

Ahmed Hussein al-Sharaa

People are having trouble understanding how this guy managed to go from one of the most dangerous jihadists in the world in 2017, with a $10 million bounty on his head, to President of Syria in 2024 and now UN delegate, hobnobbing with world rulers in New York on the anniversary of 911. That's quite a turnaround in just seven years. It is even harder to understand since they all but admit he was installed in Syria by the US/Israel, the same people that had allegedly been seeking him for years. He just happened to take over Syria in December 2024, exactly when Israel was invading it, but that's just a coincidence, right? Al-Sharaa and his family used to be anti-Israel, but I guess not anymore: now they run Syria for Israel. We are told al-Sharaa was appointed Prime Minister by the Syrian General Command, and then appointed himself President as well, but that Command had no authority to be appointing Prime Ministers or Presidents. Syria had been a military dictatorship under Assad since 1963, so there was no such thing as a President, strictly speaking, much less a Prime Minister.

So let me explain it for you as simply as I can: this proves—like nothing else could—that al-Sharaa was always a CIA actor and front and still is. Do you get it now? The Syrian General Command is run by the CIA.

The whole dangerous jihadist thing was just Hollywood. Another ruse. Vaudeville. A story they made up to give US military/intelligence something to do, like almost everything else you are told.

Don't believe me? What if I told you al-Sharaa wasn't a violent jihadist from a revolutionary underclass—as they used to imply—but was actually a rich boy from a prominent oil family. Wikipedia admits it, telling us his father was an engineer for the Saudi ministry of petroleum, owned a real estate company, and owned grocery stores, all three. His brother Maher holds a doctorate of medical sciences, having worked for two major universities in Russia and one in Turkey. So the opposite of a terrorist. He is now Ahmed's Secretary-General. Cosy, right? Ahmed's other brother Hazem has two law doctorates and one masters in economics. His uncle Farouk al-Sharaa—who has a degree in English Literature—was Vice President of Syria from 2006-2014 under Assad. He had previously lived in London while working for the Syrian airlines. So the family was always pro-Ba'athist and pro-Western. It would be like them telling you Al Gore's nephew overthrew the Democratic Party and the US Government.

And I point you to the title here, where we find that al-Sharaa is also a Hussein. We have seen them many times. Of course Obama is also a Hussein.

But it gets better, since on Maher's page we have a totally different description of their father. There he is an economist, researcher, and writer. So, let's see, that is now six things this Hussein al-Sharaa allegedly did for a living:

- 1) he was an engineer in Riyadh, working for the Saudis. Ahmed was born there.
- 2) He was a real estate mogul of some sort.
- 3) He owned a grocery store.
- 4) He was an economist.
- 5) He was a researcher.
- 6) He was a writer.

He has his own Wiki page, where we are told he was imprisoned at least three times, not sure what for, but he escaped at least once, as you do in the Middle East (see Midnight Express), fleeing to Iraq to continue his studies at age 28. In various interviews, he and his sons have claimed he has PhDs or advanced degrees in economics, international relations, law, political science, and engineering. So, not really the father of one of the top terrorists in the world.

It reminds me of the underwear bomber, Umar Farouk Abdulmutallab, as much as anything, who it turns out had a masters in engineering from University College London and whose father is one of the richest men in Africa.

Also reminds us of Whitey Bulger. You remember him, right: #1 on the FBI's ten most wanted list for decades. Except that, as we discovered, Whitey just happened to be the brother of the President of the Massachusetts Senate and President of UMASS. They now admit Whitey came out the Air Force and was an FBI informant. Ah, so an FBI informant on the ten most wanted list! That figures. The ten most wanted list is about as genuine as the New York Times bestseller list. And they admit this on Whitey's Wiki page but expect you not to figure out what it means. They expect you to continue to buy the huge fiction that is Whitey's life of crime, just as they expect you to continue to buy the story of this al-Sharaa joker.
