Don't Panic

by Miles Mathis

November 4, 2026

I am rushing this into print, since some of my readers are up a tree over the midterms. But you may have noticed I haven't written anything about the midterms. Unlike almost everyone else, I have not recommended candidates, parties, or platforms. I have ignored the whole thing. So I am here to give you a different reading: to tell you what no one else will tell you.

Why didn't I comment on the elections beforehand? Because I knew it was all pre-planned. The opposite party always has to win the midterms now, to give them an excuse for keeping everything gummed up for another two years, to make sure nothing gets done. Remember, even Obama lost his midterms badly in both 2010 and 2014. In 2010 the Dems lost 63 seats and the House, and lost six seats in the Senate. In 2014, the Senate flipped Red and the House stayed Red, with the Dems losing 9 seats in the Senate and 13 in the House. Note that: the House was Red during Obama's entire second term. Did the world end for the Dems? No.

If your memory doesn't go back that far, due to too many drugs or something, try to go back just two years, when the Dems looked like they were finished. The party was in a shambles, they couldn't find anyone decent to run, and only about a third of voters were registered Dems. After four years of Biden no one wanted to admit they were a Dem. Now, everyone is running around saying the Republican Party is finished, even Republicans. How could that happen in just two years? How could we go in two years from the Democrats being on the edge of extinction to the Republicans now being on the edge of extinction?

Well. . . we didn't. Like everything else, this is all being manufactured. They can't let the Republican Party go extinct any more than they could the Democratic Party, because you need two parties for the illusion of democracy. If you only have one party, there is no reason to vote, which gives people no point of contact with the government. They already have no real point of contact, but this just makes it obvious to everyone.

You will say it was two years of Trump that did it: the Iran War, the crap in Israel, the threats of nuclear armageddon, the BS in Venezuela, the return of Round-Up, the defense budget bloat, the AI promotion, and so on. Yes, but that too was manufactured, and not by Trump. He is just an actor, remember, reading from Teleprompters. Like Biden, he was scripted to fail, in just this way. So all this is happening not due to any voter turnout or protest vote against Trump, it is happening because it is the current script. This is what the Phoenicians decided to do, and it would have happened no matter how you voted.

Why? Because they decided this was the best way to squelch the revolution. As I have said many times, they are promoting civil war to prevent revolution. They want us fighting eachother, so they promote this factionalism and all others as the best way to do that. They want Red fighting Blue, men fighting women, gays fighting straights, old fighting young, pro-abortion fighting anti-abortion. Because if we are fighting one another we aren't coming after them. It is that simple and always has been.

And of course the gumming up has a further benefit for the deep state: they are trying to wean you off Congress, the President, and the Supreme Court, just like they are trying to wean you off the Constitution. They have already long since bypassed all that, ruling by dictat from International Headquarters, but it would help if you eventually signed off on that, giving a thumbs up to mothballing American history in favor of the shiny New World Order tyranny. They would prefer you continue to slowly enslave yourselves, as you have been doing marvelously well for decades.

[I also remind you that Trump had a Red Congress, both houses, for the past two years, so a mandate, but did nothing with it. Congress did pretty much squat for the past two years, everything being done by Trump by executive order. So Congress is meaningless. Robert Reich told us rightly it was defunct and emeritus 30 years ago, just a papermache front. Its positive power is almost nil, except in rubberstamping military and spy budgets, all its remaining usefulness being negative—squabbling, giving fake press conferences, running fake hearings, voting noisy half-impeachments that are meaningless, etc. It is just a lot of noise signifying nothing.]

The Phoenicians could have avoided revolution in the way I have recommended: backing out of this whole Operation Chaos slowly and turning back the clock in most ways. They could have let Trump keep his platform promises, for instance, keeping us out of wars and focusing on domestic problems. That would have been a start. They could then lower defense budgets by huge amounts and promote a local, non-defense economy based on manufacturing and production of things that need to be produced —instead of things that don't. They could focus on finding good jobs for people, instead of jobs for robots. They could focus on rebuilding the middle class and finding people decent homes they can afford. But that doesn't fit the futurist predatory agenda of the WEF-class, where everything continues to be vacuumed into the pockets of just a few overlords. So they are sticking with this manufacturing of fear, faction, and civil war.

Note the headlines: it is always fearporn 24/7 now. The world is always just about to end for some reason or every reason: incoming asteroids, the Sun burning up, Global Warming, crop failures, Super El Nino, stock market crash, alien invasion, bomb cyclones or other hyper-weather, and now political upheaval. They need you not only anxious but fully panicked, not only to sell you all their new fake drugs, but to keep you too confused and off-balance to think straight.

For a revolution, the first thing you need is to think straight. Which is why I am here: to think straight for you.

If you were thinking straight you would notice this election—like all the others—makes no sense. As just one example, I have commented many times how strange it has been to see the left attacking Israel so vocally in this cycle. It is upside down to all history, since Jews typically vote Blue. Everyone knows that. Both parties have been very pro-Israel for a long time. But for some reason they made this election about Israel, using Trump's support for Israel as one of the top ways to blackwash him, and through him the Republican Party. They still are, even after the election, as we see many outlets saying Trump lost due to his ties to Netanyahu and Israel. But that makes no sense, because if we check the votes, we find Jews voted 2 to 1, or 67%, for the Dems. So something doesn't add up there. Either the vote numbers are manufactured or the new stories are manufactured, or both.

The answer is . . . both. Pretty much all news is fake news now, and they haven't counted real votes for decades. It is all made up by computers. The vote counting is now just part of the vaudeville. After going in to the polls and having my vote disappear year after year*, I finally gave up. I told you years ago the only answer there is the write-in vote, which we should be writing with pens on paper and nailing to the townhall door. But no one has caught up to me there yet, so here we are.

The bottom line is that we needed a revolution before the midterms and we still need one. This fake landslide changes nothing. Do you really think any of these bozos just elected to Congress or governorships from either party are going to change anything? When did that ever happen in the history of the world? I am actually thrilled by the outcome, since it moves up the revolution even more. This will just make things worse, which will bring things to a head all the sooner. If Trump had kept any of his promises, or if the Phoenicians decided to reverse course in any other ways, that might stall the revolution by solving some real problems, but that hasn't happened. Operation Chaos is being accelerated even more, and that Chaos is guaranteed to backfire on the governors. Everything since 911 has backfired on them, and it will continue to do so with ever greater speed and fury.

So stay frosty. You don't need to panic, but you do need to keep a clear head and make good decisions. You need to resist. You need to refuse the lies. And most of all you need to remember who the enemy is. It isn't your neighbors.

*As I have written before, I voted for Ron Paul on a machine, watching the vote counter as I did. The number did not advance after my vote as it should, meaning the machine just ate my vote, like a candy machine eating your quarters. The machine had clearly been programmed to jettison any vote for Ron Paul. I tried to report this to a poll worker, but there is no way to do that. They provide no way to file a complaint or report, and I had no proof anyway. I would need to have filmed the whole thing, which I didn't. Not that it would have mattered: if they can jettison a vote they can then jettison all complaints or reports just as easily.

Orders that are then shot down by fake courts that have no authority to override or even rule on Presidential actions. Only Congress or the Supreme Court could be doing that. But the result is more gumming up. More nothing.