

BOB MARLEY

and a whole lot more

by Colm

9th June 2026

Miles your editor here to start. Colm wrote me and asked me to do Bob Marley. I told him I didn't know anything about Marley and didn't really care, so I encouraged him to do the paper himself. Well, he came up with a book instead of a paper, and it took a lot of editing to get it into this shape. I am publishing it in two parts, so as not to wear you out. If you don't care much about genealogy or the history of Scotland or Ireland or Jamaica, this may not be for you, but of course you can always skip ahead. Bob makes his first heavy appearance on page 24, but part 2 is all about him. Although it is a chore, it is packed with information, so I couldn't not publish it. It pulls a lot of things together and will be a great resource in future.

To understand project Bob Marley, I have to start off this paper a few years before he caught that fire and signed to Island Records. I want to present three Jamaicans who had an integral role in politics and the Jamaican music industry. I'm going to give a brief look into their genealogies and I am going to show you some red flags I came across as a Mathis reader. First up,

Norman Washington Manley

That's Norman, Jamaica's first and only Premier with his wife Edna Swithenbank. Edna was also his first cousin, already telling you where we're at.. They had two sons, Douglas and Michael Manley, the fourth Prime Minister of Jamaica, pictured with Bob Marley and Edward Seaga at the top of this paper. Edna Swithenbank's father Harvey Swithenbank is scrubbed on WikiTree and Geni but over on ancestry.com they give us a clue by telling us he was born in Yorkshire. They get his wife wrong, telling us his wife was Martha Matilda Elliot Shearer when it was really her sister Ellie Swithenbank (nee Shearer), but they do tell us his mother was a Gibson which will come up later in this paper.

Over at ThePeerage.com we get two listed Swithenbanks, Oliver Swithenbank and his daughter May. May married a Gamble, think Dominic Jacotin Gamble, Deputy Governor of Barbados & temporary Governor of Jamaica in 1883. Oliver Swithenbank held the office of Justice of the Peace and lived in Leeds, Yorkshire.

MyHeritage.com tells us that Harvey and Oliver are brothers. It also tells us that Oliver married a Louisa Fawcett. We saw in Miles' Michael Douglas paper that Viggo Mortensen is a Gamble and a Fawcett through his mother, so Viggo looks to be a close relation of Edna Manley though I'm not going to get bogged down to determine exactly how, this is not the focal point of this paper, though I still find it interesting nonetheless.

Now to look at Norman. His whole name is a red flag. Past his paternal grandfather Samuel Manley is scrubbed on the usual sites but they do tell us that like the Swithenbanks he also hailed from Yorkshire where he was a merchant. Over on ThePeerage we get 68 Manleys. While Norman isn't listed, his son Michael and granddaughter Rachel are.

On ThePeerage I stumbled across a Mary Manley (born abt. 1775) who married a James Balfour Wemyss, they lived at Wemyss Hall in Fife, Scotland, and link all the way back to Constantine, Earl of Fife, Magnus Judex of Scotia. What I found interesting is that Mary Manley's daughter Mary Elizabeth Wemyss died in Yorkshire, so I think it's safe to say that Norman's grandfather Samuel was of this stock.

Mary Elizabeth Wemyss married a Sir William Henry Feilden, 2nd Baronet, his mother Mary Haughton Jackson is a granddaughter of Colonel Montague James. These names Wemyss & Haughton James will come up later on when we look at the Miss Jamaica competitions, two winners of which, Cindy Breakspere & Esther Anderson, both Jewish, were lovers of Bob Marley. Interesting to note that Feilden, 2nd Baronet, also held the office of Justice of the Peace in Yorkshire.

Mary Manley's father Henry hailed from Devon. Mary's daughter Henrietta Balfour Wemyss has a marble plaque inside St. Andrews Church in Halberton, Devon, cementing the link between the Scottish Wemyss & Devonshire Manleys. It got me thinking about Miles' favourite poet Gerard Manley Hopkins, see his grandmother Ann Manley was also from Devon. I think she is of this stock.

Given all this talk of Devon and Manleys in the 18th century, I have to bring up the naval officer John Manley who was born in Devon in 1733. John Manley served as Commodore in George Washington's fleet during the American Revolutionary War. John Manley went by the name John Russell as he told people he was the illegitimate son of Elizabeth Manley and the Duke of Bedford. Wiki doesn't clarify if he thought his dad was Wriothsesly the 3rd Duke or John Russell the 4th Duke but my gut tells me it's John, more on the Russells later.

On the ThreeDecks page for John Manley we find that he had a brother named Isaac George Manley, note that it clearly states Isaac's parents but there are no parents listed on John's page, strange. Is this to keep the narrative alive that John is the illegitimate child of the Duke of Bedford? Still doesn't explain how they would be brothers if Three Decks says Isaac's mother was an Ann Hammond and Wikipedia says that John Manley's mother was called Elizabeth Manley. Isaac was the last survivor of the crew who sailed with Captain Cook, during his first voyage round the world. He was later Vice Admiral of the Blue, one of the top spots in the Phoenician Navy. What interests me about Isaac is his beautiful home in Oxfordshire, known as Braziers Park. It was the childhood home of spook author Ian Fleming, who we will meet later on in this paper.

Next we will look at Norman's mother's side, his grandmother Ann Margaret "Elsie" Taylor (born 1831), firstly married Robert Clarke, the son of an unknown Carr from Co. Clare in Ireland. Elsie and Robert had a son Robert Constantine Clarke, the father of Sir William Alexander Clarke Bustamante, the first Prime Minister of Jamaica, making Manley and Bustamante first cousins.

Ann Margaret Clarke went on to marry Alexander Shearer, Geni says he was born in Banff, Scotland. Any Shearers we find on ThePeerage in Scotland are a bit further up across Sinclair's Bay in Caithness. On WikiTree it says Alexander Shearer is from Ireland, more added confusion. Unable to find more info on Shearer, I hit a roadblock. My intuition was telling me that the third Prime Minister of Jamaica Hugh Lawson Shearer is also closely related to Bustamante & Manley but he is well scrubbed. Except, WikiTree does let us know that Hugh Shearer's mother was an Esther Lindo linking him to Chris Blackwell who is also a Lindo.

This roadblock prompted me to open up this Gentry Capitalism book for some fresh ideas. It follows another family, the Lascelles (read Andrew Holness) and how they dominated commerce in the West Indies for nearly 300 years. You may remember Tommy Lascelles was a famous fixer for the Royals in the 20th century. Now, the book did come out of Cambridge University Press and an Ogilvie was on the book's editorial board so information here is to be taken with a grain of salt. However, this book intrigued me as not only does it have a section on Lascelles and the Maxwells like Edward Seaga, it also has a section on the Gedney Clarks. Knowing that Bustamante and Manley came from Clarks, I said I would look up the name Gedney Clarke. This Gedney Clarke fellow is an interesting sort, he tried to stop a slave revolt in Barbice in 1763 with the help of his friends The Lord Rodney & James Douglas, 1st Baronet, he's well connected. Before moving to Barbados in 1733, Gedney Clarke was from Salem, Mass. As a Mathis reader this set off some alarm bells, since it was from that time.

Looking into Gedney Clarke's genealogy we come across his mother Deborah Clarke \(Gedney\). Her father Bartholemew Gedney was a judge for the Salem Witch Trials, major red flag. Gedney Clarke had a sister also named Deborah, she married Col. William Fairfax, Esq. Chief Justice of the Bahamas. Deborah Fairfax was mother of Bryan Clark Fairfax, 8th Lord Fairfax of Cameron and Hannah Fairfax. Hannah married Warner Washington, first cousin of president George Washington. This Hannah Washington had a daughter named Catherine who married a Nelson, think Horatio Nelson.

Hannah Washington Fairfax had a half sister named Anne Lee born a year earlier. Anne married Lawrence Washington, brother of George Washington. Fairfax County in Virginia (where Mount Vernon is) is named after Thomas Fairfax, 6th Lord Fairfax of Cameron where he owned over 5 million acres. So anyway, that's where he got the Washington from.

So why have we spent the last two pages fleshing out the origins of this geezer Norman Washington Manley? Isn't this a bleedin paper on a Jew named Bob Marley who faked his own death? See, Manley is known as the father of Jamaican independence and it is important that you know who he is before introducing any other characters into this Phoenician play. Like fellow fake revolutionaries Michael Collins of Ireland and Mahatma Gandhi of India, Manley of Jamaica left his colonial outpost and travelled to the heart of the empire to study law in England. If you have been paying attention, you will realise none of these nations ever had any independence from the British Empire. So Manley went to Oxford on Cecil Rhodes' dime and returned to Jamaica to embark on a life in politics.

In 1959, the same year Chris Blackwell founded Island Records, Norman Manley founded the Jamaican Broadcasting Corporation. According to the JBC wiki, when Michael Manley became Prime Minister in 1972 he wanted to use it as a vehicle for nation building. Of course, using it as a propaganda tool against the people of Jamaica was always the goal from the start.

Before we move onto our next political figure, would you like to see some more proof that Norman Washington Manley is Jewish? His granddaughter Rachel Manley, who works in broadcasting, is currently married to her third husband, a "Barbadian" broadcaster called Israel Cinman. She firstly married George Albert Harley de Vere Drummond, a godson of King George VI.

Drummond and Manley had a son together, George Manley de Vere Drummond, his half brother is Sir Matthew Vaughan. Vaughan's wife Claudia Schiffer was just at a banquet hosted by King Charles III, whom she sat two seats down from. The company these people keep. You don't need me to tell you they're all related if you've been reading Miles long enough. You'll still find Manleys enmeshed with British Royalty today, see Dame Charlotte Manley, private secretary to Prince Andrew.

Side note: Robert Constantine Clarke's wife Mary Clarke (nee Wilson) also married a George Dalton Aitchison. I find this interesting as Robert Constantine Clarke's brother Henry Clarke was the popular calypso singer Harry Belafonte's great-grandfather. Now Henry Clarke's grandson/Belafonte's uncle Lendon Loyd Love married a Mabel Aitchison. 103 Aitchisons in ThePeerage, something to investigate further.

Also Miles, in your Fidel Castro paper, you were looking for links between Belafonte and Castro, another may be Michael Manley who was a fellow actor on the world stage with Castro.

There's Manley on the left & Castro on the right. In the middle you have Maurice Bishop, who was Prime Minister of Grenada, he looks a lot like Jerry Rawlings, former President of Ghana, & Kurt Waldheim, Secretary General of the Jew-knighted Nations.

Next up,

Edward Seaga

Do you see the goblin on the left? That's Edward Seaga, 5th Prime Minister of Jamaica with Hugh Lawson Shearer, the 3rd Prime Minister, & Michael Manley, the 4th Prime Minister. Looks like they're having a grand old time doesn't it? You would expect the prime ministers of Jamaica to be black, but only one of them is there.

Before embarking on a life in politics Seaga studied anthropology at Harvard, graduating in 1952. Edward wouldn't affectionately be given the name CIAga until decades later but I think it's safe to say he was recruited here because of his pedigree. Upon his return to Jamaica Seaga set up the West Indies Records Limited record label, his first assignment for the agency. Influencing and subverting the culture of nations, you know how these Jews do. After building it up to be the most successful record label in the West Indies (woopty doo) he sold WIRL to Byron Lee who renamed it to Dynamic Sounds. After the music business, Seaga went into politics where he was very successful, becoming Prime Minister of Jamaica from 1980 to 1989. He was also the leader of the Jamaican Labour Party from 1974 to 2005. When you look into Mr Seaga's genealogy you get all the answers you need as to how he rose to the highest political office in Jamaica. Let's take a look shall we?

I didn't find much on Seaga's father's side other than they seem to be Lebanese Jews, scrubbed on the usual sites, that didn't stop me looking into him. I found his maternal lineage to be much more fascinating, which I'm sure you will too. His grandfather was George Maxwell and his grandmother was Elizabeth Campbell. Elizabeth Campbell's mother was Elizabeth Heron.

This makes Edward Seaga related to Mr Revolution-Will-Not-Be-Televised Gil Scott-Heron. These Herons trace all the way back to Sir John Heron (1470 - 1523) who had fancy titles such as Treasurer of the Chamber under Henry VII and Henry VIII and Chamberlain of the Exchequer, roles he held for decades. William Heron's paternal grandmother was Abigail Heron (nee Heveningham), her mother was Barbara Villiers, the Royal Mistress of King Charles II, the uncrowned Queen of England.

Back to William, his mother Mary McGeoch Heron was the daughter of Jean Sutherland, Jean was the daughter of Jean Wemyss (linking us to Balfour's & Sinclair's) and George Gordon the 15th Earl of Sutherland (linking us back to Drummonds, Sinclairs, Stewarts & Leslies). The Earls of Sutherland later on link us to the Dukes of Sutherland through Elizabeth Gordon Leveson-Gower, Duchess of Sutherland. Elizabeth's son George Sutherland-Leveson-Gower, the 2nd Duke of Sutherland was father to Elizabeth Campbell, who married George Campbell, the 8th Duke of Argyll. The 2nd Duke was also father to Catherine FitzGerald, who married Charles FitzGerald, the 4th Duke of Leinster. He was also father to Constance Grosvenor, who married Hugh Grosvenor, the 1st Duke of Westminster. I could go on but you get the picture. These Gordons are right at the top of The Peerage and link to the whole Phoenician gamut.

Jean Wemyss' first cousin through her uncle John was Robert Balfour, 4th Lord Balfour of Burleigh, he had a daughter named Mary, she married Brigadier General Alexander Bruce \(b. - 1747\), 7th Lord of Kennet and took his name. Through marriage this connects Edward Seaga to Robert The Bruce. If you look at the 9th Lord of Kennet Alexander Bruce he married an unknown Blackburn, daughter of a Hugh Blackburn, both scrubbed on Geni and The Peerage. It's a shame because I always thought Jamaica's last Governor General Kenneth Blackburne has a bit of a resemblance to Edward Seaga and I would've liked to have determined their exact relationship.

EDWARD SEAGA

KENNETH BLACKBURNE

This Lord of Kennet had a grandson named Alexander Hugh Bruce, 6th Lord Balfour of Burleigh. He was Secretary for Scotland and Governor of the Bank of Scotland. He married Lady Katherine Eliza Gordon, daughter of the 5th Earl of Aberdeen and granddaughter of George Hamilton Gordon, Prime Minister of the United Kingdom from 1852 - 1855. So, with Seaga being related to the Gordons, Earls of Sutherland and the Gordons, Earls of Aberdeen, through marriage it got me thinking about Gordon House, the Jamaican Parliament. It's named after George William Gordon (1820-1865) and the story goes that he was a Jamaican businessman and politician who was a leading critic of the policies of the Governor of Jamaica Edward Eyre, a descendant of Oliver Cromwell. On Eyre's orders, he was executed after the Morant Bay rebellion. Reads like another fake to me. Why do I say that? Well, not only was George William Gordon's mother a Rattray but his father's Gordon lineage traces all the way back to the Lairds of Gordon, he was a made man. Governor of Jamaica Edward Eyre who supposedly ordered his execution then allowed his daughter Ada Austen Eyre to marry Alexander Hamilton Gordon who can also trace his lineage back to the Lairds of Gordon. Make that make sense? So your relative is executed and you marry the daughter of the guy who gave the green light? From the Governor's perspective it makes no sense either. They were in cahoots.

This Hamilton Gordon that Ada Austen Eyre married has a fairly interesting lineage too. His grandfather Alexander had a sister, Ann Pottinger. She was the mother of Sir Henry Pottinger, the 1st Governor of Hong Kong and Dame Isabella Curwen Smith who married General Sir Lionel Smith, another Governor of Jamaica who inherited his role from Howe Peter Browne, Marquess of Sligo. Ann Pottinger was also the great grandmother of Sir John Thompson, the Prime Minister of Canada.

Back to George William Gordon, he has two profiles over at Geni, I believe there is an attempt here at scrubbing his family tree. He has this official looking profile with bio included and lists a whole bunch of siblings, then you have this profile for him listing the same parents but this time only one sibling, Catherine Watson. Not sure where she got the name Watson, Geni says she married a Cornelius Gordon. This could link us to the Jamaican Watsons in Kamala Harris' lineage. One of Cornelius & Catherine's daughters Elfleda married Abraham Nathaniel Aitcheson, the half brother of Prime Minister Bustamante Clarke. One of Elfleda and Abrahams sons Stanley Livingston Aitcheson married a Rehena Malcolm, which may lead back to Bob Marley's maternal lineage.

Rosanna Rosa Lindo Lawson Gordon from tree Elisha Everett Family Tree

Birth	[Redacted]	Father	[Redacted] (Born 1830)
Marriage	[Redacted]	Mother	[Redacted] (1808-)
Death	[Redacted]	Spouse	Cornelius Augustus Gordon (1863-)

15825 People 3 Records 13 Sources

Cornelius Augustus Gordon
FamilySearch Family Tree

Birth	1863 - [Redacted]
Death	[Redacted] 1932 - [Redacted]
Parents	[Redacted]
Spouses	Rosanna Lindo and [Redacted]
Children	Elfleda Augusta Aitcheson and names of 10 more children
Siblings	Dougal Alexander Gordon and [Redacted]

Rosanna Lawson

Birth	Abt. 1868 - Not Available
Death	Not Available - Not Available
Mother	Not Available
Father	Richard Linds

Show more v

Parents: Richard Linds (Unknown - Unknown)

Spouse(s): Cornelius Augustus Gordon (Unknown - Unknown)

Over on Elfleda Augusta Gordon's ancestry.com Profile it tells us her father's full name was Cornelius Augustus Gordon. On a search for Cornelius I stumbled across the profile of Joseph Lindo Gordon which lists Cornelius as his father and a Rosanna Lawson as his mother. Could she be of the same stock as Prime Minister Hugh Lawson Shearer? Past Shearer's grandfather Frederick Lindo is scrubbed on the usual sites, I suspect Frederick's father or uncle is Richard Lindo, Rosanna's father in the screenshot below. You can see here on the Lindo family wiki under the heading Prominent Descendants of Isaac Lindo that both Blackwell and Hugh Shearer are listed, I think Rosanna Lawson is that link between the two. This links Hugh Lawson, Edward Seaga & possibly all of the others to Chris Blackwell, the King of Jamaica, coming up in the next section.

Finishing up this part of the paper on Edward Seaga, the Phoenician who delivered the eulogy at the state sponsored charade that was Bob Marley's "funeral" I want to show you this photo:

That's Seaga with Jamaican billionaire Michael Lee-Chin. Lee-Chin first came up on my radar when I went down the rabbit hole of what happened to the Bob Marley estate after his alleged death. I found out that the Mutual Security Merchant Bank of Jamaica considered the house of Marley's mother Cedella Booker to be part of the estate that was at the time in the middle of a legal dispute and they wanted it. Pretty cold. A few years later the Mutual Security Merchant Bank of Jamaica merged with the NCB Financial Group Limited. Michael Lee-Chin's Portland Holdings bought a 75% stake in NCB a few years after the merger. He went on to set up offices in Hamilton, Ontario & Hamilton, Bermuda. Would you like to take a guess at what his wife's name is? Sonya Hamilton. Without even looking into her genealogy I bet she can trace her roots back to Scotland, they really are everywhere & as Mathis proclaimed in his Tim Ferriss paper, THEY LIVE. I wonder do these Hamiltons pay tribute back to the Duke of Abercorn or Duke of Hamilton or have the Families "gone legit" like the Corleone family in the Godfather Part 3 consolidating all of their wealth into the BlackRocks, Vanguards & State Streets of the world? What is also curious is Lee-Chin's name, being a Mathis reader all I see is Lee(vi)-Cohin and sure enough, the CFO at NCB is a Dennis Cohen. Yes, they're everywhere.

Chris Blackwell

Christopher Percy Gordon Blackwell, this is a very interesting man folks, let's get into it. Going to look into his origin story first. He starts off his book The Islander with an ace and an eight right off the bat to signal to his spook mates that we're in for a load of hogwash. He even comes clean and admits that one of his favourite stories to recite has been hyperbolic bollox, letting you know ahead of time that if you believe this liar, it's on you.

–PROLOGUE–

NEARLY THE END...

I was eighteen years old when a Rastaman saved my life.

I have sometimes embroidered the first part of this story to make me look a little less stupid and give the narrative a dramatic boost. I've said that I was out to sea in a tiny sailboat, all by myself. That I got caught in a violent storm. That I thought I wasn't going to make it. That the mast was struck by lightning and the boat had split, and I was holding on to a charred piece of the splintered hull and eventually was thrown up against some rocks along a barren stretch of isolated coast, whereupon I was knocked unconscious.

The truth is a little more prosaic. I wasn't on my own. It wasn't a sailboat. I was out in a motorboat with a male friend

At the age of 18 in 1955, fresh out of Harrow, Chris Blackwell became the personal assistant to Hugh Mackintosh Foot, Baron Caradon, the last Governor of Jamaica, a fitting role when you consider who Blackwell's ancestors are. I suspect Blackwell & Foot are related, see Sarah Alexander Foote Blackwell over at FindAGrave. While working at Kings House on Hope Road Blackwell would become acquainted with the likes of Norman Manley & Alexander Bustamante Clarke.

Blackwell comes from the Blackwells of Crosse and Blackwell, a big food brand in the UK later bought by Nestle. His mother was the even richer Blanche Lindo Blackwell, a famous heiress, the daughter of banker Percival Henriques Lindo, admitted to be Jewish. The name Henriques links him to the Castros, Coelhos, and Souzas, since they were all Portuguese Jews. His father was Frederich Manahem Lindo:

His grandfather Alexandre Lindo was an even bigger banker, who once had France on the line for £560,000, which would be about $50 million now. We are told France defaulted on that, but more likely they gave them secret control of some French Caribbean islands. Although the English owned Jamaica, it may be that the Lindos were given interests there as well for that debt. Chris Blackwell's mother Blanche became the inspiration for Ian Fleming's ladies, including Pussy Galore and Honeychile Ryder. One of these Lindos was even a bandmate of Marley, his keyboardist Earl Wya Lindo. He was black, but of course his parents aren't given to hide this. Wikipedia has a page for him but conveniently and conspicuously slurs right past this.

Blackwell's career path looks similar to spook author Ian Fleming, his mother Blanche's boyfriend. Fleming was first recruited by the Director of Naval Intelligence Rear Admiral John Godfrey to become his personal assistant, showing Fleming the ropes before letting him off the leash to work on other projects, like helping to start the CIA. Fleming was first in Jamaica in 1942 at an Anglo American Intelligence Conference and moved there three years later, buying the land where his home Goldeneye was built off of Blackwell's uncle Roy Lindo.

You may recall that the first James Bond film Dr No was released in 1962, the same year of Jamaica's fake independence from the United Kingdom. Blackwell worked as a location scout on the film, that's where the photo at the top of this page is from. Fair play to Chris, he hooked up his buddy Byron Lee with a gig on screen, yes, that Byron Lee who bought Edward Seaga's record label.

When Blackwell wasn't busy working with Hugh Foot, doing a bit of location scouting or running jukeboxes up and down the island, he was teaching people how to jet ski at the Half Moon Hotel owned by Curtis and Esther Steuart. This is where he discovered Lancelot Stuart Hayward and recorded the first record for Island Records. This was in 1959, the same year Berry Gordy started Motown and Garech Browne started Claddagh Records.

It would be a few years before Island had it's first big hit record with Millie Small's "My Boy Lollipop". Millie has an interesting story because despite selling millions of records she ended up homeless. Blackwell said that most of the revenue from the song went to licensing fees to the songwriters. And of course to the Jewish promoters. He ended up buying Ms. Small a house, in my personal opinion to save face as a public relations move. I got this impression from watching the archetypal magical negro, Wailers guitarist Al Anderson, describe how at a gig backstage he stumbled upon Blackwell in the Island Records mobile studio recording Marley's performances in secret. Live shows that would go on to sell millions of records. Anderson said that no one other than Marley and Island received any royalties on those albums.

Before I dig into Blackwell's genealogy and how he is so well connected I want to show you a few things about Island Records I found curious. Some of the top brass have names that throw up red flags for me. Names like:

Graeme Goodall, Co-Founder
Leslie Kong, Co-Founder
Dickie Jobson, Co-Founder
Nick Stewart, Head of A&R
Timothy Howard Clarke, Managing Director

Then there's these two Island logos used over the years -

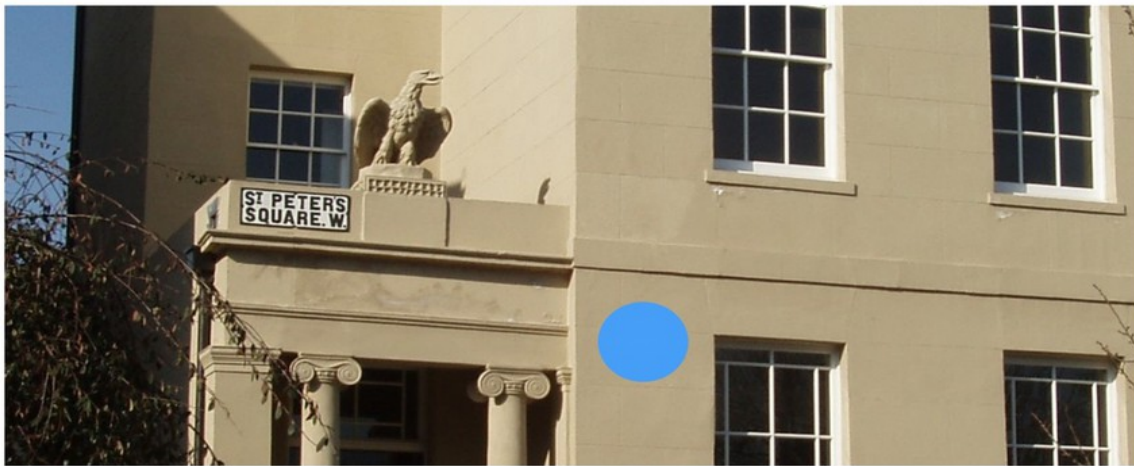

I believe the i stands for Intelligence. Some of Island's earliest artists confirm that for me. See Robert Palmer:

Palmer was born in 1949 in Batley.^[1] When he was only a few months old, he and his family moved to Malta,^[7] where his father worked in British naval intelligence.^{[1][8]} He

Or Steve Winwood of the band Traffic, listed in The Peerage where you will find his daughter married Ben Elliot, nephew of Queen Camilla Parker Bowles and Chairman of the Conservative Party. Ah, nepotism at its finest, I haven't even scratched the surface.

What you won't find on the Wikipedia for Island Records is their Global HQ for a couple of decades over at 22 St. Peter's Square in London. I do wonder why? Hold on a minute... is that an Eagle? Or a Phoenix?

The building is still home to former head of A&R at Island, Nick Stewart. Now with Island being a spook hub, you have to wonder if Nick was related to the deputy head of MI6 Brian Stewart during the time of Project Bob Marley. Brian's son Rory stood to be Leader of the Conservative Party when Theresa May was taken off stage, he wanted to become Prime Minister. That would be quite brazen of the Stewarts, wouldn't put it past them though. I couldn't find a high quality image of the building with the blue plaque on it so I put one on myself. The blue plaque was installed at this address by gay Caribbean entrepreneur Jak Beula Dodd. Jak was also present for the installation of the plaque over at Bob Marley's house in Bloomsbury and the one at Island's Basing Street studios where Exodus was recorded.

That's the blue plaque over at Basing Street. You might be thinking to yourself, who is Jill Sinclair? Well, in the early 80s, Chris Blackwell sold this studio to Jill Sinclair and Trevor Horn. Along with Paul Morley (also the ghostwriter of Blackwells book) they went on to found ZTT Records.

Tell me they aren't Jewish? That's quite a few Peerage names we've hit there too, you have Sinclair, Trevor, Horn (possibly a fudge of Heron) and Morley. There may be a link to Clan Sinclair, the Earls of Caithness, the 19th Earl's sister Lady Nicola Sinclair married a John Vernon Morley. Morley=Marley, as I will prove later.

I also came across a John Morley Trevor in The Peerage, he married Lucy Montagu, daughter of Ralph Montagu, 1st Duke of Montagu. George Washington was a Montagu. Remember William Montagu, 5th Duke of Manchester, was Governor of Jamaica from 1808–1827. One of John & Lucy's daughters Gertrude Trevor married Charles Roper who comes from Stuarts and Villiers, their daughter Gertrude was known as Baroness Dacre and married Thomas Brand son of a Pierrepont (his mother Caroline) who came from Villiers and Howards. Thomas' great grandfather William Pierrepont Esq came from Manners, Talbots and Dacres. These are ancestors of Russell Brand. Charles links us to Elizabeth Roper, maid of honour to Queen Anne. Elizabeth married treasurer of the navy, Vice Admiral Robert Mansell. Mansell was firstly married to Elizabeth Bacon, daughter of Sir Nicholas Bacon, Keeper of the Great Seal. Elizabeth and Robert died without issue but Robert's brother Sir Francis Mansell has a 6g-granddaughter Bruce Mansfield Boxley (1909 - 1968) married a James Blackwell, interesting. Strange name for a girl, probably another descendant of Robert the Bruce.

John got his middle name from his mother Elizabeth Clarke's first husband William Morley, he died of smallpox at the age of 25. Then Elizabeth married his cousin John Trevor, brother of Thomas Trevor, 1st Baron Trevor. The 2nd Baron Trevor also named Thomas daughter Elizabeth married Charles Spencer, 3rd Duke of Marlborough son of Charles Spencer, 3rd Earl of Sunderland and Lady Anne Churchill. Princess Diana, Winston Churchill, John Campbell, the 5th Duke of Argyll and the future King of England are also related to these people. One of Charles & Elizabeth's children was George Spencer, 4th Duke of Marlborough and he married Lady Caroline Russell, daughter of John Russell, 4th Duke of Bedford.

John Morley Trevor's son also named John Morley Trevor married an Elizabeth Frankland (think Benjamin Franklin). Her father Sir Thomas Frankland's mother was Elizabeth Frances Russell, daughter of Sir John Russell and Frances Cromwell, daughter of Oliver Cromwell.

This one's a wild one. Chris Blackwell produced a film in 1972 with a Jew named Perry Henzell called The Harder They Come starring Jimmy Cliff, the film is now ultimately owned by a holding company named Shamrock Holdings, it is the Disney family's investment firm. The current CEO of Shamrock is a Jew named Stanley Gold which I find amusing.

There's a man named Martin Disney who says he has worked on almost every Bob Marley film and TV project since 1990. He directed a TV special in 2021 called Bob Marley and the Wailers: The Capitol Session '73. A man named Chris Frankland is credited as working on the restoration team on this project. Just a coincidence I'm sure. Another tidbit featured on the end credits of this TV special is Barney Cordell is credited as producer on this project.

Barney is the eldest son of Denny Cordell Lavarack (who filmed this session). Over on the peerage we find that Denny had another son with Marina Guinness, a great great granddaughter of the 1st Earl of Iveagh. Anyway, Denny issued Bob Marley and the Wailers first US single Duppy Conqueror on his Shelter label in October 1971. It says he was instrumental in the group signing to Island Records.... Wonder how this all fits in with Bob in Sweden in 1971, him arguing with Danny Simms of JAD records in 1972 about signing to Blackwell's Island Records. Also, how was he instrumental? As the story goes, Bob was down and out in London, flat broke and in one last attempt at making it stormed the office of Chris Blackwell which I find hard to believe. Bob should have well been on Blackwell's radar at this point, having published Bob Marley's single "Judge Not" in 1963. In fact, in this interview Blackwell states he printed Bob's name on the record as Robert Morley. Robert Morley was an actor who starred alongside Blackwell's girlfriend Esther Anderson in the film Genghis Khan. George Kohen, you know.

Ten years after The Harder They Come, Blackwell and Henzell produced the film Countryman. The film was Dickie Jobson's directorial debut. Dickie was Diane Jobson's brother, Diane of course was a close friend of Marley and was his attorney. The most interesting thing about this awful film was that the antagonist was called Colonel Sinclair, a reference to Bob's father perhaps, who middle name was Sinclair? Another interesting tidbit from this film is the actor Hiram Keller. He is best known for starring in Fellini's Satyricon, a film filled with open air degeneracy as Rome burns, quite the parallels with today's society. Hiram's father was in the US Military and then went on to become Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Georgia. Hiram was tied in with Andy Warhol. As was Blackwell.

really have loved to sign, Talking Heads. I would go and see them play at CBGB in the East Village with Andy Warhol and Robert Palmer when there was hardly anyone there.

Warhol also worked with Lee Jaffe, Bob Marley's gay Jewish photographer who lived with Marley at 56 Hope Road. Jaffe hails from the communist family under investigation during the McCarthy era, see his uncle Philip Jacob Jaffe. Hiram's wife also starred in Countryman, her name was Kristina St. Clair. While I haven't been able to find a link between the de Clares yet (like Strongbow or Elizabeth mentioned above) the Sinclairs and St. Clairs are the same.

This one is a bit out-there but bear with me. A year after making Countryman, Blackwell's Island Records partnered up with Shep Gordon's Alive Films. Shep Gordon was also in the music business managing the likes of KISS, Jimi Hendrix & Pink Floyd. One of the films that Island Alive made and distributed stood out to me. In 1985 they released "Kiss of the Spider Woman" starring Sônia Braga. Sônia Braga's niece Alice would go on to star alongside Will Smith in "I Am Legend". In the film Smith would go on to tell the story about the fake Bob Marley assassination attempt, mythologising Marley's resilience, selling him as a hero performing at Smile Jamaica two days later.

If that weren't good enough, Marley's music would also feature in the Will Smith film Shark Tale, making sure to sell project Bob Marley to all demographics. Now Will Smith, like Frederick Douglass, was a Washington and it wouldn't surprise me one bit if they're related to Norman Washington Manley, whom I believe to be a relation of Bob Marley.

I want to add that I saw the Horn surname pop up in a psyop in Scotland recently, part of the Men-Are-Pigs, Split-the-Sexes project. In a crime resembling what you saw over in America with Brian Laundrie (Brain Washing) & Gabby Petito (Small Talk), the Scots heard of a Ewan Methven beheading his girlfriend Phoenix Spencer-Horn in East Kilbride, a ten minute drive away from where he was sentenced in the Hamilton Sheriff Court. The DCI in that was a Cairns. If you want to see how fake it was check out this clip of neighbour Toni Brown duping delight, comical. Compare to the fake event days ago in Ireland.

Where oh where do I start with this one? I will start with one of the more interesting aspects of Chris Blackwell's genealogy. The one that gets barely any air time, you never hear about why Blackwell is sometimes referred to as the pirate. See, Blackwell is a descendant of the Pirate Queen of Ireland Grace O'Malley, and while he mentioned androgynous weirdo Grace Jones over 60 times in his book, his famous ancestor O'Malley get's approximately 0 shoutouts. Blackwell visits Co. Mayo once a year, sometimes stopping off in Dalkey on the way, to dandle Bono or something. Bono's manager by the way is a McGuinness whose father was in the RAF, we'll see McGuinness pop up on the next page. My guess as to why Blackwell doesn't mention this aspect of his ancestry is he doesn't want you to find out what I found out.

O'MALLEY
BARONETS

EARLS OF
CAITHNESS

DUKES OF
ARGYLL

As you can tell by the Coat of Arms, the O'Malleys were a seafaring clan, one of very few in Ireland. Their motto is "Terra Marique Potens" meaning "Powerful on Land and Sea". One of their main earners was the importation of Gallowglass mercenaries from Scotland to fight in Irish battles. Clan Donnell was the Gallowglass family most associated with the west of Ireland and O'Malley ships ferried them to and from their Scottish homeland. If I have this right when they settled in Tyrconnell they became O'Donnells but when they were in the Hebrides they were MacDonalds and they were known unofficially as the "Lords of the Isles", first cousins of the Stanleys.

Blackwells Mayo Retreat

Grace O'Malley was part of the Irish aristocracy, the daughter of chieftain Owen O'Malley. Her second husband was Richard "The Iron" Bourke, a descendant of William de Burgh, founder of the House of Burgh. Meaning Richard is also related to the Earl of Ulster John de Burgh whose wife Elizabeth de Clare was granddaughter of King Edward I and the patron of a college in Cambridge which took her name. Hundreds of years later, the governor general of Jamaica Kenneth Blackburne would attend this institution. I find all of this stuff very interesting.

The first red flag for me with Grace O'Malley was her meeting in 1577 with Sir Henry Sidney, Lord Deputy of Ireland for Queen Elizabeth I. O'Malley would show off her military capabilities and would offer her services to him. Yes, he said him. I'm going to draw your attention back to the O'Malley coat of arms above, on the top left you will see the Red Hand of Ulster, signalling an affiliation with the O'Neill clan. The second red flag was the narrative switch where O'Malley would head for Ulster to meet with Hugh O'Neill, Earl of Tyrone, and his ally Red Hugh O'Donnell to unite Ireland and drive the English out.

It's my personal belief that these two venerated men in Irish history O'Neill & O'Donnell were Judas goats, controlled opposition, destined to fail in their mission. Why do I say this? After leading the Irish forces during the Nine Years War they lost The Battle of Kinsale which was the end of Gaelic Ireland and the start of Stewart rule with King James. Following all this talk of driving the English out of Ireland, O'Neill found himself in the company of his opponent in the war Charles Blount, 8th Baron Mountjoy and King James over in England.

Tyrone's war: an epilogue

After all the years of destruction and bloodshed, Tyrone and his allies received remarkably generous terms for their surrender. The earl received a royal pardon but was forced to renounce his position as The O'Neill. Despite this, Tyrone retained most of his lands and estates. The earl swore to renounce 'all foreign power whatever and all kind of dependency upon any other potentate but his majesty [James I and VI] ... and do now to serve him faithfully against any foreign power invading his kingdoms, and to disclose truly any practices that I do or shall know against his royal person or crowns'.²⁵² Tyrone specifically repudiated his contact with the Spanish state, Philip III and his 'forces or confederates'.²⁵³ Tyrone journeyed to England with Mountjoy during the summer to meet with King James and even went hunting with the new king.

This is the same King James that brought about the plantation of Ulster and here is this "High King of Ireland" O'Neill having a dandy old time hunting with the new King of England. I think the Irish were wise to this at the time and that led to the Flight of the Earls where Hugh O'Neill, his wife Catherine Magennis, Hugh O'Donnell and some of their followers hightailed it to Europe. O'Malley's son Tibbot na Long Bourke was a bit more cute, his reward for siding with the English was admittance to the peerage as 1st Viscount Mayo in 1627.

Now, what amazes me is that in Ulster today you have the same talk of uniting Ireland. Who is leading this crusade? The First Minister of Northern Ireland is Michelle O'Neill, her comrade down in the Republic is a Mary Lou McDonald, their comrade that has passed was Martin McGuinness and who did Michelle O'Neill get her start with in politics? None other than Francie Molloy.

You will say, O'Neill's maiden name is Doris, she can't be a descendant of the Earl of Tyrone. Well I'd bet if you went back a generation or two you would find she's originally an O'Neill too. You know how these people try to obfuscate. I think a big clue is O'Neill being Mayor of Tyrone before becoming first minister. Paying homage to her ancestry. Tyrone's wife Catherine Magennis had a brother, Arthur Magennis, 1st Viscount Magennis of Iveagh who named his daughter after his sister. Catherine's niece Catherine married a Colonel James Adams. Their son Captain James Adams gained the rank of an officer in the King William III's Army, you know, the orange fella. I believe this also links actor Gerry Adams to this cabal of controps from the families.

Here's a photo of Molloy, O'Neill & McGuinness together if you haven't seen them before:

I truly find it fascinating that these descendants of the controlled opposition that assisted the Plantation of Ulster are hitting us with the same spiel hundreds of years later. Pipe talk of uniting the nation while overseeing the new plantation of Ireland with the mantra "Brits out, everybody else in." Will they will get away with it? Is there a Flight of the Girls on the cards?

I'm going to use some modern-day descendants of O'Neills and two descendants nearer to his time to hammer home the point that the Earl of Tyrone was a quisling.

Ian McShane

The McShanes are descendants of Shane O'Neill, Prince of Tyrone. I imagine these "black Irish" cloaked Jews would look a lot like the actor Ian McShane. Ian McShane married the actress Suzan Farmer, sister of former Treasurer of the Conservative Party Michael Farmer. He is of course the father of George Farmer, married to Candace Owens. Would you look at that... A descendant of Tyrone marrying a woman whose brother is a life peer and nephew is more than likely upper management of British Intelligence. The Johnson Baronets of New York are also descendants of the McShanes/O'Neills. Sir Peter Colpoys Paley Johnson, 7th Baronet of New York was married to Clare Bruce, yet another descendant of Robert The Bruce. Same old families intermarrying over centuries.

Frederick Gibson

The popular gay Jewish DJ Fred Again has a very interesting family tree. His father is a Gibson & mother is a Morgan so that could link him to the likes of Mel Gibson, Captain Henry Morgan, Governor of Jamaica or Hiram Morgan, one of the gatekeeping historians assigned to the Nine Years War project. Fred's great-grandmother is Anne Charteris, granddaughter of the 11th Earl of Wemyss. Before she married Ian Fleming in Jamaica she was married to Fred's great grandfather Shane O'Neill, 3rd Baron O'Neill of Shane's Castle. So as you go up the peerage to link Fred Again to Hugh O'Neill, Earl of Tyrone, you find yourself clicking through 3 generations of Chichesters until you find a Reverend Arthur Chichester married a Mary O'Neill. So you think to yourself, why is a relation of Tyrone marrying a relation of Arthur Chichester, 1st Baron Chichester. For those of you unfamiliar with Chichester, he was Lord Deputy of Ireland from 1605 to 1616. He is known for his harsh military tactics during the Nine Years' War and for his efforts to colonise Ulster with English and Scottish settlers. You'll still find Chichesters in "independent" Ireland today, the current Earl of Belfast is one, his grandfather Dermot, the 7th Marquess of Donegal was the Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Ireland in the 1980s.

Phelim O'Neill

A great grandson of Hugh O'Neill, Earl of Tyrone, Phelim married Jean Gordon. Jean Gordon's mother was Henrietta Stuart, daughter of the first Duke of Lennox. One of the Duke of Lennox's great great grandfathers was William Sinclair, the First Earl of Caithness, builder of the Rosslyn Chapel. Jean Gordon's father was George Gordon, the First Marquess of Huntly. George Gordon's great grandmother was Catherine Douglas (nee Stewart) half-sister of James V, King of Scots, not to be confused with his grandson James VI, the Earl of Tyrone's hunting buddy. Would you believe me if I told you that the national hero of Ireland Daniel O'Connell is descended from Phelim and Jean? Daniel's grandmother Maire O'Donoghue was a granddaughter of Donal O'Donoghue. Donal was a grandson of Phelim and Jean. They don't tell you about Ireland's great liberator having a connection to the Royal House of Stuart in the history books do they? This also links O'Connell to the Erskines, Murrays, Hamiltons etc. Are you thinking of the fourth President of Ireland, Erskine Hamilton Childers yet? Childers' wife was a Vereker. Former Taoiseach Leo Varadkar may be of this clan. These Vereker's were Sheriffs of Limerick & Viscounts of Gort, one of whom went on to become Governor of Gibraltar & Malta & High Commissioner of Palestine.

Sir Henry O'Neill

While not a descendant of Tyrones, he's still a good example of the point I am trying to make. Henry was the oldest son of Shane O'Neill & Rose Guinness. Henry went over to the English in a very big way. He translated his name and married Martha Stafford, daughter of Sir Francis Stafford, Governor of Ulster. He converted to the Church of England and his only child, Rose O'Neill, was also raised Anglican. Rose Guinness was the sister of Catherine Magennis, wife of the Earl of Tyrone.

While I'm here I may as well hit Clan McInnes/Magennis/McGuinness/Guinness and why I believe they are cloaked Jews (other than poisoning us for centuries with their glyphosate juice of course). See Catherine and Rose had a brother named Arthur Magennis, 1st Viscount Magennis of Iveagh. Arthur Guinness, the inventor of the Guinness stout believed he was a descendant of this clan. Guinness' descendants became the Earls of Iveagh. If you look at the Families that his descendants married into, you will begin to see clues. Anita Guinness is a good example, she married Amschel Rothschild, their two daughters Kate & Alice married two brothers, Benjamin & Frank Goldsmith. Marrying these Judens is not an activity us Gentiles concern ourselves with.

Back to Grace O'Malley & Blackwell's extended family tree. You may say it's a stretch to go from O'Malley to Molloy as I did with Francie above. I don't think so. Official biographer of Grace O'Malley is the ex-central banker Anne Chambers. Chambers says that in the English State Papers referring to O'Malley that they have up to 30 variations for the spelling of the Pirate Queen's name. Chambers doesn't post an exhaustive list of these spellings and there doesn't seem to be any digitised versions of the archives online. My personal opinion? I reckon some spellings may include Manley, Marley & Morley. Old pirates, yes they rob I, sold I to the merchant ships.

One spelling that Chambers does give up is Melia. This reminded me of fake far right influencer Sam Melia who like faker Lucy Connolly, was “jailed” for posting offensive messages in public. While I’m here I might as well take the wind out of this operation’s sails. See, Melia is member of an organisation called Patriotic Alternative, the UK’s answer to Patriotic Front, both are intelligence projects. His wife Laura Towler is the deputy leader of this organisation, there are plenty of Toler & Towlers in the peerage. Patriotic Alternative’s leader is another fellow with a peerage name called Mark Collett. Two Colletts served as Lord Mayor of London in the last hundred years, they have a striking resemblance to this chap. Collett has to be one of the gayest of gay Jews, you can see for yourself in this documentary called Young, Nazi & Proud. Further proof that anyone endorsing these operatives are agents themselves. People like Keith “Woods” O’Brien, Martin Sellner, Edward Dutton, Jared Taylor etc.

I think I can demonstrate another link of Molloy & O’Malley with the folk music group “The Chieftains”. They were first signed to Garech Brownes Claddagh Records. Browne of course is another descendant of Grace O’Malleys making him a distant cousin of Blackwells. Blackwell signed The Chieftains to Island Records in 1973. They would go on to work on the soundtrack to Stanley Kubrick’s Barry Lyndon. One of Blackwell’s great grandmothers is an Elizabeth Chrisp Howard, this line takes us back two generations to Edward Howard then beyond that they are scrubbed. If you want some excellent info on the Howards, Miles’ War of the Roses paper is a good start. In 1979, a man named Matt Molloy joined The Chieftains, I suspect Blackwell hooked another distant cousin up with the gig.

Miles, I remember from your Michael Collins paper you said you are a Malloy from Galway on your mother’s side. Galway being a neighbour of the Co. Mayo, I don’t reckon it’s too far fetched to suggest that you may be able to trace some of your ancestry back to the Uí Máille clan of Umhaill. Yes, but my given name Miles comes from my father’s side, so I am not called Miles because I am a Milesian. Or not in that Malloy line, anyway. I think Miles comes from the Werne family, formerly Verne.

From Westport to the West Indies

Three of Grace O’Malley’s descendants that I could find would go on to play a significant role in the administration of colonial Jamaica. They are:

Edward Loughlin O’Malley

O’Malley was Attorney General of Jamaica from 1876 - 1879. His bio is full of freemasonic spook markers. Attended Trinity College, Cambridge, and called to the Bar at the Middle Temple etc. His wife, the big-nosed Emma Winifred O’Malley, was the daughter of politician Joseph Alfred Hardcastle. Emma’s mother Frances died in 1865 and a couple of years later her father married Hon. Mary Scarlett Campbell, daughter of John Campbell, 1st Baron Campbell of St. Andrews. This Baron Campbell, a big fan of throwing up the hidden hand insignia in portraits, was briefly the Lord High Chancellor of Ireland in 1841. He was also Lord Chief Justice of England and Wales from 1850 to 1859. Did you catch that? The father-in-law of O’Malley’s father-in-law was the head of the judiciary of England and Wales. Very interesting company these O’Malley’s find themselves in. Edward and Emma would have 5 children together, the one that sticks out to me is the diplomat Sir Owen St Clair O’Malley.

Sir Henry Arthur Blake

Blake was Governor of Jamaica from 1889-1898. While his father is a Blake, his mother is a Browne, both are of the Tribes of Galway. You’ll see Blakes and Brownes marrying each other for generations. For example you may find the spy James “Spanish” Blake was the son of a Blake and a Browne. James, like his relative Grace O’Malley, had a correspondence with Lord Burghley William Cecil, Queen Elizabeth’s secretary. James is most well known as the suspected assassin of one of the Earls who fled, Hugh O’Donnell. Judging by the company these Phoenicians keep (Blount’s, Carew’s & Habsburg Phillip II of Spain) it was more than likely hogwash. A few more tidbits on Henry Arthur Blake, his great great grandfather John Browne, the Earl of Altamont and Viscount Westport was the High Sheriff of Mayo. Sheriff John Browne has a ring to it doesn't it? Would you like to know who the Sheriff of Mayo is today in 2026? None other than a fella named John G. O'Malley. Regardless of whether it's the English ruling over us, or we "become independent" and govern ourselves you will always find these clans lurking in the shadows, running things. Ah democracy, isn't it just wonderful? There was also an O'Malley who served as US Ambassador to Ireland when Obama was in office, he lived in Phoenix Park. Now that I think about it, the Governor of Connecticut during Operation Sandy Hook was a Malloy, I bet if you go back far enough he's an O'Malley.

One more interesting piece of info I found about Sir Henry Arthur Blake is that his daughter Olive married his Aide-de-Camp John Bernard Arbuthnot. John Bernard was also a merchant banker. His mother was an Aitchison. His grandfather John Alves Arbuthnot co-founded the private City of London bank Arbuthnot Latham in 1833. Their address was at at 33 Great St Helen's. I'm reminded of the great YouTuber swilliamism and his video Weird 33s. These people eh? John Alves' father Sir William Arbuthnot, 1st Baronet was Lord Lieutenant of the City of Edinburgh. I believe these Arbuthnots to be closely related to the Leslies, see Game of Thrones actress Rose Eleanor Arbuthnot-Leslie.

Howe Peter Browne, 2nd Marquess of Sligo

Browne was Governor of Jamaica from 1834-1836. His great grandfather was the Earl of Altamont, we just met him when we looked into Sir Henry Arthur Blake, that's how closely these two governors are related. Howe Browne was the son of another High Sheriff of Mayo, John Browne, 1st Marquess of Sligo. Howe became the largest landowner in the maritime county inheriting some 200,000 acres of land from his father. He would also inherit plantations in Jamaica from his great grandfather Denis Kelly who was Chief Justice of Jamaica from 1742 - 1746. One of Kelly's daughters Priscilla (Howe's grand aunt) married Robert Cooper Lee. Cooper Lees sister Mary Charlotte married John Morley, popular name I guess. Robert and Priscilla's daughter Favell Bourke Lee, married David Bevan, a partner in the bank of Barclay, Bevan, Bennin, Tritton that would later become Barclays. Favell and David's son Robert Lee Cooper Bevan would also be a senior partner in Barclays Bank. When he died in 1890, he was one of the wealthiest men in Great Britain. He had a daughter named Nesta Bevan who was by all accounts a wildly anti semitic conspiracy theorist, I must have a look at what she had to say.

Howe Peter's maternal grandfather was the famous Admiral of the Fleet, Richard Howe KG, Wiki lets us know that he was born on Albemarle Street. The street was named after Christopher Monck, the 2nd Duke of Albemarle, who was also Governor of Jamaica from 1687 - 1688. I've heard people pronounce Albemarle as Alba Marley which got my attention, being that an alternative name for Scotland is Alba. Probably nothing but I'm still going to note it. Richard's father Emanuel Howe was the Governor of Barbados from 1733 - 1735, you could say the job runs in the family. Emanuel married Sophia Charlotte Mary Von Keilmanssegg, daughter of Sophie Charlotte Platen-Hallermund, the half sister of Hanoverian King George I of Great Britain.

Known in Jamaica as the "Champion of the Slaves" Howe had a town named after him in Jamaica called Sligoville. Howe was an abolitionist. We know what a massive conjob that was as slavery just got rebranded to employment and mortgages. Sadly, a lot of the world is made up of indentured servants now on some form of plantation.

Howe kept interesting company too, befriending George Gordon, Lord Byron while studying at Cambridge. They would go on a gay holiday in Greece together on Howe's "Grand Tour". Rumspringa for the Phoenicians. Browne would also visit Napoleon on the island of Elba in a meeting brokered by Sir Neil Campbell.

I think here is an appropriate place to talk about gatekeepers. Howe is closely related to all of them. You have the Harrovian, Hubert Thomas Knox, whose father and brother were both High Sheriffs of County Mayo. Hubert wrote The History of Mayo which is cited as a source on many Wiki pages. Miles has hit John Knox & Amanda Knox before. Hubert's mother was Lady Louisa Browne, a daughter of Howe Peter Browne. You also have Burke's Peerage written by John Burke, a descendant of the Burkes of Clanricarde. Howe Peter Browne's wife Hester Catherine de Burgh would be a relation. Howe, would also be a relative, also being a descendant of Burkes, think Tibbot na Long Bourke, Viscount Mayo, just further out. Remember, Howe's ancestor Grace O'Malley married a Burke too.

John Burke's father Sir Bernard Burke was the Ulster King of Arms for nearly 40 years. All of these Burkes/de Burghs/Bourkes can trace their lineage back to the Earls of Ulster & Lords of Connaught. Interestingly enough, Richard Óg, the 2nd Earl of Ulster had a daughter Egidia who married Sir James Stewart, the fifth High Steward of Scotland, making herself an ancestor of the royal house of Stewart.

Even to this day, a century after Ireland supposedly became independent, you still have a Bourke with the title the Earl of Mayo. I find this curious, because for the last few years in Ireland we have been the subjects to a psyop involving a Burke family from Castlebar in Mayo who also have ties to Galway. With Jewish names like Ammi, Elijah, Enoch, Esther, Isaac, Josiah & Simeon, this clan is constantly in the news. Most notably Enoch Burke, a teacher allegedly in prison for using the wrong pronouns of a student, what a load of horse manure. This story has been propped up and retweeted by the likes of Jordan Peterson & Elon Musk.

The purpose of this psyop is three-fold. Firstly, it's to terrify teachers into complying with LGBT nonsense otherwise they think they'll lose their jobs and be thrown in the slammer like ol' Enoch. With most people loaded up on debt these days it's the perfect control mechanism, just the threat of a job loss is enough for some to comply with evil (see COVID). Secondly, these cloaked Jews posing as Christians are there to make actual followers of Jesus Christ and his teachings look like a bunch of crackpots and hypocrites to secular folk who may be theologically on the fence. Same tactic is used with Jews like Charlie & Erika Kirk.

For those who would like an extra bit of homework, one of my favourite psyops involving a Burke was when Thomas Burke faked his death alongside Lord Frederick Cavendish. He was Chief Secretary of Ireland and the son of the 7th Duke of Devonshire. They were "assassinated" in what became known as the Phoenix Park Murders. This psyop involved the "uncrowned King of Ireland" Charles Stewart Parnell. I believe most leading politicians in Ireland are related to Stewarts. Even this morning I connected Bertie Ahern to them through marriage, his mothers clan the Hourihanes moved to New York and married a few Jews with connections back to Scotland. A paper about these peer-liticians is on my to do list.

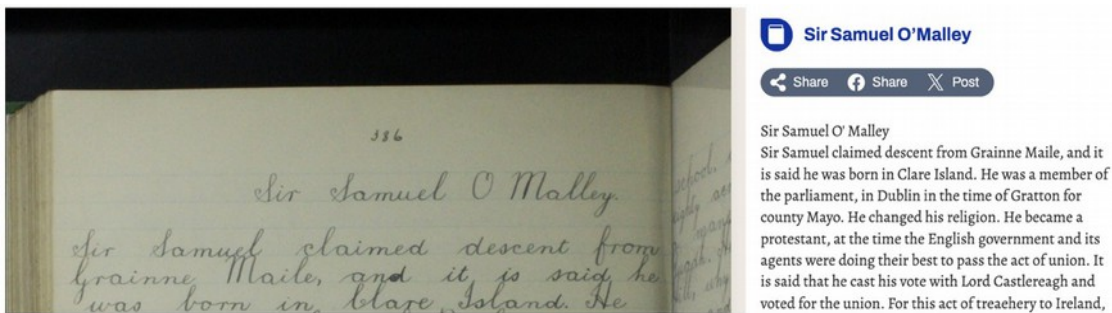

Last but certainly not least when it comes to gatekeepers is the official biographer of Grace O'Malley & Howe Peter Browne, Anne Chambers. Anne herself would admit that Chambers is not an Irish name. Yet we have a few prominent Chambers in Irish society today. There's the Rudolf Hess lookalike sodomite Minister for Finance Jack Chambers. There's friend of Russell Brand, Blindboy Boatclub (real name Dave Chambers) who is a bootlicking communist. Also one of the top vaccine salesmen during the scamdemic was a Richard Chambers. Actually no, credit where credit is due, Luke O'Neill was top vaccine salesman, Richard wasn't too far behind though.

As Jimmy Cliff was a Chambers I decided to look up the name in The Peerage. I come across a Jane Eliza Chambers who married a Robert Robertson in Jamaica, he was son of Alexander Robertson, 16th chief of Clan Donnachaidh and Jean Stewart. Jane and Roberts son Robert Joseph Stewart Robertson married a Sarah Antoinette Sinclair in 1862. One of their sons George Duncan Robertson, the 22nd chief of the Clan went on to hold the office of Justice of the Peace of Jamaica and was Mayor of Kingston in the 1930s. His son Langton, the 23rd chief of the clan was in the British Military, allegedly fighting in WW1 and made an invalid. He was a diplomat for relations between Jamaica and Brazil from 1935 - 1943. He was recognised officially as 23rd chief of the clan by Lord Lyon King of Arms, and matriculated his arms at the Lyons Court in 1954 by Sir Thomas Innes of Learney. Sir Thomas Innes of Learney is married to Lady Lucy Buchan daughter of the 18th Earl of Caithness, whose name is Norman Macleod Buchan Sinclair. So a distant relative really, same old story. Trump is a MacLeod. Langton went on to be headmaster at the Wolmer School, the same school Edward Seaga & Norman Manley went to. Langton Robertson married a Laure Constance Lindo. A Jewish lady whose mother is a Cohen, her mother and father were cousins.

I call Anne Chambers a gatekeeper because I saw a video of her at Westport House doing a Q&A. She was asked about another Mayo man, Argentinian national hero Admiral William Brown and whether or not he was related to Howe Peter. She shut it down immediately and it just gave me bad vibes that she was telling porky pies.

While I couldn't track Anne the author down on the usual sites, I did find an Anne Chambers who married an Owen O'Malley Esq in 1763. Quite the coincidence. Maybe that's why Anne Chambers has all this access to private documents and appears at O'Malley family reunions at Westport House... She's related to them. Owen was the eldest son of George O'Malley & Mary-Magdalen Blake. Owen would remarry Ann McGeough and they had a son, Sir Samuel O'Malley, 1st Baronet.

I came across this interesting bio on Samuel. As you can see he cast his vote with Lord Castlereagh to pass the Act of Union. John Browne, 1st Marquess of Sligo also voted for the Act of Union. Castlereagh of course was Robert Stewart, 3g-grandson of King Charles II & Barbara Villiers. Over on FindAGrave we find that Sir William O'Malley the 2nd Baronet lived at 7 Argyll Road, Kensington, London. Another O'Malley - Stewart - Campbell coincidence I'm sure.

A hundred years later we would find an O'Malley in the middle of historical Irish psyops again. This time, a participant in the 1916 Easter Rising, Ernie O'Malley. He chose a very interesting alias while incarcerated in Kilmainham Gaol a few years later.

Ernie O'Malley

O'Malley pictured under an alias in Kilmainham Gaol, January 1921

Would you look at that? Bernard Stuart, I wonder why he chose that name. O'Malley would go on hunger strike when he was locked up in Mountjoy Prison, while locked up he would be elected as a TD for Sinn Fein in the Dail. Same script they ran with fake hunger striker Bobby Sands, 50 years later.

I hope I have adequately demonstrated an alliance between O'Malleys & Stewarts over the generations up until the present day with Blackwell. Now to find the link to the Percys, Earls of Northumberland & Gordons, Earls of Huntly through The Gorgeous Gunnings. Maria & Elizabeth Gunning were two Roscommon ladies who by all accounts took London by storm in the 1700s with their beauty. Maria married the 6th Earl of Coventry and in their list of descendants you will find Percys, Maxwells, Trenchs & Howards. Maria's sister Elizabeth firstly married James Hamilton, the 6th Duke of Hamilton, then she married John Campbell, the 5th Duke of Argyll.

That's Maria, who I would say is a bit less than gorgeous, but definitely Jewish. She died young, killed by her beauty products, still a common end for these Jewish ladies today. Her sister also only made it to 56.

Gunning's daughter Elizabeth would marry the 12th Earl of Derby, making the pirate queen an ancestor of Lord Stanley, the 13th Earl. We're going to see the Stanleys pop up again in the next section on Bob, making Miles very happy. If you have a look at Gunning's descendants you will find a who's who of the peerage. A lot of the Phoenician family names pop up, including who we were looking for. You will find Gunning's great granddaughter Edith Campbell married Henry Percy, the 7th Duke of Northumberland. You will also find Gunning's granddaughter Eliza Campbell married Sir William Gordon-Cumming, 2nd Baronet, who can trace his ancestry back to the Gordons, Earls of Sutherland & Gordons, Earls of Huntly. And remember Cumming=Commene.

That's quite the connections to British Royalty that Grace O'Malley would have. So now that I have introduced you to Howe Peter Browne & Elizabeth Gunning, let's see how you can get to the future King of England in just a few clicks on WikiTree from the Pirate Queen:

I remember in an interview with the black Christopher Walken, Wailer Al Anderson would say Blackwell and Prince Charles were the best of friends. Makes sense for the King of Jamaica & King of England. While I couldn't find any photos of them together at one of Blackwell's lavish parties at his Goldeneye resort, I did find a link through marriage. Blackwell's father Middleton Joseph Blackwell would have been a first cousin of Hamilton Joseph Keyes O'Malley VC who married Lady Iris Mountbatten, a second cousin of Charles.

Charles of course would promote project Bob Marley as well appearing with Bob in Zimbabwe. Bob's music would contribute to the deracination and atomisation of English society, making more obedient slaves for Charles and his family to rule over. More on that later.

Now it is time to move on to the hero of many a white hipster, Mr Robert Nesta Marley. This man had me fooled for a long time. But this operation is very nefarious and it is time to slaughter this sacred cow. Buckle up.

Lively up yourself and don't be no drag because it's time to get up and stand up, for there is a natural mystic in the air with this little Jew. I have so much things to say, there is so much trouble in the world due to the Intelligence operation that is Bob Marley and now it is time to expose the lot.

So I guess here is a good place to start with how I got into this paper. A couple of months ago, I was emailing Miles about Dame Jacinda Ardern, former Prime Minister of New Zealand and how she is a descendant of William Shakespeare. I sent him a link to her book A Different Kind of Power for sale on the Shakespeare & Co. Website for 33 bucks. A little note to MacSherry who bought up Ardern in his Ozzy paper, I think she can also trace her lineage back to Maison d'Ardenne, the house Godfrey de Bouillon, King of Jerusalem came from. This would also make her a descendant of Holy Roman Emperors like Charlemagne.

This prompted me to reread Miles' paper on Shakespeare where Miles lets us know that Kit Marlowe signed his name as Christofer Marley. Miles links Marlowe to the likes of Thomas Marlay, Chief Justice of Ireland. As someone with a bit of interest in Irish and Jamaican history I thought of Bob Marley instantly. Then it dawned on me that like many other rock stars eg Jim Morrison, Eric Clapton & John Lennon, that Bob's father was in the British military. So a couple of days later I decided to watch the 2012 documentary Marley and boy oh boy, I did not like what I saw.

The film begins like Blackwell's book, with a blatant lie. We are taken to Cape Coast Castle in Ghana, West Africa, where our unnamed host says with a straight face that 10,000 slaves were shipped from the castle to the Caribbean & North America every year totalling 60 million slaves shipped across the Atlantic. Maybe I'm just bad at African math but wouldn't that mean the trade had been going on for around 6,000 years?

The lies don't stop there because a few minutes later we are introduced to a cousin of Bob, Sledgo Peart, who to this day is a tour guide of the Bob Marley Museum in Nine Mile, St. Ann. Sledgo tells us some stories about growing up with Bob. He tells us that his great grandmother "Yaya" lived to 135 years of age and would call Bob the "German boy". Over on Geni we find that Katherine "Yaya" Malcolm lived from 1867 to 1920. She certainly didn't live until 135 and she couldn't have met Bob either, he wasn't born until 1945.

The next scene in the film we are greeted with Bob's stepbrother and bandmate Bunny Wailer wearing a Star of David chain and throwing up weird hand signals. Rastafarians will say that this is something that Nyabingi elders within the Rasta movement do. I'm not so sure, I'm getting a strong whiff of Judaism & Freemasonry from this one. What do you think? That lion in the picture on the right represents the Lion of Judah by the way. "Judah is a lion's whelp: from the prey, my son, thou art gone up: he stooped down, he couched as a lion, and as an old lion; who shall rouse him up?" Genesis 49:9.

Another red flag for me was finding out Bunny Wailer's real name, it is Neville Livingston. Yes, Bob's stepbrother is Neville Livingston. Let that sink in for a few moments.

More red flags were the names of people Bob surrounded himself with. They have top Peerage/Jewish/Sottish Clan names. People like:

James Chambers aka Jimmy Cliff

Robbie Shakespeare

James Norman Scott

Desmond Dacre aka Desmond Dekker

Sly Dunbar

Howard Bloom

Clement Seymour Dodd aka Coxone Dodd

Lee Scratch Perry

David Steinberg

Winston Hubert McIntosh aka Peter Tosh

Lloyd "Bread" McDonald

Earl Wilberforce Lindo

Now I am well aware of the naming convention where slaves take on the names of their enslavers, or parents name their children after someone prestigious as described by Patrice O'Neal in this clip. But like Bob, some of these people have ancestry that is very suspect, I'll leave it to you to discern between who is who. I'll be focussing on Bob.

The next part of the documentary that really ground my gears was 33 minutes in when Bob's wife Rita Marley tells us an obvious lie about Haile Selassie's visit to Jamaica in 1966. She says that the Ethiopian Emperor looked at her, waved and at that moment she saw a mark on his hand that convinced her that he was the second coming of Christ. Rita says she ran back to Trench Town to tell Bob, who shortly after is said to have become a Rastafarian.

Rastafarianism as a movement started to pick up in Jamaica in 1933 when Leonard Percival Howell started preaching that Haile Selassie, the Emperor of Ethiopia, was the Messiah returned to Earth following his coronation in 1930. We have already met a cult leader with the last name Howell before, Mr David Koresh, real name Vernon Howell. Both are full of shit. Leonard Howell also looks like an agent, coming out of Marcus Garvey's UNIA in New York. The project was to preach empowerment, but turn blacks off Jesus and onto this fake leader Selassie, just another rich guy sitting on piles of gold, related to all the current Pharisees.

Howell would refer to the Emperor as His Majesty Ras Tafari the King of Kings and Lord of Lords, the conquering Lion of Judah, the Elect of God and the Light of the world. Blasphemy if you ask me. Howell published a book called The Promised Key which is a canonical text to Rastas to this day. The book was a plagiarised, shortened version of The Royal Parchment Scroll of Black Supremacy by Fitz Balintine Pettersburg. Howell's innovation in publishing this work was swapping out the name of Fitz and his wife as King Alpha and Queen Omega for the name of Haile Selassie and his wife, hilarious.

This little book starts off with a story from the Coronation of the Emperor Selassie. Tsar Nicholas II's lookalike cousin King George V couldn't be arsed to attend the ceremony at St. George's Cathedral in Addis Ababa. George sent his son Prince Henry, the Duke of Gloucester, to attend in his absence. Henry gifted Selassie and his wife with two sceptres. One of them was topped off with a spray of lilies in bloom which reminded me of Napoleon's coronation where with sceptre in hand and the orb nearby, Bonaparte's regalia was adorned with bees. We know how much bees love lilies. Now that I think of it, the fleur-de-lis that appears on many of the Family's coats of arms looks like another spook signal. There's something to be said about the use of the orb and sceptre in coronations. One is reminded of the image of St. Christopher carrying Christ upon his shoulder, Christ carrying the world in his hands. These hubristic royals may fancy themselves imitators of the King of Kings. In the end, they resemble Saruman, ensnared by the palantir, rather than the Salvator Mundi, holding the globus cruciger. In your own research you may come across the double headed phoenix, the reichsadler, clutching onto an orb and sceptre on the flags of Montenegro, the Russian Empire, and the Byzantine Empire. A signal from the empire that never ended.

Selassie was part of the Solomonic Dynasty which ruled Ethiopia from 1270 until 1974 when the Emperor was deposed in a Marxist-Leninist communist revolution. Now while he claimed descent from King David of the Bible, I have been unable to trace his genealogy back more than a couple of generations on the usual sites. Honestly, I'm not sure how much detail I want to go into with the man as really, he deserves a paper of his own. There are some holes in his story to say the least. For example, the Duke of Gloucester said to Selassie that the Royal Family of England would serve the Emperor until the end. A few years later, from 1936 to 1941, due to Mussolini's invasion of Ethiopia, Selassie was living in exile in Bath, England. Strange, since Miles showed Mussolini was also pawn of the British. In 1937, the Emperor couldn't be bothered to attend the Coronation of King George VI and his wife Elizabeth, instead he sent his niece's husband Makonnen Endelkachew who wouldn't become Prime Minister of Ethiopia until six years later in 1943. But get this, Makonnen Endelkachew, who was at the time Governor of the province of Illubabor, was also in exile at the time of the Italian occupation. He was living in Jerusalem. So instead of Selassie travelling a couple of hours to Westminster Abbey for the ceremony, he sends a Governor of a random Ethiopian province from Jerusalem to London to attend the ceremony in his absence. Come on guys, the scriptwriters really take us for fools.

I will come back to Selassie and his influence on Bob later on when we do a some lyrical analysis of songs like War, based on Selassie's address to the United Nations in 1963. For now, I want you to picture every Ethiopian that you have ever met, even picture their neighbours in Somalia, and ask yourself, does this man look like the picture you have in your mind? The caricature on the right was drawn by Ethiopians who were famished, while the Emperor lived lavish. Look at that nose.

You will say, of course he is a Jew, he claimed descent from the House of David. I just wanted to hammer the point home. Time magazine's Man of The Year in 1935 certainly surrounded him with interesting looking goblins too. Here he is with US Diplomat Cornelius Van Hemert Engert who looks like he should be working at a bank in Hogwarts.

I'm not too sure where along the timeline cannabis use became synonymous with Rastafarianism, as Howell never mentions consumption of the plant in his Promised Key. My guess is it got promoted heavily with the rise of Mr. Marley, who allegedly smoked a hundred spliffs a day. I'm calling bullshit on Marley ever being a stoner, his teeth in his thirties were far too good. I'm not saying he never smoked a joint, just that his use was extremely exaggerated. It was around the time of Marley's rise to fame that MI6 man Howard Marks (Marx) became one of the biggest dope dealers in the world. Marks' mate across the pond Donald Steinberg would also become enriched in this enterprise, my guess is he was CIA. Regardless, the cannabis psyop had its purpose when it came to destruction of the West, to pacify the masses who would participate in smoking of the herb, leaving users docile while their countries are invaded. Even now, all along the West, you are guaranteed to find a trustafarian in at least one college dormroom out of ten with cliché hippy dippy mandala tapestry on their wall accompanied by a Bob Marley poster. You will always find the stereotypical stoner in these dorms playing Marley's music, thinking they are revolutionary, when really they are the status quo. Most of those who fall for this psyop integrate into their worldview values handed down to them by the social engineers on behalf of the oligarchs. They think it's just dandy that they are being replaced en masse, One Love right?

Next in the documentary we are briefly taken to Wilmington, Delaware, where Marley is said to have lived for a few months. He would also visit over the years as his mother Cedella lived there with some of his extended family. We are introduced to a big nosed fella named Ibis Pitts. Sadly, his wife Genoveva didn't make it into the Marley doc but I have included a photo of her as she looks like a bit of a heebie jeebie to me. These two would run the Peoples Festival for nearly thirty years in Wilmington as a tribute to Bob.

If you didn't know, there's a park in Wilmington called One Love Park in memory of Mr. Marley. At this park there's a sign where they let us know Bob changed his name to Donald Marley while he spent his time in Delaware. I thought that was a bit spooky. I'm well aware that black people anglicise their names to fit into whblite societies where Olatunde becomes Oliver but Bob's name was Robert, so it stuck out as strange to me. It certainly wouldn't be the last time Bob would change his name.

It is said that Bob's occupation in Wilmington was the same as his occupation in Trench Town, a welder. But in all the photographs of Bob I have looked at in research for this paper I am still yet to find any photo of him at a workbench with some welding tools. Similarly, I can't find any photos of Bob with a pen and paper in the studio writing his songs. Strange.

One more detail about Wilmington that I think is fairly interesting is Bob's cousin Norma Robb. She was a daughter of a Malcolm (Bob's aunt) and a Davis, yet she chose to take her 2great-grandmother Jeanette Whilby's maiden name Robb. Norma married a Belnavis who isn't named. I find this interesting since the mother of Bob's son Ky-Mani Marley is a lady called Anita Belnavis.

Next in the documentary we meet another lover of Bob, Cindy Cameron Breakspeare. She was Miss World in 1976 and mother to Bob's son Damian. Cindy's chronology is all over the place. Esther Anderson (Chris Blackwell, Marlon Brando(?) & Bob Marley's girlfriend) says that she and Bob ended things in 1973 due to Bob seeing Cindy. The official narrative from Wiki tells us that their relationship lasted from 1976 to 1980. So we are getting the first clue Bob may qualify for the quadrifecta. Neville Garrick tells us in the documentary that Bob met Cindy when she was living at 56 Hope Road with her brother who is well scrubbed online. Bob bought 56 Hope Road in 1975 off of Chris Blackwell. I'm unable to find out how or when Blackwell became the owner of the property only a couple of doors down from the Governor and Prime Minister of Jamaica. According to this big nosed Phoenician at Dickie Jobson's memorial, Island House was also the home of "luminaries" like Winston Stona, Thelma Manley (Michael's wife) and Sally Henzell (Perry's wife). Looks like a spook hub to me.

That house was a millionaire's mansion, and Marley had been living there since he came home from London in 1973, since Blackwell had just given it to him.

During this period, Blackwell gifted his Kingston residence and company headquarters at 56 Hope Road (then known as Island House) to Marley. Housing Tuff Gong Studios, the property became not only Marley's office but also his home.[55]

Pretty strange, right, since Marley had allegedly just met Blackwell and they had worked together on only one album, which had just come out. The only way it makes sense is if Marley and Blackwell were close cousins, as we are seeing they were.

Cindy's middle name Cameron was another Scottish clan name that popped out at me, I knew I had to do a deep dive on this lady. If you didn't know, Cameron is Gaelic for crooked nose & Campbell is Gaelic for crooked mouth. Read, JEWISH.

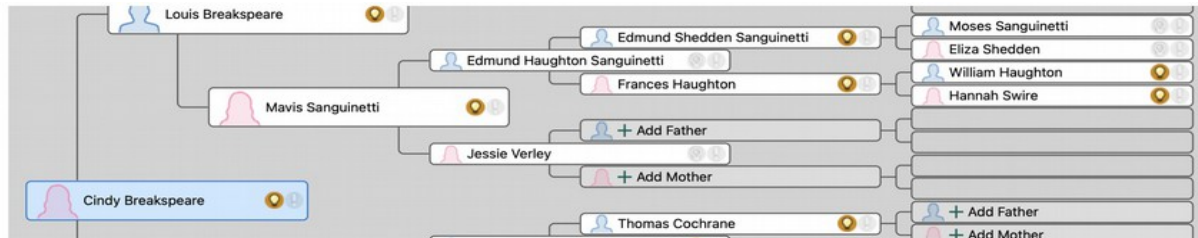

Cindy is fairly well scrubbed online, but I pieced a bit together and still found something interesting. See her 3g-grandfather Moses was a sugar plantation slave owner who was Justice of the Peace in Jamaica. His son Frederick, Edmund's brother, married the daughter of William Lee, Administrator-General of Jamaica. Frederick worked as chief clerk in the Colonial Secretary's Office. Though uncredited on Wiki, he was one of the originators and for a time one of the joint-editors of the Handbook of Jamaica. Who produced this book? The head of the Government Printing Office in Jamaica. His name was Augustus Constantine Sinclair. We met his sister Sarah Antoinette Sinclair briefly earlier, she was mother of the 21st & 22nd Chiefs of Clan Donnachaidh.

In July 1981, two months after Bob allegedly died, the heartbroken Ms. Breakspeare married Tom Tavares-Finson, a member of the Middle Temple (read Phoenician) who may be related to Jamaican PM Andrew Holness. Tavares-Finson would go on to become President of the Senate of Jamaica and his deputy was a Charles Sinclair Jr. Small world.

Also notice that Cindy's great great grandmother was a Haughton, it may explain how Cindy got a job at the Spartan Health Club. A club owned by the Jamaican Mickey Haughton-James. I suspect they're related. Remember when we came across these names while looking into Norman Washington Manley. Haughton-James also ran the Miss Jamaica World competition that sent Cindy to Miss World.

The Miss World competitions look like another fix to me. The founders of that competition was a Julia Pritchard & her husband Eric Douglas Morley. We've seen a few of those already haven't we? While Eric's genealogy is well scrubbed online he throws up the usual spooky red flags. Parents died when he was young, said his father was an Oxford man and a polyglot. Joined the army, went into broadcasting for the BBC after the RAF, then went on to be the head of multiple million pound businesses, as you do. Eric owned the Mecca Ballrooms that Bob would play at when starting out his career in England. He also owned the Lyceum theatre, where Bob's legendary Live! album was recorded in 1975.

Breakspeare is another curious name, as that was the name of the only “English” pope, Nicholas Breakspear, he would also have a crooked nose. This pope's descendants would go on to found the Brakspear Brewery in 1711 and have used the logo of the bee to pay homage to the pope who is said to have used the symbol of a bee on his mitre as a reminder of the ‘B’ at the start of his original surname. From Gerry's Ancient Spooks paper and the Ghostbusters Castle of Cagliostro paper we know that is rubbish and the bees are a signal to other Jewish spooks who the hidden rulers are and what they are up to.

This Pope Adrian IV is the Pope who gave the lion in winter King Henry II permission to invade Ireland. Richard de Clare, the 2nd Earl of Pembroke, also known as Strongbow, played a leading role in the invasion. Strongbow's an interesting chap, he is descended from Counts of Vermandois, Flanders & Anjou. He is also descended from the Capetian dynasty, the Robertian Kings of France, the Princes of Kiev, Byzantine Emperors & the Merovingian dynasty. Do you see why I was looking for a link between de Clares and Sinclairs earlier?

Given everything you have seen above, we understand why I have seen so many articles over the last few weeks in my research describing Bob as a prophet. Take for example this BBC Arena documentary on the man (I have previously outed Arena as a spook outfit to Miles). In the first few minutes you have Bob's mate Neville Garrick describing the “most unsolved crime of the century” about the fake assassination attempt at Hope Road. Skip to three minutes in where the narrator says:

Bob Marley's response to being shot was to make his most successful album Exodus, he recorded it in 1977 and he recorded it in London where he lived for that year in an enforced exodus of his own. His miraculous escape would be a turning point. In the following year, he would be transformed from a reggae star into a prophet.

There is some serious wizardry going on here with these Biblical undertones, the BBC know what they are up to. Here's a little game, go on YouTube and look up any Bob Marley song or documentary, have a scroll through the comments and look for the word prophet. Deification in process, Marley's songs are his parables promulgating junk values to the multitudes.

So why do I think Marley is a Sinclair? Well, his father's name was Norval Sinclair Marley, I think that's a clue. Doesn't sound like the name of a slave or someone from a line of slaves, does it? Slaves didn't need three names, for a start. Well, they admit Bob's father was white, so I don't have to prove anything here, though I suspect a lot of people don't know that to this day. I didn't.

Part II to follow.