

I beg your PARDON!

The main thing I did today is update the Mangione paper, but that wasn't all I got done. I also updated my bikes paper, adding two old bikes and many detail photos. One of them is an original Schwinn Black Phantom I restored while I was still in Taos, so check it out. I forgot I had it in storage. But I tripped across some old photos of it in my camera today, while looking for other things.

In the same way, I found old and better photos of my painting of Chyna (above). She is also in storage, but at least she now looks much better online. I just sold a pastel drawing of her and was digging through old photos for that, but discovered that oil painting instead. Take the link to see it bigger and with the frame.

The other thing I did today is remember to tell you that it is impossible to pardon yourself or pre-emptively pardon anyone. Both of them contradict the definition of the word. A man cannot pardon himself anymore than he can legally judge himself, since both actions require an object. The self is not an object of the self, by definition. The self is the subject.

Likewise, you cannot pardon someone pre-emptively, since a pardon requires a crime. Until you have been convicted, or at least charged with a crime, you cannot be pardoned since there exists nothing to pardon you for. I will be told Ford pre-pardoned Nixon for Watergate, but that was just a continuation of that dog-and-pony show and was meaningless. Not only was Nixon never charged with anything, he didn't do anything wrt Watergate. The CIA pulled Watergate, not Nixon, so there was never any crime to pardon in the case of Nixon. Ford didn't need to pardon the CIA, since the CIA was and is untouchable.

If you don't believe me, here is what it says in the first sentence at Wikipedia:

A pardon is a government decision to allow a person to be relieved of some or all of the legal consequences resulting from a criminal conviction. A pardon may be granted before or after conviction for the crime, depending on the laws of the jurisdiction.

A pardon may be granted before conviction, but logically not before arrest or charge, since before arrest and charge there are no legal consequences. You cannot relieve someone of legal consequences who has no legal consequences. LOGIC!

Since Trump cannot arrest or charge anyone until he is President—or, he cannot order Justice to pursue that—and since Biden cannot pardon anyone when he is no longer President, there is no possible overlap here. There is nothing Biden can do about Trump's future prosecutions. Trump saying he may prosecute them is legally meaningless until he actually does it. Trump yapping before he is legally President on January 20, 2025, does not create any legal consequences for anyone.

Since the office of the President, and most of the federal government, is now just theater, you may see pre-emptive pardons from Biden. I am not saying you won't. But if you do they will be meaningless huff and bluff. Being bluff, Trump could ignore them if he wanted to, and if he doesn't ignore them it just means he didn't want to. It wasn't in the script.

Just so you know, the President can also not pardon impeachment. That isn't logic, that is Constitutional. So Biden couldn't pardon Trump or Clinton's impeachment by the House. He also couldn't pardon Andrew Johnson, which is really a pity. And if Biden gets us fully into WW3 between now and January 20 and gets impeached for it, he can't pardon himself for that.

What else can I tell you? Well, I can tell you the hubbub in Syria is also staged, as an extension of the fake war in Israel. Like the Mangione event, that event in Syria happened way too fast to be real. You don't have rebels waltz in and take the whole country overnight, with no fighting. You don't have the Syrian army standing down completely, with no one in Damascus killed and only one building damaged. I would bet you anything that building was derelict and already scheduled for demolition, like the Murrah building in Oklahoma City, the buildings in Oslo, and so on. We can also tell because the rebels are said to be Al Qaeda. Al Qaeda has been a CIA front from the beginning, and you will remember it was said to be run out Saudi Arabia by Saudi royal Osama bin Laden back before 911. Although it is allegedly an Arab group, these new Al Qaeda actors in Syria are saying they love Israel and are planning to install a pro-Western regime in Damascus. Make sense of that if you can! A pro-Western Al Qaeda. Hamas and the Taliban also congratulated Al Qaeda and the Syrian people for throwing off Assad. Again, impossible to make sense of except for my readers, who know Hamas and the Taliban are also CIA fronts.

We also know this is staged because the head of Al Qaeda Syria is a tool named Abu Mohammed Al-Golani. Real name probably something like Abe Goldman.

There he is, our cloaked Jew-in-a-Turban of the month. To hide the Abe Goldman giveaway, they have already changed his name for the current fake news cycle. He is now Ahmad al-Sharaa. So maybe his real name was Aram Sharon. Here he is doing his best Castro impression:

Not bad, not bad at all. You have to wonder what he sounds like in an interview. I am guessing something like Woody Allen, or maybe Mike Myers doing Barbra Streisand. He is all verklempt about taking Damascus so easily, and thinks Netanyahu is Meshuggana (in a good way, oivay). Trump is his bubeleh. Talk amongst yourselves.

Update December 13, 2024: Well, it didn't take long to prove my guess was right. Sharaa isn't his real name either, it is David. He is Jewish and graduated from the School of Islamic Jurisprudence (Law School) in Tel Aviv:
