

Fake News Continues Under Trump

by Miles Mathis

January 28, 2025

We will start with prosecutors seeking state charges against those pardoned by Trump. Impossible, since the President can pardon state charges as well, and often has. Besides this would be an obvious instance of double jeopardy: being tried for the same thing twice. Can't happen. But Wikipedia and Google lie and tell us the President cannot pardon state offenses. Some attorneys are asking why the internet is mistaken on this. It is because the internet is not mistaken, it is simply lying. Why? So that they can draw out these fake news stories for several more years, I guess. Those J6 people Trump allegedly pardoned were just actors, and they were never in jail for a second. So there was nothing to pardon.

In a related incident, one of those J6 actors just pardoned by Trump, Matthew Huttle, was allegedly killed by a sheriff's deputy in Hobart, IN, yesterday. What are the odds! Can you say, "The end of a role and a faked death?" How obvious could they be? You will say he can't be an actor! Oh no, then why does he have Los Angeles and Mission Viejo on his locations list at Instantcheckmate? We also find another problem there, since his uncle Dale Huttle was also arrested in the J6 fraud. But in these internet stories they say he is 61. Instantcheckmate lists him as 73. That's the exact same age as his brother Donald Huttle. How does that work? Can you be the same age as your brother? Maybe they are twins! Guess what Donald Huttle does, according to his page at LinkedIN. Private investigator. So probably ex-police or military. He also has Aurora, CO, on his list, indicating military. He is related to Richard Roethler, 68, of Eielson AFB, AK. And his son Scott Roethler of Fort Hood, TX. We also link to the Gajewskis, giving us the expected Jewish link. Roethler is also a Jewish name. Huttle appears to be a Jewish name as well, see the prominent Huttles of New Jersey, married to Jews and in the State Assembly in a district always led by Jews (Weinberg, Haider, Vainieri, Cowan, Janiszewski).

They are pushing pictures and film of "ten of thousands of Gazans returning on foot to destroyed homes". Except for one problem: it's all CGI again. It is fake footage from a drone, and doesn't look real at all. Remember, I showed you in my paper on Hawaii that this drone footage is some of the easiest to fake. Hollywood has a program that can fake scanning footage from the air like this with the touch of a button.

But the worst of the week, and among the worst of all time, is this story from Epoch Times, reprinted today at Zerohedge. I very much encourage you to read it. Epoch Times requires a membership, but it is free at Zerohedge. I have saved it if they take it down. It is about the Minutemen missiles or ICBMs in Montana. I have told you before they are dummy missiles in fake silos, and amazingly they pretty much admit it here. They don't tell you so outright, but they give you so many clues you will get there by the end yourself, unless you are very dense.

I will lead you through it. We start with lots of the usual numerology and onomastics. In sentence two we are told the Judith mountains rise majestically in the distance. Is that really the first thing we need to know here? No, so it must be a clue. It is the name Judith, of course, telling us we are dealing with the usual suspects. In sentence three we are told of rancher Ed Butcher, who happens to be how old? . . . you get one guess. That's him above, so don't guess 33. Your second guess should be 81, aces and eights, the right answer. Does it matter how old he is? Do we care? No, it was included only as a signal. We are told his windshield was cracked by a bird a few days earlier. Again, what does that have to do with anything? It is another signal they are effing you, and that this is fiction. You are the bird on the windshield, as you are about to see.

Butcher is giving us a tour, since the 60ft, 80,000lb missile is in a silo on his ranch. It has been sitting there for 60 years, and we are told they are now going to update it. Reminds us of the fake nuclear power plants, doesn't it, most of which have been sitting there even longer with no updates, way past their mothball dates. Like this missile, they were all just given extensions on paper.

In 1964, when Butcher was in high school, his father sold a one-acre plot to the Air Force for $100, allowing it to house this single missile with a nuclear warhead, sitting thousands of miles away from a potential target. As a weapon of mass destruction, it can deploy up to three Mk12A nuclear warheads, each with a yield of 300 to 350 kilotons of TNT. Each warhead is more than 20 times more powerful than the atomic bomb that destroyed Hiroshima on Aug. 6, 1945, which resulted in the deaths of 140,000 people.

Does that sound right to you? The government wants to put a 60ft missile on your cattle ranch, endangering you for the rest of your life, but they only buy one acre and pay you only $100? Ridiculous. Who would believe such a thing? Is that the way you imagined it worked all these years?

This is especially amusing:

During the peak of the Cold War, following the Cuban Missile Crisis, which brought the United States and Soviet Union closer to nuclear war than ever before, everyone was anxious about a potential nuclear exchange, Butcher recalled, and “duck and cover” drills were routine in schools. Despite the context, Butcher adapted to living near the missile. He never truly feared a nuclear attack on “Missile Country.” Logic told him that the Minuteman III would be launched long before any Soviet missile could reach its target. Butcher, a fifth-generation rancher with 400 to 500 cattle, remarked: “They'd be hitting an empty hole.”

Great logic, dumbass. And when they hit that empty hole, you and all your cattle would be turned to molten glass. That is if any of this were real, which it isn't. Obviously he isn't scared because he knows the whole thing is a bluff. How could he know? Well, he isn't just a rancher, he's a wealthy bigwig in Montana who has been a State Senator. He has a graduate degree, though Wiki refuses to tell us what in. Most ranchers don't have PhDs. He is currently a State Representative, though he didn't win an election. He was appointed to replace someone.

And there's another problem: do you really think the Epoch Times and ZeroHedge are going to be allowed by the Pentagon to publish the exact location of this “hidden” silo? I guess they are counting on the Russians and Chinese not reading those sites. But wait, Epoch Times IS Chinese. It was started by Chinese Americans and is linked to the whole Falun Gong fake movement. It has editions in Taiwan and Hong Kong, which are in Chinese, so the Chinese don't even have to translate. But the Chinese don't monitor that, as we know. They are too busy releasing mutant viruses and giving away AI programs for free to do that.

Next we get this brilliant story:

Butcher said that he had observed the Minuteman III missile outside the hatch at least once during scheduled maintenance. “I was counting cows out in the pasture,” and the security gate to the missile silo was open, Butcher said. “One of the cows got inside near the missile.”

So the guard let him come in on on his horse and fetch the cow.

His father, who was a licensed pilot, would also check on the cattle from the air. “He'd always turn before he got to the missile [silo],” Butcher said. “ He didn't want to be flying over if they decided to set it off. That was the closest thing Dad had for concerns” about nuclear missiles.

“Other than that, he didn't care.”

Wow, that's some top-notch security, right? They allow this rancher to check his cattle from the air, and the only reason he doesn't fly right over the hatch is because he decided not to. Which means the air space is unrestricted. Again, is that how you have imagined this worked all your life?

You will be glad to know Northrop Grumman will be given $141 billion of your taxdollars to replace 400 dummy missiles and update their dummy silos by 2038, extending bluffing capabilities out to 2075. But wait, let's do some math. Subtracting 38 from 75, we find these new missiles have a shelf life of 37 years. So why did the older missiles last from 1965 to 2038, or 73 years? Old hardware lasts twice as long as new hardware? So much for technical advancement, eh?

However, on Jan. 18, 2024, the Air Force announced that the project's costs had reached a critical Nunn-McCurdy breach, which is when initial estimate thresholds are exceeded by 25 percent or more, triggering a review. The cost of the Sentinel program is now estimated at $140.9 billion, representing an 81 percent increase from the program's 2020 budget.

Oh, goody, more numerology! In case we missed it the first time, we get aces and eights twice more. That's three in this short article. Tell me that is a coincidence.

But wait, I spoke too soon.

Airmen from the 90th maintenance group are responsible for maintaining and repairing ICBMs on alert status within the F. E. Warren missile complex, as they are one of three missile bases part of Air Force Global Strike Command on Dec. 18, 2019.

That's the subtext to a picture. Why do we need to know the exact day of this photo? We don't, except to get aces and eights in there a fourth time. And there is apparently more of this article at Epoch Times, so maybe it comes up again.

Next day: Alex Jones continues to knowingly peddle fake news about January 6, interviewing Cone Head Government Agent Joe Biggs. Yes, that's a tuft of hair on top of his pointed head, making him look like he just stepped out of a Dr. Seuss book. All on purpose, of course, just to mess with you. It's part of the joke.

Biggs was just fake pardoned for nothing by Trump after pretending to spend over a year in jail in DC. Just to remind you, Biggs is an Army Sergeant with a purple heart who is one of the organizers of the fake Proud Boys. They are just a CIA or Army front and Biggs and the others are just military actors. He was a correspondent for Infowars back to 2015, giving us one of Infowars' many links to the government. By 2019 Biggs had his own radio show and in 2020, before January 6, he was working for CIA front Censored.TV, started by agent Gavin McInnes. McInnes is linked to big money, including Tech millionaire Richard Szalwinski. All these people are Jewish or crypto, of course. McInnes is from the UK, where the McInneses are Barons of Kilwinning. Next day: Jones is interviewing McInnes today.

In that interview, Biggs is yapping about being reunited with his daughter—grab the handkerchiefs, sob sob. Reminds us of the fake reunions in Israel, where the fake hostages are being slobbered on by their actor/parents, testing your gag reflex.

The funny thing is, I checked comments and there are only four, one of them calling it out as fake. Alex Jones is supposed to be super popular, pushed by Tucker Carlson, Candace Owens, and many others in the mainstream, including Trump. Trump has apparently invited him to the White House. So why have his comments sections crashed and burned? We see almost no comments, and he is getting ratioed in most of them. My guess is that, like CNN, Infowars' numbers have gone in the toilet since his fake Sandy Hook fracas. People can see he is pushing this fake news, just from a different angle. Yes, he is right on some issues like vaccines, but that is just to keep up his street cred. For the rest, I think he has already crashed and burned. He is being propped up by Intel to provide part of the controlled opposition, a sort of newer version of Rush Limbaugh.
