

RONALD KEEVA UNZ

by Miles Mathis

First published October 14, 2024

This paper immediately went to #4 on a search for Ronald Unz at Yandex, ahead of his own paper.

Ron Unz just ran a long attack piece on me, which was a big mistake. 11,600 words of nothing. He doesn't manage to lay a glove on me, but ends up making himself look very scared and confused. [He chose to publish that old picture of me, which is why I did, too.] He admits that he avoided going to my website for “a year or so” about seven years ago, though he doesn't say why. Goblins surrounding my name on the internet, I guess. I look very scary, don't I? When he finally got up the nerve, he only lasted “ten or twenty minutes”. Despite allegedly being “very open-minded”. After ten minutes he came to the informed conclusion that it was “a massive volume of conspiracy smoke”, and “went away and never visited again”.

After that powerful introductory argument, Unz next tries to link me to Flat Earth, although I have stated many times Flat Earth is a project. Unz admits that he has a bachelors in physics and admits he has since gone to my science site, so he should know my theory of charge is composed of photons recycling through spheres, but he claims he can't follow any of that either. All too scary, I guess.

Then he moves immediately to the punchline:

So six or seven years ago I established a firm rule that any comment mentioning, citing, or linking Miles Mathis or his work was automatically trashed, about the only such blanket prohibition I have ever imposed on our very lightly moderated website.

You have to laugh. Based on ten minutes at my scary site. But he says he didn't do that because I am so dangerous to the status quo, or to his own project of spin, but because I am a nut “distributing unlimited quantities of 100-proof conspiracy-whiskey.” He doesn't want anyone drunk on the truth, I take it. He has been instructed to serve only watered-down punch you know.

When his own readers called him on this, he decided that, “to be fair”, he should return to my site for more than ten minutes. But once again, he apparently couldn't read any actual articles or comment on the content, since he has nothing of substance to say about any of them. Instead, he comments on the sheer volume of my work. Yes, a reader will notice that Unz constantly has to sidetrack into something besides what I actually say. At first it was all ad hominem and fear mongering, but now he switches to the Allan Weisbecker gambit of dismissing me because I write too much. Because I am smarter and more productive than Weisbecker and Unz, I can't possibly exist. Gorgeous logic, isn't it?

Seeming to realize that wasn't going anywhere, Unz then switches gears again, deciding to focus on the fact that some of my older papers are HTML and newer ones are PDFs. Because that is central to any discussion of me, right? Really leading with all the strongest points, isn't he? Here is what he says about that, so you know:

All his lengthy historical articles make numerous assertions allegedly based upon his extensive Internet research, and if they were provided as HTML pages, his readers would naturally expect to see links documenting those claims, but since all those articles are instead in PDF format, they contain almost no links and everyone must take his often wild claims entirely upon faith.

Is he claiming you can't put links in PDFs? That would be a novel argument, since you can. See the links in this PDF. And he is claiming my PDF articles “contain almost no links”, so I encourage you to drop by and read any of my articles. You will find them packed with links to mainstream references like Wiki, Geni, thepeerage, Intelius, Instantcheckmate, Geneanet, Googlebooks, and all the top newspapers and magazines. Unz even admits that later, contradicting himself. He complains about my genealogy research, which is too dense for his widdle head. Not too brief, but too extensive, with literally thousands of references to individual pages on genealogy sites. So he is just lying, and it isn't hard to prove that to yourself, providing you can spend more than ten minutes on my site without melting down mentally.

The other thing he forgets to mention is that I often start by critiquing a Wikipedia page on the subject, and I then import and quote a bunch of their content, including photos. That saves me a lot of time, since all I have to do is provide the initial link to Wiki. I don't have to link or footnote on all interior points, since Wiki has already done it for me. That way I can blow apart mainstream history right at its source. Unz or anyone else is then put in the position of having to argue that Wikipedia is not reporting mainstream history, and that is impossible to do since they footnote dozens of mainstream books on every page. After that, all they could do is try to prove my analysis isn't devastating, and they can't do that because it clearly is.

I did notice that while trashing me for writing too much, he admitted that my articles were “well written”, “based on extensive internet research” and “carefully proofed”. If so, then why couldn't Unz manage to get through at least one of them, developing some sort of counter-argument beyond the bald claim it was “crazy”?

He then says with wonder I must have written enough to fill 60 or 70 books. No Ron, try doubling that. It's more like 140 now, including the science site.

Amusingly (for me) he then says this:

I suspect his aggregate content is far greater than the combined total for every other conspiracy-website on the Internet.

Yeah, Ron, I suspect you are right, and I suspect that is why you are so bent out of shape by my very existence. It's why all you guys are so jealous. Also because I can pump out a reply like this in just a couple of hours, fully polished and proofed, giving you a further drubbing.

Do you know why I can do that, Ron? Obviously you don't, so I will just tell you. It isn't because I am some Mossad committee, set up to make you look like a bumbler. It is because I proof while I write. Meaning, I make very few mistakes, so I need very few corrections and almost no rewrites. I am an excellent speller on top of everything else.

Yes, Unz actually tries to sell the idea I am a Mossad committee, due to the fact that Google didn't return many results on "Miles Mathis Mossad". But Google doesn't return many results on "Miles Mathis anything" anymore, since they were instructed to censor me several years ago. . . hmmm. . . about the same time Unz started censoring me on his own site. Google and Unz are both frightened of me, and I suppose they are frightened for the same reason. I used to use Google to find stuff in my own papers, since even I can't always remember where I said what, and I don't have an index or anything like that. Other than controlF on my updates pages. But I can't use Google for that anymore because they shot my results full of so many holes those searches don't work. They refuse to tell you in what papers I mention Bill Gates or Leonard Susskind or Andy Warhol or damar varnish or white lead.

Nothing in Unz's argument is more absurd than this final idea he tries to promote that I am a Mossad committee, since that would mean Mossad is blowing the cover of the Oct. 7 Peace Party massacre. Why would they blow the cover of their own projects? Would Mossad tell you all the Middle East wars were faked to keep military budgets fat? Would Mossad also blow the Anne Frank story, or show that the Nazis were gay Jewish agents? Would Mossad point out Hitler was not a German citizen and therefore couldn't be elected or appointed to anything? Would Mossad be constantly pointing you toward Jewish control of everything, and linking them to the Phoenician Navy? Would Mossad be blowing all its own numerology and other internal signaling? Would Mossad be blowing the cover of thousands of CIA projects, like I have? Would Mossad blow the cover of the January 6 fake? Would Mossad blow the cover of 911 and Sandy Hook and Aurora and Boston and Las Vegas and all serial killers? Would Mossad blow the cover of large parts of WWII? Would Mossad blow the cover of the Manhattan Project? Would Mossad blow the cover of the Lincoln assassination? Would Mossad blow the cover of the Men-are-Pigs project? Would Mossad be interested in destroying Modernism and re-establishing realist painting and sculpture? Would Mossad be interested in diagraming the nucleus or predicting Solar cycles or solving Bode's Law or achieving unification, while making mainstream science look like a three-ring-circus? Would Mossad have any interest in the history of poetry? Talk about a dog that won't hunt.

But Unz isn't finished. As more proof I am Mossad, he does an in-page search on my updates page, finding 15 results for CIA and none for Mossad. So I must be Mossad, right? But there are also no results for KGB, so why not KGB? No results for CSIS or AIC or SHISH, either, so I must be Albanian Intelligence, right? By the same logical argument. There is no result for Neptunian, so I must be an alien from the eighth planet, I guess. You can see how desperate his "arguments" are. Has he considered the possibility I mention the CIA more because I am an American living in the US, and because the CIA is the largest and most powerful agency across the globe?

While Unz is trying to sell me as a secret Mossad agent, he hopes you won't visit his own Wiki page, where they admit he is a multi-millionaire Jew who came out of banking. That isn't some crazy conspiracy theory, it is a fact. He was raised in North Hollywood and went to Harvard, Cambridge (UK), and Stanford. He ran for California governor and US Senator. He made millions with Wall Street Analytics, which he later sold to Moodys. He then moved to the American Conservative, which I have hit in my papers. That was founded by billionaire Taki Theodoracopulos, remember, whose father was a Greek shipping magnate. . . aka Phoenician Navy. Oho, we see why Unz doesn't like me, other than my hair.

[Unz can now claim I failed to link that to Wiki. But I guess you can figure out how to get to Wiki without me telling you.]

Taki also launched the Proud Boys, who I have outed many times as a CIA (or other agency) front. If you will remember, I laugh at their chicken shirts in my paper on January 6. So again we see why Unz doesn't like me. It isn't because I am Jewish or Intel, it is because I'M NOT. It is because I have made so many of his fellow agents look foolish, and I am now doing it to him.

So it boils down to this: on the question of rich Jewish bankers, do you want to get your information from a rich Jewish banker? Or not?

Ironic, isn't it, seeing a rich Jewish banker try to out me as Israeli intelligence based on a controlF on my updates page? Or maybe ironic is not the right word. Pathetic? Desperate? Ill-advised? Counter-productive? A sad attempt by a rich Jewish banker (who can't write or debate) to libel a poor Gentile writer and painter living in squalor, by claiming without evidence he is actually. . . a rich connected Jew. You have to laugh.

I am not hard to pin down. They know where I live of course and they know I am not secretly living in some chateau, leading some group of heavily funded Ninjas. Just ask Josh Guetzkow, who has been here, either to meet the master or spy on me, we still aren't sure. Others have been here and have seen this little manufactured home I am sharing with another person. They have seen the tiny messy rooms filled with bicycles and cats and empty boxes (which I am saving for my hopefully incipient next move). They have seen the piles of clothes draped on chairs, since I have no closet space. They have seen the piles of books, since I am still snapping them up on Ebay for nothing despite the fact I currently have no bookshelves. They have seen my old Subaru, which I only drive to the market. Josh even commented in disbelief at my little Mac Mini with 17" screen. If you don't believe me, ask him. You will say all that is just a front, and they chopper me in here for photo shoots. If so, that should be pretty easy to prove, since you all know what I look like and everyone has a camera in his phone. Why hasn't anyone hired a private investigator to snap some photos of me walking out of my mansion or hobnobbing with rich Jewish bankers or doing something, anything, other than living in this little house? I will tell you why: because it isn't possible. I am what I am, so they are left to attacking me for publishing PDFs or writing too much or "using Britishisms" or brushing my teeth in the wrong direction.

But remember, they started it. In the beginning I just wanted to be a realist artist, but that was against their rules. They had already destroyed art for their own purposes and they weren't about to allow some curly-haired blond guy make a living in their field by painting real pictures. So I tried humor writing, poetry, novels, and art criticism. Again, no dice. I was from the wrong families. I had editors at places like the New Yorker tell me they liked my stuff, but they couldn't publish it. Why? They couldn't say. Now we know. So I tried science. Silly of me, since they have owned that since the beginning. What was I thinking? Finally, I stopped asking permission. I quit sending out resumes, quit submitting to magazines, journals, and galleries. But I didn't quit doing whatever I wanted to do. I just did it and threw it up on the web when I was done. And while researching other topics in art, history, and science, I stumbled upon their Matrix of lies. For fun, I threw that up as well. They are used to fights going in only one direction, so they have been very surprised, nay shocked, that anyone would turn around and charge them. Never happened before, as far as I can tell.

They have tried all the standard gambits to answer me, but nothing has worked. They tried shaming, slander and libel, calling me a pedophile, calling me an egotist, calling me everything they could think of, but none of it stuck. As here, I was always able to reverse it on them, making them look like incompetent creeps. Wasn't hard, to be honest. As usual, all I have to do is tell the truth. That is also the secret of my stunning output: telling the truth is easy and the gods are on your side, so the words flow with no resistance. You don't have to worry about getting caught up in contradictions, so you are free to write at full speed. Whereas telling lies is a chore, or so I imagine. As we see with Unz, one is trying to swim in a mudpit, and all sense has to be avoided on principle. You have nothing but a bag of stale old tricks of sophistry, which someone like me can parry in his sleep. It is amazing these guys can string two words together, and for the most part they can't.

So more recently they graduated to censorship and threats of lawsuit. Since I have nothing, those threats went nowhere. Someone did an asset check. I don't even have ads on my sites. The censorship has made a small dent in my numbers, but somehow my readers are driving around it. Even while being censored on 95% of searches (Google, Bing, and Yahoo), my numbers and influence continue to climb. It is called word of mouth, which Google hasn't found a way to silence yet. Which I guess is why Unz got the call. Everyone else has been begging off from this assignment, and you now see why, but Unz hadn't read enough of me to know he was in over his head from the first word. He should have known better, but didn't. So like many before him he tripped on the curb into the colosseum, and the lion got him. Too bad, so sad.

I think I'll keep chewing, just for kicks. Unz claims I was born in 1964, using RatWiki as his source, proving he is a lousy researcher on top of everything else. Any people search would show I was born in 1963, and I admit that, so why is he using RatWiki, one of my top enemies and admitted libelers, as a source for my birth? I guess because they are allies here, working from the same sad script of ad hom misdirection. Any good debater should be confident enough to take me on alone, especially since I “don't really exist”, and that debater would avoid any link to the bozos at RatWiki, lest they drag him down to their level, but notice Unz doesn't do that. He is scraping for any and all things to throw at me, without having to mention any of my actual research. Outside his pay grade, I guess.

Late in the article, Unz says this:

Easily summarizing such a gigantic collection of conspiratorial content is obviously impossible, so I'll just present a very brief overview based upon the couple of days I spent casually exploring this archive.

“Casually”, notice. All the rigor remains on my side.

He should say, “Responding to such a gigantic collection is obviously impossible, so I won't even try. I will just give you a short list, sneer, and and leave you to assume it is all wrong”. Think I am exaggerating?

I certainly haven't bothered trying to read most of these articles, but the titles and the descriptive summaries seem pretty indicative.

Ah, so this response of Unz is so empty, he doesn't require even one substantive response to 140 volumes of work. They are proved wrong by their own titles. That's convenient for him, wouldn't you say?

Our very lightly moderated website naturally attracts large numbers of unusual individuals and I've sometimes wondered where they got their crazy beliefs, vaguely assuming that Alex Jones might have been the source of those. But I now think that Mathis' huge trove of nonsensical material is much more likely to have been responsible.

He lets it all hang out, doesn't he? He is admitting he is being overwhelmed by my readers, who are even more numerous than those who follow Alex Jones! Tends to disprove the reverse argument, that I have no reach. For a long time the script has been that I have very small numbers and no real support, but Unz just let that cat out of the bag, didn't he? But I already knew that. I know what my numbers are.

Finally, near the end, Unz addresses an actual paper: the one on Schwarzenegger. But as usual he dodges all my top evidence, ignoring it as if it wasn't there, to concentrate on minor points. He chooses instead to focus on the rank of Arnold's father, which is not central to the thesis. But if it were, Unz could answer my claims very easily by proving those docs are NOT what I say they are. He doesn't even try, instead misdirecting into some mush about Anschluss. He also lies again, saying I suggest the father may have been a junior officer. No, that isn't what I say. I suggest he may have been a major general, which is not a junior officer. He says I claim Schwarzenegger is Jewish, but again he focuses on minor points like Gold of Gold's gym, while ignoring all the major ones concerning Arnold's own ancestors—which he waves away as “eye-glazing matters of genealogy”. Funny how every time he gets near any real data, especially linked or footnoted data, Unz's eyes and brain freeze and he claims I have lost him in some maze of hypnosis—and so he is not required to respond, much less tell you what I said. My paper is 14 pages PDF, which is about 42 book pages, of densely packed evidence, but Unz can only manage three short paragraphs in reply, which dodge immediately into misdirection, have zero content and boil down to “no he's not”.

Just to remind him and you, I found Arnold was a Mach, a Jadry, and a Tascher, and that his middle name is Alois. Unz takes that outing better than Arnold did, since Arnold had a little meltdown after my paper came out. My guess is Arnold will not be happy Unz is dredging this back up, and he may get a call.

In his brief mentions of my papers on Gates and Irving, Unz dismisses my claims they are Jewish by saying the names don't look Jewish to him. So we are supposed to take his word for it, against all my research and links to mainstream sources? Ignore Geni.com, thepeerage.com, and Intelius, and just get all your information from Ron Unz, who already knows everything without consulting genealogies or history?

Unz does the same chop job on my science site, admitting that if I am right about any of it, it is far more important than my other work, but then begging off from anything but a soundbite slander, based on his given script. He can't mention anything of the major things I have done, such as diagram the nucleus or achieve unification or predict a Solar cycle, since the script only allows him to libel me by sneering at my pi paper, of course without reading it. As with my genealogy work, he claims he can't follow it. Maybe that's why he dropped out of physics to go into banking.

On the way out, Unz estimates my sites require a staff of 15 and total expenditures would have now reached at least the $15 to $20 million range, and perhaps a great higher than that.

Yes, I am laughing out loud. This is so much fun. We have seen before that these people can't decide how to libel me. Am I too small to notice or too big to be true? One moment I am a big nothing, the next moment I am a $20-million government project of geniuses, sent out to smoke-bomb the entire world. They really need to make up their mind.

It was at this point I began to think Unz wrote this on his own bat, rather than responding to some sort of memo. It is such a stunning failure in every way it couldn't have been passed for publication by anyone higher up. No one reading this could possibly think it scored any points. As I have shown, it is so counter-productive it indicates Unz may be going through some personal crisis, perhaps due to vaccine damage or something. My prediction is he is going to get a call, not only from Arnold but from Intel itself. My guess is the article won't last long. But I am happy if it does.

A few hours later: the comments section for his article quickly swelled, or at least the comments he let through. He admits he is censoring at the top, so we shouldn't be surprised most comments support him. Unfortunately for him, it was just the excuse for a thousand trolls and agents to arrive, most of them anon, and for them to bring him even lower. Thank the Muses those people aren't agreeing with me, since again we find zero substance. Just reams of ad homs and other obvious misdirection. Lots more scripted nonsense about my pi paper, leading with the claim I don't even know what pi is, but nothing about my nuclear diagrams, my unification, or my successful solar cycle prediction. Nothing about the fact I have long been beating Wikipedia and the largest universities on general searches. Nothing on the fact that a NASA astrophysicist wrote the introduction to my first book, praising it to the skies. I guess he doesn't know what the Sun is. Nothing about the fact that the mainstream just admitted I was right about Columbus being Jewish and not from Genoa. Nothing about the fact that the Daily Mail admitted my "conspiracy theory" about Hawking was true. Nothing about the Smithsonian admitting the cause of lift was not known, after my paper on lift came out. Nothing about Kerr admitting the singularity does not exist, years after I proved it didn't. Nothing about the current crash-and-burn of String Theory, which I bombed down to bare earth years ago. Nothing about Fourier's Law recently dying, due to my killing it in my papers on Drude and Anderson.

Nothing about the huge piles of evidence I provide in all papers on both sites, just the lie that it doesn't exist or is wrong, based on zero counter-evidence or argument. The "argument" against me hasn't progressed one iota in two decades, it is still at this baby stage of yelling and throwing food, as Unz and his minions are proving. As we have seen again, they utterly ignore 99.99% of my data, cherry-picking a ten-list of shallow talking points provided from a central tape, then sound-biting that down to a few sentences and peppering it with invective. And then selling that as a scholarly debunking.

Unfortunately, that is going to reverse on Unz, as he is about to find out. Many of his best readers are going to be so turned off by this whole charade they are going to drop him like an old Covid wipe. It won't much matter, I guess, since his site was propped up by the usual suspects to start with, but it is going to sting his ego, at least. As for me, I have already seen a jump in donations on the first day.

BTW, I confirm that is me laying waste over at Unz in the comments section.* As if it isn't obvious.

Voxday has now piled on as well, though his only addition is to call me a gamma male.

That's Vox, just so you know. He might look a bit more alpha if his head came up over the top of the chair. Are you sitting on a cushion, Vox? So that's what we're dealing with here, as usual. It's why these guys generally like to hide behind monikers.

Vox has since begged for more public humiliation, but since I get the distinct impression he would enjoy it, I think I will decline to give it to him.

October 15: OK, I'm back from the orc pit. It was hopeless over there, since no one was lucid enough to realize when they were beaten. They are obviously paid to keep yapping no matter the score. Moses Rambam said I won the first round 10-8 on a takedown, and I couldn't figure where anyone scored eight. But he must have meant golf, matchplay, where I won 10 and 8. That means I won the first 10 holes with eight to go, so the match is called on the tenth hole. The ultimate slaughter. Ron was still stumbling around sticking to his initial points, though he had already conceded he was wrong about most of them. He was wrong about my Mossad count, for instance, so he moved sideways to Epstein. Nothing else had worked for them over there, so a bell rang and they all defaulted at about the same time to the “when did you stop beating your wife?” gambit that is so indicative of top thinkers and scholars. It was a chorus of little parrots chirping “why are you avoiding answering our questions we made up to keep you on the defensive” and keep the subject off how petty, small, envious, and utterly without virtue they would all look to any sane person who unfortuitously arrived there, maybe from another planet. After a very short time I felt slimed, like I had been wrestling with a giant anonymous snail. Ron was the most unctuous of all of them, and though I came in expecting that, I wasn't prepared for how unimpressive he really was at close range. I came in thinking I might get in a little sparring, an envelopment or prise de fer, but he is too slow to even practice on, too dull and flabby. It is like thrusting an epee into jello. I laughingly told him to keep saying “confidence is high”, and he obliged me, saying the equivalent “I am very satisfied”. Satisfied to look like a fool and to be losing a lot of his readers to me. He didn't even mind me recruiting his audience directly.

Finally, I tried saying the most provocative things I could think of, in order to get banned, but I still couldn't get a rise of him. It was at that point I began to smell a bear trap. That, and the fact I noticed Cass Sunstein had been mentioned several times, and not as the fascist he is. There seems to be some connection, though I don't know what it is. Readers reminded me Unz has been a vaccine pusher on top of everything else, raising my distaste for him to even greater levels, so as a rich guy he is probably invested in them. No other reason anyone would push them. So things got very dark over there very fast in my mind. If you don't know what I mean, I remind you that Sunstein sells himself as some sort of animal lover, but that is all just a feint. In my circles he is best known for his 2008 paper on conspiracy theories, where he argued that citizens questioning their government was a risk to the government's antiterrorism policies, and so those citizens should basically be considered terrorists themselves. To counter that free speech, Sunstein went on to promote cognitive infiltration of any citizens exhibiting free thinking. Are you with me so far?

"Government agents (and their allies) might enter chat rooms, online social networks, or even real-space groups and attempt to undermine percolating conspiracy theories by raising doubts about their factual premises, causal logic or implications for political action."

Reminded of that, I began to see that was probably exactly what was going on at Unz forums. The whole place stank of that project. I had been lured over there for that purpose, though I can't believe they thought they would be able raise any doubts in me or my readers. All this just confirms any doubt any of us had about these people. But they had to have known that as well at Unz, so I guess they had hoped they could get someone to unwind over there, calling for violence against the government or Jews. I did feel baited in that direction, as they tried to get me to one-up them on the question of Israel, Mossad, or anti-Semitism, but I begged off on that, sticking to the matter at hand which I saw as Ron's ludicrously weak personal attack on me. But now I begin to see that in a different light, too. I think it is possible he blew it on purpose, sacrificing himself temporarily for the sake of this project, whatever it was. They successfully drew me out, though to what benefit for them in the long term I don't know. Maybe just to scare me. Can't say I was scared, but I was certainly disgusted. It may have made me even less social, which is very much to their benefit: they don't want me leading any movement against them, though I already am in way. But if they can keep me from speaking at rallies in the future, and things like that, it might be worth their investment now in this project. It is all about sowing doubts and divisions, and nurturing self-doubt. They have been working on us all that way our whole lives.

The very fact I became aware of it means it backfired to a large degree.

Still, it was definitely worth the few minutes I invested over there, as it always is when I put in an appearance on these forums. My hits and donations spiked hugely over the past couple of days. And that obviously has the opposite effect to the one they intended. Had I any inclination to give speeches and lead movements, this would have pushed me in that direction. For now I will stick to writing.

Ron wasn't shy about telling us his opinion of me, so I guess I can return the favor. I think it is blindingly obvious he is a Jew controlling the opposition. He is a rich Jewish banker, and that is the bottom line, which is why I kept saying it. I don't think all Jews are "in on it", but Unz isn't some downmarket middle-class Jew, dancing on the roof. He is a rich banker who bought his way into politics and journalism, pretty much manufacturing his own promotion. All his anti-Israel stuff is so ridiculously over-the-top, it could only be vaudeville. I mean, the main critique I got over there, beyond ad hom, was that I wasn't anti-Semitic enough. I kept thinking, "Really? This has to be some sort of tarbaby, right?" And of course it is. The Jews have been attacking themselves for millennia: it is one of their favorite ploys. It puts them in charge of the revolution against them, so they can brake it from the inside. Plus, we see Ron working with the faux-Muslim Kevin Barrett, which couldn't be a bigger joke. These guys have been running this project back to the time of Lawrence of Arabia and before, with peers donning turbans and calling themselves Abdullah or something, while running various disinfo projects. Barrett has been blowing smoke all over 911 from the beginning, while using Islam as a cover. His alliance with Fetzer is all the proof anyone should need of that. I remember wondering how Barrett got on the Bill O'Reilly Show in the first months of 911 Truth, and I think now we know. He snapped at Bill and his new career was set overnight. It even worked on me at first. I guess the point was to create confusion and prevent alliances, and you have to admit it worked pretty well. We saw them infiltrating this forum today with the same old divide-and-conquer crap, trying to prevent alliances on 911 or anything else. Same thing we have seen at CluesForum from the beginning.

Just another reason they don't like me, since I haven't ever bought into that. I haven't talked about 911 as much as some because I felt—and said from the beginning—that we knew enough to go to trial by 2005. It was never necessary to prove the method: we had film of the event and aftermath, we had many players red-handed, we had motive, and we had mass murder and mayhem—even in the case no one died on planes. It would have been a slamdunk with any jury. The reason it never threatened to go before a judge or jury is that the entire New York State, New Jersey State, and Federal Governments were involved, including the Pentagon, so who was going to prosecute it? No firm would take the case, and they knew that from the start. That's why they did it like they did.

It is the same with gender wars, race wars, and party politics, where I refuse to take a side. We should resist the division and ally against the rulers. Men and women need to get back together, blacks and whites need to get along, and all of us should drive around both parties, which are corrupt beyond all correction. But that isn't what CIA wants, since CIA is working for the rulers. The assignment of these agents is creating division and chaos. They want you split in as many ways possible, because that is the best way to avoid change and maintain their hegemony.

You will say I am creating more division between Jews and Gentiles, but in general I'm not. Yes, we have to expel the Phoenician Navy, which runs the world as an illegal supra-governmental body, but they aren't strictly equivalent to Jews. I have two words for them for a reason. There are a lot of poor and middle-class Jews off the ruling lines, and I have tried to ally to them as well. That is what my olive branch to Josh Guetzkow was about. Some of my best readers are Jewish, though they aren't rich and aren't interested in El by any name. They know what I am talking about, because they have been left out and preyed upon just like the rest of us. Even the people of Israel aren't in favor of what is going on over there now. Most of them are as sick of it as you are. I have heard from some of them personally. It is the same there as here: the government is taken by the world as an extension and expression of its people, but it isn't. A large majority don't support the current regime, no matter what party is in power, and that is because they don't support the ruling class, which is ruling unConstitutionally.

The current system has created an ever-growing legion of have-nots, and it is that legion I am preaching to, not Gentiles or Christians or Whites or Men. But I saw all those divisions being pumped as well at Unz, which should concern Ron but apparently does not. His brag that his forum is generally lighted moderated doesn't impress me, because to keep out the agents you need heavy moderation. That sort of stuff wasn't allowed at CuttingthroughtheFog and isn't allowed at MathisianHaven, both of which have a completely different feel than what I experienced at Unz over the past two days. Nothing frightened me there, as I said, because it was all too transparent to be frightening, but it was a sad sight to witness. Nothing even close to a democratic free-for-all. More like a playpen for wildly incompetent agents of discordia, too small and pathetic to even interest Satan. A screaming void, but one too tenuous to even move a pingpong ball.

And finally, I need to say something about anonymous posters. I know you will say they are just protecting their identity, but in nine times out of ten it isn't some innocent citizen who is hiding behind that moniker, it is an agent from CIA, FBI, NSA, or other. The current system enables these people to infiltrate everything and turn it to crap. These forums will never be cleaned up until real people start posting under their own names. You will say you can't do that: you work for the government or for some scary company, and they will fire you if they find out. Three problems with that: one, that is mostly a bluff to scare you. If it has happened, it has happened very very rarely. Most of the cases you see in the news were manufactured to frighten you off from exercising your legal and Constitutional rights. They want you to think you will be fired, to bluff you into self-censorship. Two, in the rare cases it does happen, it is illegal. It is illegal to fire you for your private political opinions, and so people have sued and won big settlements. Those people will never have to work again, for that company or anyone else. Three, the time is coming, and may already be here, when you can no longer hide. It is time to make a stand. Do you really want to be working for a company that makes you fear that? What we need is millions of people telling their companies and governors to stuff the bluffs and bring it on. If anything happens after that, millions of lawsuits need to be filed. The country is still stiff with lawyers, and not all of them are already suing the hospitals and pharmaceutical companies. It will be a bonanza for the attorneys. The governors have so far relied on your compliance—your being bluffed. So far most people haven't sued. But that is changing fast. Big companies are under huge pressure right now. See 711, Walgreens, Google, Meta, and many others who are “downsizing” right now. Except that they aren't downsizing, they are contracting from bad management and policies, including but not limited to DEI, wokeness, and government interference. In other words, they are slowly going broke. The last thing they need is a large segment of employees calling their bluffs or quitting. This is all a function of the Big Quit, which gets little press, but which is driving the invisible revolution right now. Many people have had it, and if they can afford to they have quit. You will say these companies will just be taken over the government (and Google already is) but that won't work either since government revenues are also way down. All these people that quit aren't paying income taxes anymore, and their company's payroll taxes just went down as well. So all state and federal revenues are also crashing. That's the hidden reason they have no money for hurricane relief or anything else: the Big Quit.

You may think the rich can outlast us on this, and are sure to win, but don't be too sure. They are being hit hard because they have far more to lose. You are invested in the system indirectly, but they are invested directly, so they have far further to fall, and no ability to live close to the bone. Do you think they can live on $2500/month, like I do? No, not for a second. They would be suicidal after the first day of that.

The point being is that you have far more power in this system than you think. Ayn Rand had it upside-down: those people don't run the world, you do. They are just parasites. And they know that. Atlas Shrugged was a bluff like everything else. Yes, I am an objectivist in a limited sense, meaning I believe in the primacy of the objective world, and Rand was mostly right about collectivism, but the upper classes are no heroes. Her novels are a falsification even greater—and less entertaining and far less well-written—than those of Jane Austen. Her idea that the heads of big corporations would save us was just as stupid in 1957 as Nader's book of the same idea was in 2009:

Nader got the idea from Rand, of course, though he bastardized it even further. As we now know, big corporations aren't the answer, they are the problem. I am not saying we should switch to socialism, but I am saying that unfettered capital has led to criminal income disparity and worldwide pillaging of resources and populations. Accelerating deregulation has been a disaster in every way. Even in the 1970s we had far less oversight and regulation than we needed, and now we have none. So the question of capitalism v. socialism is more misdirection. With the current ruling class, either one would exacerbate the disaster.

If Cass Sunstein really wanted to lower backlash, he could achieve it overnight, but it is not going to be done by more CIA games. I suggest reversing predation and income disparity back to 1950s levels and ending Project Chaos for good. The Mayberry Project was working just fine for the ruling class and they had no reason to replace it with the Mordor Project.

The underlying problem isn't one of economic systems, it is one of ethical, legal, religious and educational systems. In short, the ruling class is morally bankrupt, and no system of economics can mitigate or reverse that. It was already past the point of no return in the time of Rand, and anyone could see that in the way she expressed meaning in her world via happiness and the dollar sign: both of them fatally shallow and Modern. As Nader further bastardized her little world, she bastardized Nietzsche, trying to bring him into the 20th century but only translating him for the tiny and pinched. Not for the large and heroic, but for the selfish and greedy who would respond to goals of happiness and wealth. Not for the artistic, but for the outrageously inartistic—the kind of people who think smoking is a hobby and who think domination is sexy. As you know, I no longer think so much of Nietzsche, but he was an Olympian compared to Rand. Plus, he was an interesting writer, where she was just a long-winded bore.

Anyway, that was a bit of a diversion, but that is how it goes over here. Never be diverted from the fact you can and must push back against the status quo. That was true in 1957 and is even truer now, but it was always true. You weren't sent here to bask in bliss and wealth, and you would be bored to death if you were. Just ask the wealthy. You were sent here to prove your soul and to do something interesting and worthwhile. So I suggest you get to it now. Don't be bluffed by the Cass Sunsteins and Ron Unzes of the world, spinning their webs. Do that thing you were put here to do, whatever it is.

*Knowing beforehand that—despite being outnumbered 500 to 1—I would have vanquished the whole pathetic lot of them with one hand while eating crackers with the other hand, Unz limited me to three posts per hour, while allowing an infinite number of content-free ad hom attacks on me. I suggested that, to be fair, he should waive that rule in my case, but he didn't. He just sat there in his tub of oil and asked me why I hadn't answered all their slant-eyed questions, knowing that I hadn't answered them because I was blocked from answering them. Just so you know, not one of these anonymous orcs had the cohomies to take me on one-to-one in my email: I didn't get one email from the Unz orcs during that manufactured fracas. I also draw your attention to the fact that when I arrived in the forum at Unz, I arrived ALONE. These people accuse me of “calling in my troops”, but I don't need troops to defeat nameless orcs, no matter how many there are. I was there to take them all on by myself, but wasn't allowed to do it.