

State of the Disunion

by Miles Mathis

February 25, 2026

Both the Republicans and Democrats embarrassed themselves at the State of the Union address, showing the real state of the union. All these people on both sides of the aisle are mentally ill and should immediately be institutionalized before they cause more harm. Yes, they are actors, so some of them are feigning illness, but that doesn't excuse anything. The script is for maximum chaos, remember, so none of this was organic. The heckling was scripted, Trump's taunts were scripted (he is reading from a script, remember, you can see him reading straight from the Teleprompter), and all the commentary on both sides was scripted to melt your mind. They want you focusing on these manufactured stories instead of focusing on the real problems. It is all the usual Phoenician vaudeville and conjob, pulling your eyes to their circuses.

And that includes the Epstein saga, which is, at its core, just the greatest Men-are-Pigs project ever written.

I remind you all those people Trump dragged out to give medals to and have moments of silence for are fake. The Coast Guard dude from the Camp Mystic flood is an actor, since that never happened. The pretty chick from Ukraine killed by the black pimp is an actress and she isn't dead. That was faked. Same for the little girl hit by an illegal alien trucker: fake. All scripted emotionalism and MysteryScienceTheater2026 BS.

Presidential Medal of Freedom for a Hockey Goalie?

While giving Bayer/Monsanto immunity against Round-up lawsuits? That's one of the things they were keeping your eyes off with this noisy spectacle. What else?

Well, Trump and RFK and Musk were supposed to be shutting down the experiments on dogs and cats at NIH, but turns out that was just the usual lip-flapitude. Despite RFK being the head of HHS, which oversees NIH, these horrible experiments continue. Why hasn't Trump or Kennedy fired Nicole Kleinstreuer? If you or I had been appointed head of HHS or elected President, that is the very first thing we would have done, day one. How hard is it? You rescue the animals, home them or send them to shelters or vets, and lock the doors of the labs. You fire all those ghouls and prosecute them for animal cruelty.

What happened to prosecuting Fauci? That's old news and they have to keep you inundated with new news.

What happened to all the prosecutions for LIBOR and many other huge banking scandals, where all the biggest banks in the world were involved up to their necks, stealing trillions from stock markets, retired people, municipalities, and everyone else? Somehow that also just evaporated while you were watching Game of Thrones and MSNBC and FoxNews and CNN and the Olympics, didn't it?

What else? How about the largest “defense” budget in history by far? Defense against what, exactly? That budget is ten times larger than Russia or China. No one is attacking China, are they, so we could get by on a budget of about 50 billion, rather than one trillion. Saving you $950 billion in one year, off the top. But you are an American: you like paying ten times more for everything, it just makes you feel important. You make fun of those people who shop at Whole Foods and pay five dollars for a pear, but you don't mind paying huge taxes to buy $2 billion bomber jets. No, Trump isn't much worse than Democratic presidents in that regard, but they all promise to get us out of wars and lower the defense budget, then do the exact opposite. They then run these daily circuses to keep your mind off it . . . and you let them.

How about Artemis, the big fake Moon project you are paying billions for? That's just what you asked for, right, another fake trip to the Moon? But this time they have CGI, so they can almost make it look real, if you are bombed on enough pharmaceuticals. If you're not . . . ask your doctor!

What about auditing the Fed? How did that turn out?

How about the gold in Fort Knox? How did that turn out?

How about the declassified Kennedy documents? What did you learn there? Same thing you are about to learn from the declassified alien documents. We will learn again what gobemouches we always were (look it up—it's a great word—every cat should know what cat means).

How about your income taxes going to zero, paid for with Trump's tariffs? It is tax season: is that what you are entering on your forms?

How about house rental prices coming down? Is that your experience? How about meat and egg prices coming down? Is that your experience? How about chocolate and coffee prices coming down? Is that your experience? No, it and won't be your experience ever again, since due to hyperinflation things will only rise ever faster. That is a guarantee due to the quadrillion-dollar debt you “owe” to bankers and other rich people, since you can't pay them any other way. You have zip in the bank, so the only way you can pay them this manufactured “debt” is through food and housing prices and so on. But forget about that and concentrate on AOC's dress or Pelosi's dentures or Don Lemon's Gucci boots.

What about the vaccine genocide? When is Pfizer going to pay back all the money it stole there?

When is the company going to be put into receivership and cashed out to pay all the lawsuits for death and injury with malice? When are all those people going to be locked up as mass murderers? Not any time soon, since Trump is still calling their CEO Bourla a “great great man”. Sort of like calling Goebbels or Mengele a great great man.

Funny Trump didn't have anything to say in his 108 minute speech about all the tens of billions of your taxes he is sending to Israel, and all the weapons he is selling them. But wait, money is going in both directions in that sentence isn't it? So is Israel buying weapons from us with your money we just gave them? How does that work? I'm no accountant, but it looks to me like you are footing the bill for Israel's entire military, which they can then use against unarmed Palestinian children, clearing the Middle East of non-Jews to make room for Trump's New Riviera. All of Palestine turned into a Mar-a-Lago of private golf courses and upscale hotels and overpriced bistros and planted palm trees.

What middle-class American wouldn't want to be taxed to subsidize that? Like larger and larger swaths of the US: you paid for it but you aren't welcome there. You can't afford it, so stay in your tiny house and enjoy your lab-grown “beef” slurry and your plastic cheese and your sponge bread and your GMO beet-sugar diabetic-coma doggie treats. While you are gagging on that, the TV or computer will tell you the latest government reports, where you learn all companies are worth trillions and all other people are earning more and more, so it must just be you. You didn't invest right so you deserve all the “bad luck” that comes your way. How could little ole you, who can't even manage his or her pathetic little life, think to question anything your elders are up to? How could you even think of doubting the great people on the screens, the Kakus and Sagans and deGrasse Tysons and Hawkings and Buffetts and Springsteens and Shapiros and Faucis and Cohens and Carlsons and Altmans and Musks? As a financial entity you are so insignificant you are lucky to be allowed the same allotment of air as those magnificent people.
