

Puff Daddy Ain't in Jail

by Miles Mathis

November 25, 2025

I have told you before Puff Daddy isn't in jail and never was, and we have more proof today, as the mainstream is releasing more obviously fake photos. That photo above is tagged as his recent intake photo at FCI Fort Dix. You have to laugh at how bad it is. It's an obvious paste, with horrible quality. Was it shot from the Space Station, or what? It has all the resolution of fog, and his neck and shoulders are straight lines. How does that work? AI doesn't seem to understand how reality works. Plus, do you really think that dude is six feet tall? Yeah, maybe with six-inch platform shoes, but I don't think they allow those in jail, man.

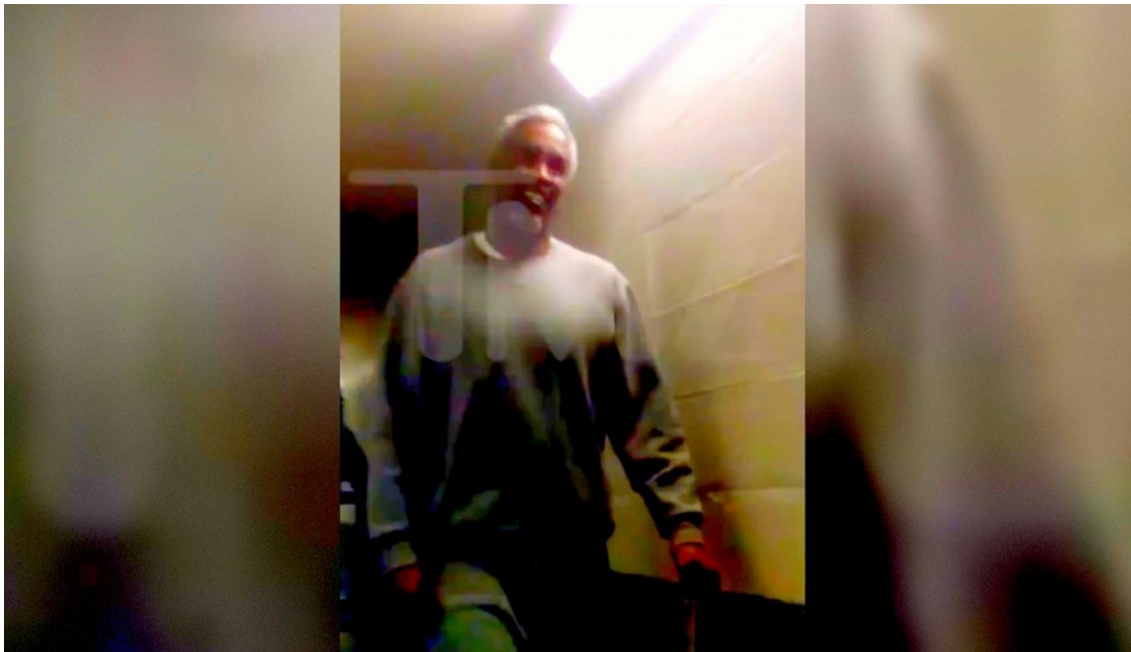

Is this guy six feet tall?

So Will Smith is 6'7"? No, he is listed as 6'2", but even that is an exaggeration. All actors boost their height by at least two inches, and the shorter ones more. Smith isn't over 6 feet, so Puff is about 5'6" there. He neglected to wear his lifts that day, I guess.

Here's the other photo they are publishing this week:

Seriously? Who OK'ed that for release, Stevie Wonder? That is clearly computer generated, by a computer just barely familiar with the real world. I didn't realize Puff had orange hands, or that he was allowed to wear green tights under his skirt in jail.

Apparently, despite the early problems he faced when arriving in the low-security FCI Fort Dix in New Jersey, disgraced rap mogul Sean 'Diddy' Combs seems to be faring well in his new 'home' for the next couple of years. A video of Diddy in Fort Dix has been released showing him smiling and relaxed.

I just watched that video from TMZ, and it shows nothing except some black guy who can't be identified walking through a bookstore or library. Then another guy who can't be identified walks down a hallway. Proof of nothing, since even if that IS Puff (and I don't think it is), it is easy to bring him in for a photo op, like they did with Manson for years.

And why run this fake? The huge Men-are-Pigs project, meant to split the sexes. It also does duty in the manufactured race wars, since it spoils the black/white relationship as well. And why would Puff agree to it, ruining his legacy? Because his career was over and he doesn't care about any legacy. These people don't believe in legacies, since they don't believe in the afterlife. He probably found it amusing to act in this vaudeville, since it is his biggest Hollywood part to date. Playing the bad guy is always the most interesting part. And he no doubt got paid handsomely by the CIA, from your taxdollars, of course.