter, I guess. It is meant to be his surfing name, I take it, but it sounds more like the name of a drag queen or gay pornstar. The presence of both Rosenfeld and Maher once again signals us that Signal Protocol must be doing the opposite of what it claims to do, pretending to provide security while creating fake encryption and leaving giant holes CIA can drive through in a second. But again, no one but me can read that riddle.

The only way this agent Maher could go any more transparent was to move to NPR, where she continued to drive that into the ground. If you have listened to it recently, you know it has devolved into the gayest, wokest, most partisan propaganda font it is possible to imagine, and I say that as a liberal myself. That's not my liberal, thank you very much. I have nothing against gays, but I don't need to have them sold to me 24/7 as some superior species. Same for women or people of color. NPR is not in any way National Public Radio, since it is funded by the same billionaire Jews that fund everything else, which isn't national. It represents about 3% of the country, which again isn't national. It openly lobbies for censorship and runs poorly disguised Pfizer ads about once a hour, which isn't national. Trump and Musk are talking about shutting it down, but since they are also billionaire Jews, I don't see that happening. Maybe they will replace the gay Pfizer promotion with more promotion of Israel, SpaceX fake launches, WWE, and McDonalds.

But seriously, even that won't happen, since it is illegal for NPR to be run out of the White House. That would be partisan, hahah. NPR can't be run out of the White House, it has to be run out of the Aspen Institute, the Rockefeller Foundation, the Gates Foundation, and Pfizer headquarters, to guarantee its objectivity. That's the science, man.