

The Nowak Event in England was Staged

by Miles Mathis

June 8, 2026

I was just waiting until the pile of evidence got big enough, and it didn't take long. See this Steve Watson report at Zerohedge.

The first thing I noticed days ago was the victim's name Henry Nowak. That's a variant spelling of Novak, of course, Jewish. They are even pronouncing it Novak at many sources. See for example New York Congressman Henry Nowak, admitted to be Jewish. His mother was a Bittner, Jewish. See also Egon Bittner, Jewish.

No information has been available on this kid, so they are hiding it. Also curiously not promoting this as violence against Jews, so they went a different direction here. They didn't need that angle this time, since it was to be sold as Sikh versus White.

Note the background in the middle photo above, of Nowak. What do you see? The number 18 not once but twice. That's the signal this is a fake. Nowak was allegedly 18, so those are supposed to be birthday balloons, but the photo is clearly a paste.

Just look at him! You can tell at a glance he is an agent. Either that or a Mormon.

The killer Vickrum Singh Digwa had also clearly been an MI5 asset for years, since he had conspicuously been let slide from prosecution for years. When neighbors filed reports he and friends were firing off illegal weapons, the police refused to investigate or pursue because “no other neighbors had complained”. That's like refusing to investigate a murder because no other victims had been murdered.

The name is normally spelled Vikram or Vickram, not Vickrum. He was a Gatka instructor, possibly again indicating links to British intelligence. We are told he was unstable and violent, known to local police, but we also find he was working at a local accountancy firm, which doesn't scan. Remember the Monty Python skit about chartered accountants? Do you think a firm like that is going to hire a wildman in a turban openly carrying multiple weapons?

Sikhs are known for their Intelligence connections, both here and in the UK. I remind you of the notorious James Jesus Angleton, #2 in the CIA under Helms in the 1960s and 70s, who led the infamous Operation Chaos. His children became Sikhs and led a large US faction in New Mexico, under the Yogi Bhajan. Angleton came out of OSS in London in the 1940s. He was a great friend of E. E. Cummings, which tells us a lot about Cummings.

Upon news of his death, the past and then-present heads of Mossad and Shin Bet secretly gathered to hold a tree-planting ceremony in honor of Angleton in a grove about ten miles west of Jerusalem's Old City.[64][65] Angleton is also commemorated in Jerusalem with the "Jim Angleton Corner", an overlook point in Yemin Moshe.[66]

That's Wiki, giving us the clues, as usual. But back to Yogi Bhajan. I lived in Taos for 14 years and learned some things about him. It is now admitted he was a sexual predator, but I suspect him of being a CIA front from the beginning. His father was doctor working for the British, and although they are sold as Sikhs, Harbhajan was actually raised in a Catholic school by nuns. Not unlike many of the other Indian spooks we have unclocked. He had a Masters degree in Economics, which we are supposed to believe he got at Camp College, whatever that is. My guess is he actually went to the London School of Economics, where these people normally get their degrees in economics. At age 39 he came into his full promotion, being sent to Toronto by the High Commissioner of Canada to Ceylon James George, who was an admitted Intel officer. So there is your Intelligence link right there. George also promoted Gurdjieff, Yogaswami, and Krishnamurti, proving my point. All these people were Intelligence projects and fronts.

Bhajan was sent almost immediately (1969) to Los Angeles, to infiltrate and detooth the hippie movement there, which he did by preaching vegetarianism although Sikhs are supposed to be carnivores.

So this begs the question: is Sikhism a totally manufactured religion, and was it always a front for Intelligence? It is a question to ask, since I have already asked it about Western denominations like the Quakers and found the answer to be an obvious and resounding yes. The first clue is that although they are said to have been around since the 1500s, there isn't much evidence of that, much of the history looking manufactured later. The Sikh Empire didn't arise until 1800, but it was absorbed by the East India Company within 50 years, telling us all we need to know. But they admit they came out of the Khattris of Northern India, not Ceylon.

In the Indian subcontinent, they were mostly engaged in mercantile professions such as banking and trade.^{[15][16][17]} They were the dominant commercial and financial administration class of late-medieval India.^[17] Some in Punjab often belonged to hereditary agriculturalist land-holding lineages,^{[18][19]} while others were engaged in artisanal occupations such as silk production and weaving.^{[20][21][22][23]}

Aha, how many of the usual red flags just popped up there?

Khatris have played an active role in the Indian Armed Forces since 1947, with many heading it as the Chief of Army or Admiral of the Navy.

Just a coincidence, I'm sure.

I also remind you of Ram Dass, real name Richard Alpert, Jewish, who claimed to be a disciple of Neem Karoli Baba, who he hardly knew. But the name Ram Dass is actually Sikh, being the name of a famous Sikh guru. This previous Ram Dass was born Jetha Mal Sodhi, which looks to me like a slurred Hebrew/Phoenician name rather than an Indian name. Try Jethro Malachai Soderbergh. Remember, I have already shown you the links between Northern India and the Jewish traders who ran it, especially the ones who spoke Persian. The early Sikhs spoke Persian.

During the medieval period, with the rise of Persian as an elite vernacular due to Islamic rule, some of the traditional high status upper-caste literate elite^[25] such as the Khatris, Kashmiri Brahmins and Kayasthas took readily to learning Persian from the times of Sikandar Lodi onwards and found ready employment in the Imperial Services, specifically in the departments of accountancy (siyaq), draftsmanship (insha) and offices of the revenue minister (diwan).^{[26][14]}

The bluff about Sikh weapons being legal is also a joke. We are told that Sikhs are allowed big knives that no one else can carry, but that is false. They aren't. The UK is far more strict than the US about weapons, so you should have pulled up right there. Tiny ceremonial knives worn round the neck may be legal, but huge curved battle knives are certainly not. And even if they were, the story still breaks down here, because Digwa was treated like an asset even after being arrested. He kept all weapons in the car and wasn't even cuffed. Only a high-value asset would be treated like that. We are now discovering Digwa was a “mentally unstable person known to be violent by local police”, so it would be a danger to officers to put him in the car under those conditions. He had already used the weapons, so the Sikh defense would not apply regardless. At that point they were no longer ceremonial.

And why would the officer famously say, "I don't think you are, mate", when Nowak claimed he had been stabbed? Because he wasn't. If you had been stabbed five times with a big curved blade over eight inches long and were bleeding out on the pavement, I think a police officer might see some blood, right? Blood would probably be coming out of the mouth from internal bleeding. But we see none of that.

He had already suffered a fatal injury; a blood trail indicated he had already been stabbed.^[16]

The police just missed that, right?

So why would Southampton police look so bad here, if it was all staged? I don't know, but I suggest that perhaps they resisted Scotland Yard or the Home Office in this vaudeville, and were punished for it.

Unlike the murders we have looked at recently in the US, conviction came lightning fast here, with Digwa being indicted, taken to trial, convicted, and sentenced in about five months. They needed desperately to keep it in the headlines, to drown out other things.

It now comes out that Nowak is dual citizen of UK and Poland, so they are trying to sell the name Nowak as Polish. But as I reminded you, it is just the Polish spelling of the Jewish Novak. His mother is conspicuously not given at Wikipedia, telling me something big is being hidden there. Maybe he is a Hiller or a Cohen?

Nowak was born in Westminster and grew up in Chafford Hundred, part of Grays, Essex. At Southampton, he was a member of two university football teams.^{[4][5][6]}

That's unnecessarily vague, isn't it? Being born in Westminster is a big clue, since it points at possible wealth. And being on two university football teams at Southampton also implies a possible Intelligence candidate.

It was at this point I realized his Wikipedia page already has 93 footnotes. That's a bit uncanny itself.

Nowak tried to flee the scene, we are told, but Digwa did not. The opposite of what you would expect. Digwa's brother Gurpreet called the police, and then called their mother, who arrived before police. So the whole family was there waiting for the police! So cosy. That's what you would do, right, if you just killed a man? Call the police on yourself and then wait for them to show up.

You will say his brother Gurpreet called the police, not Vickrum, Gurpreet being innocent. No, Gurpreet was also arrested at the scene, and had on his person three offensive weapons, including an axe, a large knife, and an extendable baton. He has been charged with illegal possession and carrying of those. He, too, was put into the police car with those weapons still on him, without cuffs.

Police allowed Digwa to meet his brother in a police van on 5 December.

That's two days after the murder, so make sense of that if you can. It is proof this whole thing was staged, since that would never happen had any of this been real.

Nowak's funeral was January 23, 51 days after his death. Man, his body must have been gamey by then! Except that there was no body. The fake funeral was at Brentwood cathedral, so we are supposed to believe Nowak was Catholic. I don't.

The trial was under Judge Mousley, who presides in Bournemouth Crown Court, according to the web. But the trial was in Southampton Crown Court, not Bournemouth Crown Court, for obvious reasons: the event was in Southampton.

On 3 May 2022, His Honour Judge William Mousley KC was appointed resident judge for Bournemouth Crown Court.^[10]

So what was this all about? Well, we can read it just from all the known agents who started blabbing immediately, starting with Tommy Robinson, real name Stephen Yaxley-Lennon, peerage. I have already outed him as a mouthpiece of MI5 or some such agency. Even the agents in the US chimed in, see Musk, Vance, etc. The UK, like the US, would obviously prefer Civil War to Revolution, since they want us fighting amongst ourselves instead of arresting them all for genocide, gaslighting, civil rights violations, racketeering, treasury theft, money laundering, and every other crime you could name.
